Uncle Sam recruiters 'sell' Army, its benefits

by DIANE MERMIGAS

When the military draft was eliminated two years ago, people said Uncle Sam would have to become a pretty shrewd salesman to attract enough able bodies to fill the military ranks.

The armed services' new image and sales pitches haven't been coming from Uncle Sam's annual multimillion dollar advertising budget alone.

Salesmanship is the name of the game.

Recruiters like Michael Blumberg and Walter Cross sell the volunteer Army like salesmen sell other products. You have to believe.

They've been walking the beat with high school students, talking with civic groups during their monthly meetings and hustling interested candidates in their Des Plaines recruiting office.

THEY ARE NOT the stereotyped Army recruiters who sit behind metal desks and wait for vulnerable 18-year-olds to come in and enlist. Blumberg, Cross and others like them are out to sell the Army, Marines, Air Force and Navy.

"We have a much higher caliber of recruits today. Those who enlist must have at least a high school degree and many already have two or three years of college behind them," Blumberg said.

"Eliminating the draft was the best thing that ever happened to the Army. When we had a draft, we had to take almost anyone who could learn to shoot a gun and fight a war," said Cross, who works with Blumberg in a recruiting station at 800 Lee St.

The recruiters have a monthly quota of 20 enlistments which, Blumberg said, they must really "work" to meet.

Nationally there were 250,000 new enlistments in the Army last year, which brought the Army to its current 800,000 ceiling, he said.

EDUCATION AND medical benefits make the Army an inviting alternative to full-time work or college for many high school graduates, Blumberg said.

The Army pays 75 per cent of a recruit's four-year college education in "Project Ahead," an in-service program. Veterans are eligible for $270 reimbursement each month for tuition costs under the GI Bill, he said.

The Army also pays for all medical costs of the recruit, his wife and children during his service time ,and recruits get 30 days of paid vacation each year.

Blumberg's sales pitch and the benefits package was enough to

Child's injury sparks call for village action

by JOE SWICKARD

"Just as long as nothing happens people turn their faces. They overlook it," said Henry Collignon, a resident of the 900 block of Walnut Avenue.

Something did happen on Walnut Avenue Tuesday afternoon and people are not turning their faces anymore.

About 1 p.m. three kindergartners from Ridge School dashed into the street in the path of a car being driven by a 16-year-old high school student.

One child, Karl Wahl, 5, of 915 N. Vail Ave., remains in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital with multiple fractures of the skull.

THE DRIVER, Scott A. Kuykendall, of 1331 N. Vail Ave., Arlington Heights, has been charged with failing to reduce speed to avoid an accident and driving too fast for conditions.

Some residents of the area around Ridge Elementary School and Arlington High School say the situation has been ripe for a serious accident for some time. Collignon said "it's been a doggone miracle" someone hasn't been killed in the area because of conditions.

Arlington Heights police said areas around high schools are traditionally the source of complaints about speeding and noisy cars being driven by students.

Sgt. Jack Weber, head of the traffic divison, said the first few warm days of spring will bring a rash of complaints about "hot dogging drivers" from the high schools. However, Weber was quick to say there has been no evidence the student charged in the accident was either "hot dogging" or speeding.

SKID MARKS AND witnesses' reports indicate the driver was travelling at the 30 m.p.h. speed limit. But the speed limit on the street may be lowered to 20 or 25 m.p.h. at the next meeting of the village board.

But some residents wonder how-effective the new lowered speed limits will be if drivers, both young and old, are not obeying the present 30 m.p.h. limit.

Collignon termed Walnut Avenue a "regular speedway." He said high school students and adults both regularly drive faster than the limit.

Another resident of the area, who asked that his name not be used, said the situation has always existed, but since the widening of the street last summer it has gotten worse.

"And when they finish the railroad crossing on Walnut, it's going to be a direct route, and then what?," the resident said.

BUT THE COMMUTERS don't contribute to problems during school hours, he pointed out. He said he had seen several drag races the day of the accident.

"The police can come out. But if they're on one street around the school, the kids can be two blocks away. When they go by the police, they're driving like perfect angels," he said.

Wednesday afternoon, the village in-

Junta holds Peron, mulls her future

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — President Isabel Peron was arrested at gunpoint early Wednesday and flown to a remote resort area in the Andes. The three-man military junta that ousted her in a peaceful coup debated her future — exile or possibly prison.

Buenos Aires was quiet, but a military communique asked people to keep off the streets in cooperation with the security forces it said "will intensify their operations" Wednesday night, presumably against Peronists and opponents of the junta. A number of Peronists already were under arrest.

Military sources said it was still not certain whether Mrs. Peron would be exiled to Europe or placed on trial before a civil court on charges of corruption, one of the many charges that led to her downfall after 21 months in office as Argentina's first woman president.

The junta was sworn in Wednesday morning with a pledge to try to end the chaos that is Argentina. Members were Army commander Lt. Gen. Jorge Videla, Navy commander Vice Adm. Emilio Massera and Air Force commander Lt. Gen. Orlando Agosti.

Military sources said Videla, 50, would soon take over as president.

Within hours after the coup, in which not a shot was fired, the junta declared an emergency, imposed censorship, closed Argentina's borders, dissolved the national and provincial legislatures, removed the supreme court and provincial judges, suspended the activities of labor unions,

Customs auction turns rejects into treasures

by KURT BAER

The United States Customs Service had its annual auction of "unclaimed, abandoned and seized goods" Wednesday at a warehouse in Franklin Park just south of O'Hare Airport.

On the auction block were such diverse items as a 60-gallon barrel of wine, five wall-mounted trophy fish, eight acrylic wigs, two fooseball games, one leather elephant, a wooden donkey cart and a 1963 Volkswagen.

The auction was held at the Griswold and Bateman Warehouse — graveyard for unclaimed and uncleared foreign goods that enter the country in Chicago.

BY THE TIME it was over, the 400 people who attended were expected to spend about $50,000 to buy what others did not, or in some cases, could not get through Customs.

"We get everything through here," said Customs Inspector Chuck Gregoric, who organized Wednesday's auction. And looking at the merchandise spread out for sale, one had to agree.

Included in the warehouse cache were 1,900 watches, 500 necklaces and chokers, 184 pocket calculators, 700 blouses of assorted styles and colors, cases of German Rhine wine, wicker furniture, glass trays and silver service.

People in attendance said they came to the Customs bazaar because they had read about it in a newspaper, or simply because they watch for it every year. Some were planning to resell the goods they bought, others wanted something special at a good price for themselves.

NO ONE WAS allowed to take merchandise from the warehouse Wednesday. The high bidders will return today and tomorrow to cart away their treasures.

Money from the auction sale is used to pay the duty, taxes and any other liens on the merchandise, as well as the cost of storage and Customs employes' salaries, Gregoric said.

The largest auction was several years ago when $84,000 was taken in. On the average, bargain hunters spend a total of about $50,000 at the auction, he said.

A 1963 VOLKSWAGEN with only 90,000 miles was up for sale Wednesday in the U.S. Customs Service annual auction of unclaimed, abandoned and seized goods. Officials said the car could not be cleared through customs because the owner did not have the necessary papers.

'Planets' developer files for bankruptcy

Developer Lee N. Romano, who has planned a 238-acre futuristic development for Schaumburg, has filed a bankruptcy petition which leaves the fate of the site uncertain. Romano's petition, filed in federal court, lists 150 creditors. Romano filed under a section of the federal bankruptcy act used for reorganization of real estate and other personal possessions. "This procedure is used when assets are in excess of liabilities," said Donald Conley, Romano's attorney. Romano's plans for his Outer Limits development call for a space needle, 30 buildings ranging from 22 to 70 stories, an 80-story hotel, a 126-story office and residential building, and a "people mover," probably a monorail. Romano has said on completion the development would house 70,000 residents and employ another 30,000.

Chicago teachers face pay cut

The Chicago Board of Education voted Wednesday to cut 8.5 per cent from the salaries of all employes in the public school system by closing school 11 days early and eliminating teacher's pay during spring vacation. Approval of the plan, proposed by School Supt. Joseph P. Hannon, immediately raised the possibility of a teachers' strike. Hannon, who proposed the across-the-board salary cut to wipe out a huge budget deficit, said he hopes the teachers will not strike. After the vote was taken, board Pres. John D. Carey said, "It is a tragic day when the board unanimously acts to meet the realities of a situation like this by closing the schools." Jacqueline B. Vaughn, vice president of the Chicago Teachers Union, called the board's action a "gross violation" of the union contract and said the union's House of Delegates would have to decide what action to take.

Fernandez Ave., was listed in serious but improving condition Wednesday night at Northwest Community Hospital. The second boy, Nichole Lee, 939 N. Highland Ave., was treated for minor injuries and released from the hospital following the accident, which occurred about 1 p.m.

Wheeling pays off tax warrants

Wheeling, which in January for the first time in its history was forced to borrow money to cover operating expenses, has paid back the tax anticipation warrants. Trustee Donald Jackson said the village has received enough tax revenue to pay back the $100,000 in tax anticipation warrants and $553.98 in interest. The warrants were issued to cover operating expenses through March.

Teamsters turn 'thumbs down' on wage offer

by United Press International

Teamsters Union negotiators Wednesday rejected a higher economic package from trucking industry representatives, leaving no settlement in sight for a new "over-the-road" contract covering 400,000 truckers and warehousemen.

Some 600 union local leaders summoned to Chicago got an hour-long report from Teamsters Pres. Frank Fitzsimmons but departed without a contract proposal to take back to the rank-and-file. Instead, weekend meetings will be held to vote authorization for a strike at midnight March 31 when the current three-year contract expires.

Prospects for a settlement appeared dim when Labor Sec. W.J. Usery departed early Wednesday after 18 hours of work with the negotiators. In Washington, Usery said he sensed "a strong desire" among both sides to work out a new contract without a strike.

USERY SAID he was prepared to do "anything" he can to help reach a settlement, including summoning the negotiators to Washington.

Albert Fenner, executive director of the Chicago Truck Drivers and Warehouse Workers, an independent union, said management had raised it offer to a 13 to 20 per cent increase over the next three years.

The Teamsters, who are seeking a 30 per cent or higher increase, rejected the offer as being too low.

Union workers now earn $7.18 to 7.33 an hour and are demanding an increase of $2.50 an hour during the next three years.

The Teamsters also are seeking no limit on future cost of living increases and $36 a week more in welfare and pension contributions for each of the 400,000 drivers and warehousemen covered by National Master Freight Agreement.

Teamsters turn ‘thumbs down’ on wage offer

by United Press International

Teamsters Union negotiators Wednesday rejected a higher economic package from trucking industry representatives, leaving no settlement in sight for a new "over-the-road" contract covering 400,000 truckers and warehousemen.

Some 600 union local leaders summoned to Chicago got an hour-long report from Teamsters Pres. Frank Fitzsimmons but departed without a contract proposal to take back to the rank-and-file. Instead, weekend meetings will be held to vote authorization for a strike at midnight March 31 when the current three-year contract expires.

Prospects for a settlement appeared dim when Labor Sec. W.J. Usery departed early Wednesday after 18 hours of work with the negotiators. In Washington, Usery said he sensed "a strong desire" among both sides to work out a new contract without a strike.

USERY SAID he was prepared to do "anything" he can to help reach a settlement, including summoning the negotiators to Washington.

Albert Fenner, executive director of the Chicago Truck Drivers and Warehouse Workers, an independent union, said management had raised it offer to a 13 to 20 per cent increase over the next three years.

The Teamsters, who are seeking a 30 per cent or higher increase, rejected the offer as being too low.

Union workers now earn $7.18 to 7.33 an hour and are demanding an increase of $2.50 an hour during the next three years.

The Teamsters also are seeking no limit on future cost of living increases and $36 a week more in welfare and pension contributions for each of the 400,000 drivers and warehousemen covered by National Master Freight Agreement.

Prison or exile? Peron's fate debated

SOLDIERS IN FULL war gear, even though controlling access to Plaza de Mayo, have time to smile at pretty girls passing by. Despite the coup in Argentina, people went about their business with no show of excitement. Isabel Peron was under arrest Wednesday in an isolated area.

suspended the activities of political parties, closed banks and schools and arrested a number of Mrs. Peron's supporters.

The junta also announced that any armed resistance to the coup would mean "death or imprisonment."

The only token opposition was reported in the industrial city of Cordoba 440 miles to the northwest where some workers left their jobs in a sympathy strike.

Buenos Aires was calm and people who had heard rumors of the coup went about their business with no show of excitement. The only signs of the coup were a few troops and armored vehicles at strategic points.

The junta promised to eradicate the terrorism that has taken 1,200 lives in recent years and to revitalize the economy that has seen Argentina crippled by inflation running at 423.6 per cent at the end of February. It indirectly accused the Peron government of immorality, inability and inefficiency.

Both the United States and Spain announced de facto recognition of the junta, explaining there was no change in their diplomatic relations. Informed sources said the United States had known of the coup in advance — as had almost everybody in Argentina.

The military coup probably was the least well kept secret in Argentine history and had been rumored in the press for days. The only one apparently taken by surprise appeared to be Mrs. Peron, the blonde, 45-year-old widow of former President Juan D. Peron.

She had resisted all efforts to oust her and had just met her advisers when the end came to her 21 months of turbulent rule.

Mrs. Peron was taken prisoner when she boarded a helicopter to fly home after a midnight meeting with her advisers at the presidential palace. The co-pilot pointed a gun at her and the helicopter flew to the metropolitan airport where she was placed on a plane for the isolated Andean lake region in Nenquen, 720 miles southwest of the capital, military sources said.

The sources said she was under house arrest at El Messidor, an isolated mansion often used for vacationing dignitaries. The fate of her arrested followers was not known.

There was no word of the eventual fate of the one time Panama City cabaret dancer who had ruled Argentina following the death of her husband in 1974. There has been speculation she might be exiled to Europe within a few days, following Jose Lopez Rega, her close friend and confidante whose enormous influence angered the military and triggered the coup.

Junta members said before the coup took place she also might have to stand trial in a civil court on corruption charges although courts were suspended Wednesday.

The armed forces took over all communications, playing martial and classical music on all radios and reading military communiques. Newspapers were told they must submit to prior censorship for "several days."

Only a handful of faithful supporters were on hand when Isabel Peron was ungallantly removed from office . . . and they didn't know what was happening.

Patty to plead innocent in Los Angeles charges

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's attorneys said Wednesday she will plead innocent to kidnaping and robbery charges in Los Angeles.

"We will not consider pleading her guilty down there," said defense attorney Albert Johnson.

Johnson said the defense is concerned whether Miss Hearst, convicted of bank robbery last weekend, can receive a fair trial on the charges stemming from the Mel's Sporting Goods store shootout.

"I don't understand how any jury could be empaneled in Los Angeles that did not know of her verdict in San Francisco," he said, "and a simple awareness of that verdict would preclude serving. I don't see how she could be tried in any place in the foreseeable future."

Miss Hearst remained in her San Mateo County Jail cell after being interviewed by probation authorities. She was expected to undergo more interviews Thursday, Johnson said.

"She is doing very well," Johnson said. "She told me she accepted the verdict with resignation. Unless someone had gone through everything she had, she could readily understand why the jury would not believe her story. She felt throughout the trial that she would not be acquitted, although we (attorneys) did not feel that way."

Ford views Cuba contingency plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House is reviewing its contingency plans for reacting to any new Cuban military adventure such as past intervention in Angola, Sen. Richard B. Stone, D-Fla., said Wednesday after meeting with President Ford.

Stone said he brought up recent statements by Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger that the United States "cannot and will not accept any more Cuban military adventurism."

"The President's tone of voice dropped. He said, 'We mean it,' " Stone told reporters after a bipartisan group of senators met with Ford.

"All of the options that would fit the offense are being considered," Stone said. "There is no question that contingency plans are being reviewed and discussed at this moment."

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., also said the President's voice dropped and deepened in determination when he spoke of Cuba.

Earlier, presidential press secretary Ron Nessen told a White House news briefing "The American position is clear. The United States cannot and will not accept any more Cuban military adventurism."

Asked if Ford indicated he expected Cuban Premier Fidel Castro to send troops elsewhere as he did in Angola, Stone said the President's statements are aimed at preventing just that.

"The president clearly is not trying to provoke a problem but to deter a problem," he said. "I'm very proud of the President and I hope and I pray that he succeeds. The question is whether Castro takes the warning seriously."

New auto sales period opens strong

Domestic automakers Wednesday said they opened the traditionally stronger spring selling period with mid-March new car sales 42 per cent above the dismal levels of 1975. With General Motors leading the way, the four U.S. automakers sold 249,231 cars in the March 11-20 period. Last year's 175,674 cars sold was the lowest for the period in 14 years. Chrysler jumped 51 per cent, GM posted a 47 per cent gain and Ford was up 36 per cent. American Motors slipped 8 per cent below mid-March of 1975.

Felony homicide hinted in skier's death

Investigators said Wednesday new evidence might support a charge of felony homicide against singer Claudine Longet in the shooting death of her lover, former world pro ski champion Vladimir "Spider" Sabich. Sheriff's Lt. Bill Baldridge said officers investigating the case had turned up "new evidence."

Marianas get U.S. commonwealth status

Ferdinand Magellan found them 378 years ago. Spain named them. Germany owned them. Japan occupied them. Wednesday the Pacific Ocean's Marianas Island found political shelter with America. In a White House East Room ceremony, President Ford signed "A Covenant to Establish a Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands in Political Union with the United States of America." It gave the 14,500 islanders Commonwealth status, like Puero Rico. It also moved them, by their vote, as Ford pointed out, closer to self-government and nearer to enjoying the full rights of all American citizens.

Panel salvages gun control bill

The House crime subcommittee Wednesday salvaged a gun control bill that would ban the manufacture, sale and importation of small, cheap handguns and impose mandatory sentences on criminals who use guns. The panel voted to report the measure to the Judiciary Committee. The ban would not apply to the more than 40 million handguns owned by Americans, and is intended to get at only the "Saturday night specials."

Vegas union leaders ask support

Labor leaders mustered a "show of force" Wednesday in their two-week strike which has shut down most hotel-casinos on the Las Vegas Strip. Lou Paley, executive secretary of the Nevada State AFL-CIO, asked union leaders around the country to give financial support and to tell affiliates they should not patronize Las Vegas until the contract dispute has been resolved. He said he wants a boycott of the 15 hotels which are the target of 12,000 culinary workers, bartenders, musicians and stagehands.

Britain warns Gromyko on Rhodesia

Britain Wednesday warned the Soviet Union that Russian intervention in Rhodesia or elsewhere in southern Africa could touch off a bloodbath between blacks and whites, diplomatic sources said. Foreign Secretary James Callaghan delivered the warning during a two-hour meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, winding up three days of official talks.

Mobilize for fall flu battle: Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday urged mobilization of the nation's health care system to vaccinate every American this fall against an expected flu epidemic.

The White House said Ford "believes that it is important to take effective countermeasures to avoid an outbreak similar to the one in 1918."

A worldwide influenza epidemic in 1918-19 claimed 20 million lives, including 548,000 Americans.

Ford's health advisers urged the extraordinary steps he announced Wednesday in the belief that a flu virus identified at Ft. Dix, N. J., is similar to the 1918-19 virus.

Ford announced the following steps:

- He will ask Congress to appropriate $135 million before its April recess so that orders can be placed with the pharamaceutical industry to ensure availability of sufficient vaccine to inoculate every man, woman and child.
- Secretary David Mathews of Health, Education and Welfare is being directed to develop plans for making the vaccine available from September through November.
- The President is asking each American to get an inoculation this fall.

The suspected flu strain has been dormant almost half a century, thus making the entire U. S. population under age 50 susceptible to its return, according to the statement.

With Ford for the announcement were men who gained international fame for their development of polio vaccines, Drs. Albert Sabin and Jonas Salk.

Ford said his health advisers informed him that unless effective steps are taken, there could be "a dangerous epidemic of the disease this fall and winter in the United States."

The reaction to mass inoculations "may be a few sore arms for a day or two," Ford told reporters in the White House press room, but it is "a small price to pay" for protection.

"The facts do not suggest any cause for alarm," he said.

Ford said Salk, Sabin and others convinced him "beyond doubt" that the steps he is taking are necessary. He will submit his supplemental appropriations request to Congress Thursday, he said.

For the one in 100,000 persons who will be allergic to a vaccine, the effect of mass inoculations will offer protection against the disease, scientists said.

The swine influenza, so named because it was first isolated in hogs, was the predominant cause of flu in this country until 1930. Since then the virus has been limited to transmission among swine with only occasional transmission to humans, such as hog farmers, slaughterhouse workers and persons in similar jobs.

Tremor rattles nerves in 7 states

By United Press International

A "bigger than average" earth tremor rattled dishes and nerves in seven states from Mississippi to Illinois Wednesday night, shaking down power lines and sending college students fleeing their dormitories.

No injuries and no major damage was reported.

The tremor was felt in Jonesboro, Ark., and Caruthersville, Mo., to the east; north to Cairo, Ill.; south to Greenwood, Miss., and west to Huntsville, Ala., Fairview, Tenn., and Murray, Ky.

At the National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., a spokesman said there were two tremors, one at 7:41 and another at 8:02, measuring "4.5 to 5.0 on the Richter scale."

Dr. Otto Nuttli at the Seismological Research Center at St. Louis University said the epicenter was in Marked Tree, Ark., 50 miles northwest of Memphis.

A spokesman for the Memphis Police department said there had been no serious damage. "It sounds like the most damage was to people's nerves," he said.

At Murray State University in Kentucky, officials herded 600 students out of two dormitories when the tremors began. The first and strongest tremor reportedly went on for about 10 seconds.

Power lines were down in parts of North Alabama and telephone service was interrupted in parts of Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee.

In Murphysboro, Ill., Nancy Adkins, said it caused a chandelier in her home to sway for about 15 seconds.

Tobacco congressmen battle health tax

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tobacco state congressmen, arguing tobacco means bread for children and questioning any connection between smoking and lung cancer, Wednesday defended cigarettes against a proposed $9.3 billion health tax.

The tax, proposed by Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Gary Hart, D-Colo., would be phased in over four years and by 1980 would increase the average price of a pack of cigarettes from 45 cents to 75 cents.

Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., chairman of the House subcommittee on tobacco, told Kennedy's Health subcommittee: "I beg you not to cripple or endanger the livelihood of several million people including the farmer, manufacturers, trucking industry and the retail shops by threatening their existence through excessive taxation."

Rep. Dawson Mathis, D-Ga., a member of the tobacco subcommittee, added tobacco "puts bread on the table and buys books for the children" of rural Georgia.

Rep. Don Fuqua, D-Fla., one of several lawmakers disputing the health case against cigarettes, said, "To my knowledge no scientists or group of scientists has reported a study finding any substance as found in cigarette smoke that causes lung cancer or other disease."

He drew vigorous opposition from Hart, who cited past surgeons general reports indicting smoking as a major cause of lung cancer.

Kennedy and Hart say their proposed tax would encourage further reductions of these substances. The tax could be used for cancer research.

Computer sales office proposed

Texas Instruments plans to build a regional sales office in Arlington Heights, according to a proposal submitted to the village plan commission Wednesday.

Fred Buhrke presented a petition for rezoning three lots at 507 W. Algonquin Rd. that will be the site of the computer company's Chicago area headquarters. The plan commission recommended approval of rezoning the land from residential to manufacturing use.

Preliminary plans call for an office building with 18,500 square feet and parking for more than 100 cars. Buhrke, owner of the property, said Texas Instruments has a five-year option on an adjacent parcel of land for future expansion.

SHOULD THE COMPANY exercise the option, the existing parking would be adequate to meet village standards.

The request for rezoning was unanimously endorsed by the plan commission.

Comr. Michael Silverman, a past president of the Chamber of Commerce, said the plans represented "a fine use of the land. It will be an asset to the village. This is the type of thing we should seek more of."

Buhrke said the office would be used by salesmen and possibly for some repair and exchange services of calculators. He said that to his knowledge the company did not plan to have retail sales at the Algonquin Road location.

The proposed use of the land is in line with village plans for development of an industrial park and light manufacturing area at the southern end of the village near the Northwest Tollway.

The rezoning will be forwarded to the village board for final action. No date for the hearing before the trustees was set.

Asphalt crunch delays rail crossing

Completion of the railroad crossing between Ridge and Walnut avenues has been delayed indefinitely because hot-mix asphalt is unavailable, said a railroad spokesman.

Doug Schipper, a roadmaster for the Chicago and North Western Ry., said he does not know when the project will be completed because the asphalt plants do not produce the asphalt this time of year.

Once the hot-mix asphalt is available, it will take only one week to finish the work, Schipper said.

"We've been done with our work for almost two months. We're waiting for the railroad now," Village Engineer Allen Sander said.

THE THREE TRACKS need to be raised and crossing gates must still be installed by the railroad company, he said.

Completion of the crossing will conclude more than eight years of legal delays for the project.

Village officials first began planning the Ridge-Walnut crossing in 1967 as a means of alleviating congestion on the four crossings in downtown Arlington Heights.

After hearings by the Illinois Commerce Commission, at which the railroad objected to the plan, the crossing was finally approved in 1970.

A THREE-YEAR special assessment battle followed and then there was a disagreement over right-of-way compensation. The railroad insisted that the village should pay $17,000 for right-of-way across the tracks, but the village refused, contending that it was not a regular part of grade crossing agreements.

The Arlington Heights Village Board in August 1975 put $10,000 into a special escrow account until the right-of-way compensation question is settled in court.

The village is appealing a decision by the commerce commission approving the railroad's $17,000 request, but the case has never been called for a court date.

April 12 is your last chance to make changes in the new Arlington Heights phone book.

Would you like to change your listing in the White Pages? If your name isn't listed, maybe you'd like it to be. Or perhaps you'd like to add a separate listing for others in your household.

There's a $6 service charge for residence customers and $10 for business customers to help offset clerical costs for making the change (exceptions: a legal name change, or correcting a spelling error on our part). You can also obtain an "extra" directory listing for a monthly charge of 75c for residence customers and $1.10 for business customers.

But if you want to make a change in your White Pages listing, call your Service Representative now. The number is on your telephone bill and in your local directory. If you don't call by April 12, we'll have to say, "Sorry, the presses are rolling."

Budget talks postponed in Dist. 23

The Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education adjourned its meeting Wednesday until April 5 without any discussion of budget cutbacks for next year.

Board Pres. Melvin Lace said the board would be receiving information on the district's projected financial situation from the administration between now and April 5.

Lace told the audience, made up of the district's five school principals and 15 teachers and residents, that the board needs time to "study and ask questions" about the forthcoming financial information.

The board last week defeated a motion to notify all first-year teachers they will not be rehired next year. School officials had said it was possible the issue would be raised again at the Wednesday meeting.

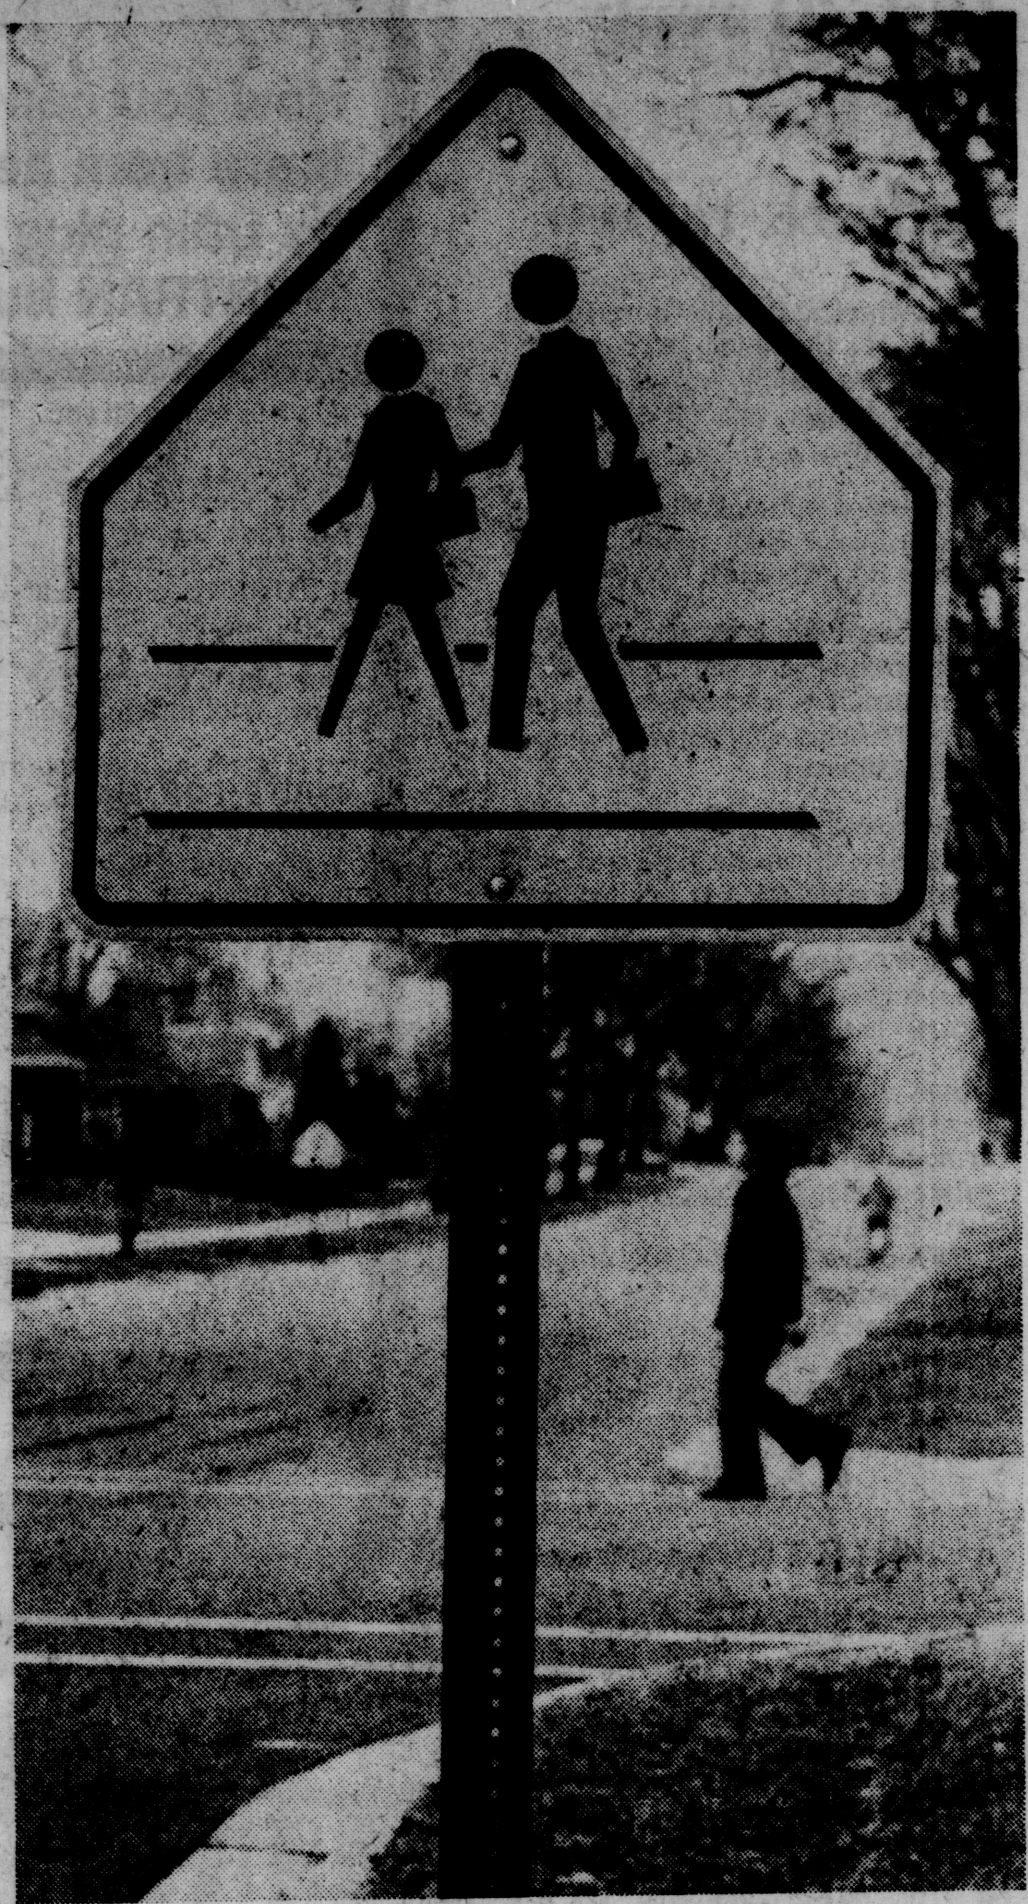
The staff cuts were considered because of declining enrollment and uncertainty of the district's funds for next year.

Dotts, Honeywell honored by chamber

The Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce honored local citizens and companies recently at the annual awards dinner.

Harold Dotts was honored as citizen-of-the-year for 1975 by the chamber. Dotts was recognized for his efforts on the village fire and police commission, and as a truste of Northwest Community Hospital and chairman of the hospital's financial development committee.

Honeywell was cited as the company-of-the-year for its contributions to the village through the United Fund and the hiring of high school students.



A DAY LATE? Arlington Heights workers erected a school crossing warning sign Wednesday near the intersection of Walnut Avenue and Elm Street where two Ridge School kindergartners were injured Tuesday when they were struck by an auto. One of the 5-year-old boys is in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital with a skull fracture. Residents in the area have been seeking a lower speed limit in the area for several months.

Child's injury spurs call for action

stalled a series of signs on Walnut Avenue warning drivers that they are in a school zone. But they are actually in two school zones: One for the high school and another for the elementary school.

James Hall, principal of Ridge School, said meetings were being held Wednesday afternoon with high school officials and the village to see what corrective measures can be taken to prevent a reocurrence of Tuesday's near tragedy. A meeting of the school's student patrol boys and girls also was held Wednesday afternoon.

HALL, LIKE PEOPLE of the neighborhood, says he has noticed an increase in traffic and speed on Walnut and questions what the effect of the Walnut railroad crossing will have on the already troubled street.

Although the youngsters do get safety instruction from their parents, the school and "Officer Friendly," Hall noted, "Children are sometimes like spontaneous combusion. It just takes a minute for them to forget what their parents tell them."

As one resident of the area said, "We've had a continuing problem . . . We've all been talking about it. But maybe we're going to have to get together to do something about it now."

Two more knock village on lot raising, flooding

Two more Arlington Heights homeowners have complained that the village has illegally allowed lot grades to be raised causing the flooding of their yards.

Christopher O'Reilly, 606 S. McKinley St., and Albert Leoni, 619 S. Roosevelt St., each complained this week that lots adjacent to their homes have been raised more than two feet during the construction of new homes. Village ordinances forbid grades from being raised higher than the levels of adjacent lots.

Both men contacted The Herald after reading about Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stenstrop, 416 E. Hawthorne St., who appeared before the village board last week and said there was flooding in their backyard caused by an adjacent lot being raised.

O'Reilly said he has only received "nonsense and double talk" from village officials when he complained to them about the flooding of his backyard and patio.

"THEY'RE RUNNING WILD violating ordinances and getting away with it," he said.

O'Reilly said the contractor of the home recently constructed on the raised lot has offered to install a drainage pipe if O'Reilly will pay half the cost of $225. O'Reilly has refused the offer.

Leoni said some dirt has been taken out of the backyard of the new home next to his, but that he still has flooding problems where he "never had water before."

In response to O'Reilly's complaint, Village Engineer Allen Sander said O'Reilly's home "was not built in accordance with the originally approved plans."

In the Leoni case, Sander said, "You must look at the whole area, not just the one adjacent lot.

"It's a question where you can go out there with 15 different engineers and come up with 15 different answers," he said.

James Hall, principal of Ridge School, said meetings were being held Wednesday afternoon with high school officials and the village to see what corrective measures can be taken to prevent a reocurrence of Tuesday's near tragedy. A meeting of the school's student patrol boys and girls also was held Wednesday afternoon.

HALL, LIKE PEOPLE of the neighborhood, says he has noticed an increase in traffic and speed on Walnut and questions what the effect of the Walnut railroad crossing will have on the already troubled street.

Although the youngsters do get safety instruction from their parents, the school and "Officer Friendly," Hall noted, "Children are sometimes like spontaneous combusion. It just takes a minute for them to forget what their parents tell them."

As one resident of the area said, "We've had a continuing problem . . . We've all been talking about it. But maybe we're going to have to get together to do something about it now."

Two more knock village on lot raising, flooding

Two more Arlington Heights homeowners have complained that the village has illegally allowed lot grades to be raised causing the flooding of their yards.

Christopher O'Reilly, 606 S. McKinley St., and Albert Leoni, 619 S. Roosevelt St., each complained this week that lots adjacent to their homes have been raised more than two feet during the construction of new homes. Village ordinances forbid grades from being raised higher than the levels of adjacent lots.

Both men contacted The Herald after reading about Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stenstrop, 416 E. Hawthorne St., who appeared before the village board last week and said there was flooding in their backyard caused by an adjacent lot being raised.

O'Reilly said he has only received "nonsense and double talk" from village officials when he complained to them about the flooding of his backyard and patio.

"THEY'RE RUNNING WILD violating ordinances and getting away with it," he said.

O'Reilly said the contractor of the home recently constructed on the raised lot has offered to install a drainage pipe if O'Reilly will pay half the cost of $225. O'Reilly has refused the offer.

Leoni said some dirt has been taken out of the backyard of the new home next to his, but that he still has flooding problems where he "never had water before."

In response to O'Reilly's complaint, Village Engineer Allen Sander said O'Reilly's home "was not built in accordance with the originally approved plans."

In the Leoni case, Sander said, "You must look at the whole area, not just the one adjacent lot.

"It's a question where you can go out there with 15 different engineers and come up with 15 different answers," he said.

MEMORIAL PARK in Arlington Heights honors, with bronze and granite, the veterans of the Civil and world wars. The tree-shaded half-acre offers quiet and solitude in the center of town.

War dead honored in lasting memorial

by JOE SWICKARD

Arlington Heights has honored its past in granite and bronze.

There are no plastic or Fiberglas horses or statues to commemorate the village and its men who have served the nation. Instead, Memorial Park is the site of three monuments that will endure.

The park, a triangular half-acre boundd by Park Place, Fremont Street and Chestnut Avenue, honors the Civil War and both World Wars. the men of the village who served i

WHILE BUFFALO Grove debates the purchase of a 12-by-20-foot Fiberglas rendering of a bison, and Schaumburg negotiates for a 64-foot statue of Abraham Lincoln, students of Arlington High School and residents of the park area have found a quiet space with pleasant shrubs and fieldstone walks.

The park has three monuments, benches and a flag pole that is used just one day a year.

The park site was donated to the village in 1883 by Dr. John E. Best and in 1919, the first monument there was dedicated.

The monument is a granite block weighing three tons and topped by a bronze eagle. A bronze plaque records the names of 131 village men, alphabetically from Albert J. Adams to Henry H. Zoellner, who served in World War I. Two men, Theodore Heimsoth and David Hodges, who died in the war also are listed.

In 1925, the local chapter of the Grand Army of the Republic erected a granite stone to the veterans of the Civil War. The GAR medallion, modeled after the Medal of Honor, is chiseled into the front on the massive stone.

THE FINAL MEMORIAL was installed in 1948 by the Lions Club in "Glory to our heroes who made the supreme sacrifice" in World War II.

Thomas Thornton, park district director, said Memorial Park, unlike other local ones, is untroubled by vandalism. High school students can find tree shaded solitude there and residents of the neighborhood can find benches in the sun, he said.

Although there is a flag pole near the World War monuments, Thornton said a flag flies there only on Memorial Day.

"We don't have enough people to raise and lower it every day. I don't know if that's a good excuse or not, but that's why," he said.

VILLAGE PRES. James T. Ryan said the village could find a man to perform the honors on a regular basis.

Ryan said the practice of flying the colors on a one-day-per-year schedule is "ridiculous."

In Arlington Heights, at least, the community's memory is set in stone and metal and not poured from plastic.

Dist. 21 reply due tonight on cutback review

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education will respond tonight to a faculty request for a review of budget cuts for the 1976-77 school year.

The board will meet at 8:15 p.m. at London Junior High School, 1001 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The board also is expected to decide whether to send dismissal notices to 50 nontenured teachers whose positions are being eliminated because of budget cutbacks.

The board last month approved the elimination of 50 teaching positions to offset an anticipated $1 million deficit in the 1976-77 budget. The district has about 420 teachers this year, and the cuts would result in a savings of about $500,000 in teachers' salaries.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said he hopes to have a report on Dist. 21's finances compiled by the Illinois Office of Education available at tonight's meeting.

THE STATE EDUCATION office report was requested by the Dist. 21 teachers union to provide an independent evaluation of the current budget, revenue projections and next year's budget.

Gill said the Illinois Office of Education conducted a three-day inspection of Dist. 21 financial materials last week and the state office said the report would be finished by tonight.

'Change fiscal '77 state budget or suffer cuts'

by STEVE BROWN

State Comptroller George Lindberg warned members of the Illinois General Assembly Wednesday to rewrite Gov. Daniel Walker's fiscal 1977 budget or face a series of "unpleasant and politically undesirable spending cuts" later this year.

Lindberg's comments ended a daylong hearing of the bipartisan Illinois Economic and Fiscal Commission, which is preparing data on the state's financial health.

Lindberg told the commission Walker's $6 billion budget is almost $100 million more than the state can afford. He also warned that if the General Assembly does not approve an accelerated tax collection plan for sales taxes and income tax withheld by large employers, another $100 million in spending must be cut.

THE LAWMAKERS are attempting to develop a clear picture on the state's fiscal condition before the General Assembly begins work next month on the fiscal 1977 budget, which goes into effect July 1. The efforts are seen as a major factor in determining if the state can go another year without an income tax increase.

Prior to Lindberg's comments, Walker's budget director Leonard Schaeffer, defended the administration's revenue projection. He contended the Bureau of the Budget revenue estimates have only differed from actual collection by 1 per cent.

In addition to starting legislative work on the budget next month, the General Assembly also will be faced with a series of supplemental appropriation bills for education, public aid, mental health and other state agencies. The amounts approved for Illinois schools could be crucial because the money has to come from next year's revenues.

Some state officials are already predicting the state will have an $80 million deficit at the end of the current fiscal year. Walker contends there will be a $131 million surplus.

THE DEFICIT situation could force an even tighter squeeze on state programs next year, according to some observers. Walker's budget does not include any provision for traditional cost-of-living raises for state employes or public aid recipients, and provides a less than requested increase for state school aid.

State Rep. Thaddeus Lechowicz, D-Chicago, the commission chairman, warned Schaeffer not to drag his feet on providing information on the new budget to the lawmakers.

"We got no cooperation whatsoever before the primary. We are trying to proceed in an orderly fashion. We better get the information we need or holy hell is going to break loose," Lechowicz said.

Besides Lindberg and Schaeffer, a group of economists told the commission the economic picture in Illinois is getting better.

Officials from the state chamber of commerce and a manufacturers group said, however, state government had created an unfavorable climate for business in Illinois through hikes in unemployment and workmen's compensation benfits approved by the General Assembly.

Stanley Johnson, president of the Illinois AFL-CIO, differed with that position, saying the increases in benefits merely bring Illinois into a comparable position with other industrial states.

Report on nuclear safety urged

by LEA TONKIN

Let's take the time to study the health and safety impact of nuclear power, says State Rep. Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine.

Mugalian plans to introduce an Illinois Safe Power Bill in the Illinois General Assembly when it reconvenes in April. The measure would create an 11-member committee to evaluate health, safety and environmental aspects of nuclear energy. The committee's report to the governor, legislators and the public would be required by January 1979, and a five-year moratorium on the development of nuclear power plants would be imposed.

"I think before we started on this madcap development of nuclear power, there should have been a study of these considerations," Mugalian said. "We're not calling for an end to the industry, but a study of the issues involved."

The concentration of nuclear power plants in Illinois and the area's population density are reasons for the public vulnerability, he said. Mugalian believes many area residents do not understand the risks of nuclear power use.

Richard Mugalian

"In the event of a serious accident, Lake Michigan, our most valuable resource, could become irreversibly contaminated," Mugalian said. "If the wind is blowing toward Chicago, after a critical accident at Zion, we would also be faced with the incredible task of evacuating the city."

Mugalian noted citizen campaigns to impose nuclear power development moratoriums in Oregon and California. "A nuclear moratorium does not have to mean 'brownouts' or an energy crisis," he said. "Fortunately, we still have the time to turn to feasible, clean, safe power alternatives if such alternatives are indicated by our studies."

The Pollution and Environment Problems (PEP) environmental group, based in Palatine, is among the Illinois Safe Power Bill supporters.

HOMEOWNERS CAN solve environmental problems caused by sump pump water discharge, said John Litz, chairman of the Buffalo Grove environmental control commission. Litz said village residents can obtain a free pamphlet that explains several methods of eliminating the problem. Ask for the Sump Pump proposal at the Buffalo Grove Village Hall.

"LOVEJOY'S NUCLEAR War," a movie featuring the pros and cons of the nuclear power industry, will be shown Wednesday at the Palatine Public Library in Palatine. The 7:30 p.m. session is sponsored by Pollution and Environmental Problems, Inc., Palatine.

Karnes MUSIC

Anything that's sold comes off our books. Our accountants are grouchy sorts. To them pianos and organs are not beautiful soul rejuvenating sources of musical pleasure. To them any unsold piano or organ is a tenant who isn't paying the rent (even if it's our own building). To them, everything not moving should be evicted. Even new borns still in their factory cartons.

Thus this sale.

Rather than submit to the sneers of the accountants, we are offering brand new pianos and organs, rental returns, studio used models, trade-ins (all reconditioned), and everything else that isn't breathing, FOR SALE AT SUBSTANTIAL SAVINGS.

COME IN AND SAVE NOW!

Anything that's sold comes off our books. Our accountants are grouchy sorts. To them pianos and organs are not beautiful soul rejuvenating sources of musical pleasure. To them any unsold piano or organ is a tenant who isn't paying the rent (even if it's our own building). To them, everything not moving should be evicted. Even new borns still in their factory cartons.

Thus this sale.

Rather than submit to the sneers of the accountants, we are offering brand new pianos and organs, rental returns, studio used models, trade-ins (all reconditioned), and everything else that isn't breathing, FOR SALE AT SUBSTANTIAL SAVINGS.

Warm rain forests circle the globe

WHAT EXACTLY IS A RAIN FOREST?

In New York, and many other states as well, the four seasons — winter, spring, summer and fall — usher in distinctly different weather conditions. Like other areas, New York has a growing season, or an average number of frost-free days per year. For most of New York, the growing season is between 140 to 160 days. The tropical rain forest, however, has no distinct seasons, and the growing season there is 365 days long.

Circling the world at its midriff is an imaginary line called the equator. On this line we find the tropical rain forests. To qualify as a rain forest there must be plenty of rain, at least 80 inches a year, and lots of sunshine. And the broad equatorial belt receives these two things in abundance. Soaking thundershowers pour down more than 200 days out of the year, and the temperature rarely falls below 69 degrees F.

Rain forests are sometimes called a forest within a forest. Gigantic trees reach up more than 150 feet to spread out a canopy of leaves. Below this upper forest is another forest of smaller trees. Together their leaves form a dense covering over the forest floor. Only plants that require little sunlight can survive in this perpetual shade.

There are tropical rain forests in South and Central America, Africa, India and Southwest Asia. All of them are home to a vast assortment of birds, amphibians, insects, mammals and reptiles. In fact, more species of animal life are found in rain forests than anywhere else on earth.

Chattering monkeys of every size and color thrive among the vines and branches of the upper canopy. Birds, spiders and insects of many species dart to and fro in search of a likely meal. With a growing season that lasts the year round, food is in abundance, and the main job is to keep on your toes and get your dinner without being a meal for someone else.

Tropical rain forests house a much larger variety of trees than other forests do. The average forest in the United States generally has 10, or fewer, species of trees. Tropical rain forests, with ideal growing conditions, often contain more than 150 kinds of trees.

While all tropical rain forests share common characteristics, each has its own blend of plant and animal life. For example, each rain forest has many species of monkeys, but the species found in the rain forest of South America are different from the rain-forest monkeys of India and Africa.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Scott Gass, 11, of Bethlehem, Pa., for his question:

HOW DOES A CHAMELEON CHANGE COLOR?

We know that many animals change outfits at certain times of the year, such as the snowshoe rabbit, who becomes snowy white in the winter. The chameleon changes the colors of his suit, too, but so rapidly and frequently you would think he was never satisfied.

His amazing quick-change artistry is controlled by his nervous system. Certain impulses cause the variously colored cells in his skin to expand. There are yellow, black and whitish cells, and the color of this rainbowlike lizard's skin depends on which cells have expanded. If the yellow ones are enlarged, he appears yellow; but if the black cells expand, his coat looks dark gray or blackish.

Since a look in the microscope shows us there are no green cells in the chameleon's skin, how does he appear green? This happens because the whitish cells reflect blue light, and when this blue light passes through the yellow cells the chameleon appears green.

If the black cells expand enough to cover the white reflector cells, the yellow and black cells mingle to give him a grayish-green cast. Actually his coat varies from green through yellow to dark gray. And sometimes his skin takes on hues halfway between any two of these colors.

Do you have a question to ASK ANDY? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to ASK ANDY in care of the Herald, P. O. Box 680, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Old timer's dirty trick

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

The unlucky expert asked us, "Who are those old timers playing East and West at table eight?"

We replied, "We don't know their real names, but in the days of auction they were known as A and B and always defended hands in the bridge columns of that day."

"I wish I had known," he groaned. "Look at this hand. There I was in a perfectly normal three notrump. After the opening spade lead I was going to need four diamond tricks for my contract. As you can see, the diamonds are 3-3 and West has the king so everyone else made an overtrick. I just made three for a bottom score."

If you readers can't figure out what happened, it seems that old man A had played his king of diamonds on the first lead of the suit. Our unlucky expert had ducked in order to guard against a 4-2 diamond break and made only four diamond tricks against five scored at all other tables.

Ask Andy

Warm rain forests circle the globe

WHAT EXACTLY IS A RAIN FOREST?

In New York, and many other states as well, the four seasons — winter, spring, summer and fall — usher in distinctly different weather conditions. Like other areas, New York has a growing season, or an average number of frost-free days per year. For most of New York, the growing season is between 140 to 160 days. The tropical rain forest, however, has no distinct seasons, and the growing season there is 365 days long.

Circling the world at its midriff is an imaginary line called the equator. On this line we find the tropical rain forests. To qualify as a rain forest there must be plenty of rain, at least 80 inches a year, and lots of sunshine. And the broad equatorial belt receives these two things in abundance. Soaking thundershowers pour down more than 200 days out of the year, and the temperature rarely falls below 69 degrees F.

Rain forests are sometimes called a forest within a forest. Gigantic trees reach up more than 150 feet to spread out a canopy of leaves. Below this upper forest is another forest of smaller trees. Together their leaves form a dense covering over the forest floor. Only plants that require little sunlight can survive in this perpetual shade.

There are tropical rain forests in South and Central America, Africa, India and Southwest Asia. All of them are home to a vast assortment of birds, amphibians, insects, mammals and reptiles. In fact, more species of animal life are found in rain forests than anywhere else on earth.

Chattering monkeys of every size and color thrive among the vines and branches of the upper canopy. Birds, spiders and insects of many species dart to and fro in search of a likely meal. With a growing season that lasts the year round, food is in abundance, and the main job is to keep on your toes and get your dinner without being a meal for someone else.

Tropical rain forests house a much larger variety of trees than other forests do. The average forest in the United States generally has 10, or fewer, species of trees. Tropical rain forests, with ideal growing conditions, often contain more than 150 kinds of trees.

While all tropical rain forests share common characteristics, each has its own blend of plant and animal life. For example, each rain forest has many species of monkeys, but the species found in the rain forest of South America are different from the rain-forest monkeys of India and Africa.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Scott Gass, 11, of Bethlehem, Pa., for his question:

HOW DOES A CHAMELEON CHANGE COLOR?

We know that many animals change outfits at certain times of the year, such as the snowshoe rabbit, who becomes snowy white in the winter. The chameleon changes the colors of his suit, too, but so rapidly and frequently you would think he was never satisfied.

His amazing quick-change artistry is controlled by his nervous system. Certain impulses cause the variously colored cells in his skin to expand. There are yellow, black and whitish cells, and the color of this rainbowlike lizard's skin depends on which cells have expanded. If the yellow ones are enlarged, he appears yellow; but if the black cells expand, his coat looks dark gray or blackish.

Since a look in the microscope shows us there are no green cells in the chameleon's skin, how does he appear green? This happens because the whitish cells reflect blue light, and when this blue light passes through the yellow cells the chameleon appears green.

If the black cells expand enough to cover the white reflector cells, the yellow and black cells mingle to give him a grayish-green cast. Actually his coat varies from green through yellow to dark gray. And sometimes his skin takes on hues halfway between any two of these colors.

Do you have a question to ASK ANDY? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to ASK ANDY in care of the Herald, P. O. Box 680, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

The way we see it

Welfare plan lacks merit

State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, recently proposed one of the worst ideas we have heard in years — a bounty, of sorts, on welfare recipients.

Oh, Regner is not promising a bounty in the sense of paying mercenaries for loose scalps or pelts.

Instead, he has introduced legislation to make welfare recipients the mercenaries, paying them $5,000 if they promise to get out of Illinois and stay out for three years. The goal, he says, with a straight face, is to tempt welfare recipients out of the state and thus save Illinois money.

The take-and-run proposal is hard to take seriously. It would temporarily fatten the wallets of some poor people; it might save the state money over the three-year period of absence. But it would not attack the problem of poverty; it merely would transfer the problem elsewhere.

It demeans welfare recipients; it demeans Sen. Regner and it probably isn't even legal.

The rising costs of welfare, the steady abuse of the system, and the root causes of poverty are all serious subjects for legislative review.

Welfare swallows an enormous chunk of the state's revenues, and welfare abuse seems chronic in Illinois. Current welfare practices are creating a seemingly permanent class of citizens who live better on the public dole than they would if they attempted to get off it.

Basic reforms are needed; instead of drawing headlines, legislators should draw a bead on these vexing problems.

Truth can be costly to American taxpayers

The truth is supposed to free us, but sometimes it only costs us — as in the case of some nonsensical "research" projects financed by the federal government.

Two real gems recently came to light. Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), a foe of government waste, revealed last week that $46,100 in government money — strike that, our money — had been spent to determine that male drivers are less irritable when they have an attractive female to look at. The research involved delaying poor, unsuspecting male drivers at an intersection in West Lafayette, Ind., for 15 seconds. When what the sidewalk ooglers called a tomato was planted at the intersection, drivers gazed at her instead of honking impatiently on their horns.

We don't know what that proved that everyone didn't already know or how anyone could spend $46,100 on such trash.

In another study, discussed recently by staff writer Monica Perin, the National Research Council turned out a five-volume, three-year study concluding that pesticides are losing their effectiveness. The study doesn't take a highly technical approach, so it adds little to serious research. And its cost ($26 for the full study, $11 for the summary) doesn't encourage casual reading.

In fact, the casual reader learned the same thing in reading Racheal Carson's "Silent Spring," a best-seller available 14 years ago.

On this day in history:

- In 1911, a total of 147 persons died when trapped in a fire that swept the Triangle Shirtwaist Company in New York City.
- In 1947, an explosion in a mine in Centralia, Ill., resulted in the deaths of 111 men, most of them asphyxiated by gas fumes.
- In 1954, Radio Corporation of America began its commercial production of television sets to receive programs in color.
- In 1975, King Faisal of Saudia Arabia was shot to death by a deranged nephew in his palace in Riyadh.

Nuclear testing protested

Good for Dorothy Lundahl of Rolling Meadows for speaking out about the disposal problem of nuclear waste!

And it's incredible that we can be informed in one small paragraph in The Herald about a hydrogen bomb tested in Nevada last Sunday, 50 times greater than atomic bombs dropped on Japan and leaving a cavern big enough to hold the Empire State Building, and barely a ripple from the public!

Not a peep. Because there is too much power and greed in the world for mankind to solve the problems it has, up to its nose. Sorry, Dorothy, but only God can govern mankind with love and justice and turn this world back into the paradise he intended it to be from the beginning.

Let's read our Bibles. Daniel 2:44 makes it clear: "And in the days of those kings the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that will never be brought to ruin. And the kingdom itself will not be passed on to any other people. It will crush and put an end to all these kingdoms, and it itself will stand to times indefinite."

Reversal of the world situation by man is not possible. We are living in the end of the time of the end. Time is short. It's time for all honest-hearted persons to take their stand for righteousness.

Why walls must be built

Ms. Black who wrote your story concerning "Neighbors file suit over picket fence" needs to look further into Mr. Frost's poem "Mending Wall," of which she quotes, "Good fences make good neighbors." Mr. Frost is not saying this at all. Mr. Frost is being extremely questioning in his poem as to why good neighbors need fences and his neighbors reply, "Good fences make good neighbors." Which is his neighbors father's saying of which his neighbor continues to quote and fails to go beyond. Mr. Frost wrote this poem after viewing the Iron Curtain in Berlin. If Ms. Black quotes out of context she might quote from the same poem — "Before I (Mr. Frost) built a wall I'd ask to know — What I was walling in or walling out, and to whom I was like to give offense."

To quote out of context, when personal issues are at stake, is less than objective reporting.

Dedication is need of board

One would hope board members are not handmaidens of the administration or teachers' union, but professional leaders with expertise to guide both groups according to public direction.

Housewives, mothers, former teachers, PTA presidents or local businessmen are seldom capable of handling Dist. 54's giant legal or financial problems and are most likely to be intimidated by our formidable teachers' union and administration.

Dist. 54 is the largest elementary school district in Illinois. Our problems with a teachers strike and a referendum defeat necessitate putting aside personal interests and seeking knowledgeable professional help.

We need you dedicated, community-minded, professional people.

Come on, get your feet wet!

Still, at heart, in Palatine

Thank you for publishing the article describing our plight. A few of our new problems were overlooked, such as our children being the only ones in their respective Palatine schools from "Schaumburg," not to mention voting in last Tuesday's primary.

What we are objecting to is losing the name of our town, not changing zip codes. Whereas the Post Office claims that it is not confusing to have the golf course directly across the street to be 1740 North Ela Road, and us 2160 South Ela Road, they would be confused if Palatine were also included in zip code 60195. So much for their slogan "Zip Codes move the mail."

For those of your readers who think that this is all a tempest in a teapot, let me point out to them that if they can do this to us, and move a 134-year-old landmark from Palatine to Hoffman Estates, against all opposition, what is to prevent them from making us all a Chicago zip code, or anything else that they please?

'Writing falacies' criticized

Everyone wants to be a hero these days. Monica Wilch Perin wants to be a hero so badly that she relates only those facts she likes when writing about the committee for handgun control and its founder, Susan Sullivan. Mrs. Sullivan wants to be a hero so badly that she will maliciously malign the National Rifle Assn. for attempting to preserve what they perceive as their civil rights. She uses all the logical fallacies identified in high school English books as she heroically crusades to save us from ourselves.

Well, I'm tired of heroes like Monica Perin and Susan Sullivan. Such heroes presided during the Spanish inquisition; they were saving the church. Such heroes solemnly lit fires in Salem, Mass.; they were saving "immortal souls;" and in 1919 the heroes went back to save our livers from alcohol. Now we are to be saved from that tool of the devil, the handgun and the "demons" of the N.R.A.

BUT WHILE salvation is being thrust upon you, remember that inanimate objects are just that: inanimate. People don't speed because cars have gas pedals. They don't put poison in Halloween candy because newspapers gave them the idea, and they don't commit arson because gasoline is so available. To believe otherwise and worse, to legislate on those beliefs, is to create a new state religion, a digression of reason whose basic premise centers on the concept that evil can be overcome only by controlling the innocent and the preservation of civil rights is best left to the all powerful and all knowing bureaucracy.

Whatever happened to natural gas legislation?

by WILLIAM E. CLAYTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Surely you remember the natural gas emergency.

Five months ago, people were worried about it. The Federal Energy Administration had a chart showing production peaking in 1973 and going into a slide thereafter.

The Federal Power Commission said expected winter curtailments of gas to "interruptible" customers — chiefly industry — were up by one third from the previous year, from 2 trillion cubic feet to 2.9 trillion cubic feet.

Some House and Senate members spoke of so many small industries' having to close for the winter that tens of thousands of workers would be laid off until gas was available again.

SO WHAT HAPPENED?

Not much.

The House and Senate took such different directions on the gas question and there may be no bill at all this year. It is an election year and natural gas is a sensitive issue that affects nearly every American.

The Senate, prodded by talk of a crisis and the contention that higher prices would encourage production to increase substantially, passed a bill Oct. 22, cosponsored by Sens. Lloyd M. Bentsen, D-Tex., and James B. Pearson. It would eventually free gas from federal price controls. It would start with some of the gas and add more until all was control-free.

The House members who opposed that, led by Reps. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., and Harley O. Staggers, stalled he Senate-passed bill and got the House to pass a bill Feb. 5 that would free only smaller producers from controls. Its effect was to increase the amount of gas under federal price regulations, because it extended controls to the within-the-state gas sales of the largest companies.

Since Feb. 5, a divided Senate has not decided what to do with the House bill.

As chairman of the pertinent committee, Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., could ask that the House bill be brought up in the Senate and be sent to a House-Senate conference with the Pearson-Bentsen bill.

SOME SUPPORTERS of the Pearson-Bentsen bill would like to give the House a chance to vote on it directly. They feel any conference would only change the Pearson-Bentsen bill in ways that would reduce the incentive they feel gas producers need: higher prices to look for more gas.

Spokesmen for Pearson and Magnuson said they have no definite vote count but the question is close.

Meanwhile, the winter wanes and so does fervor for any more far-reaching energy legislation. Congress may be making the same arguments over natural gas pricing next winter.

Old timer's dirty trick

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

The unlucky expert asked us, "Who are those old timers playing East and West at table eight?"

We replied, "We don't know their real names, but in the days of auction they were known as A and B and always defended hands in the bridge columns of that day."

"I wish I had known," he groaned. "Look at this hand. There I was in a perfectly normal three notrump. After the opening spade lead I was going to need four diamond tricks for my contract. As you can see, the diamonds are 3-3 and West has the king so everyone else made an overtrick. I just made three for a bottom score."

If you readers can't figure out what happened, it seems that old man A had played his king of diamonds on the first lead of the suit. Our unlucky expert had ducked in order to guard against a 4-2 diamond break and made only four diamond tricks against five scored at all other tables.

convince George Sorensen, 17, Des Plaines, that he should join the Army after graduating in June from Maine West High School.

"I WANT TO GO to college but, like most people, I don't have the money. This way the Army pays for most of it. It will be a challenge and a lot of hard work, but it's security for the next four years and I'll be benefiting from most of it," said Sorensen, who will train for combat arms and parachute jumping.

The recruiting office covers Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Prospect Heights, Park Ridge and Glenview. The areas are characterized by teen-agers conditioned into believing they must go straight into college after high school, Blumberg said.

"It's a rough attitude to beat. But, we get into the nine major high schools in these suburbs and explain to the students that the Army offers extensive college and vocational training programs, in addition to the military training and the travel," Blumberg said.

Another recruiting station, 25 N. Brockway St., Palatine, is confronted with many of the same problems. The station has a monthly quota of 16 and serves Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Palatine, Buffalo Grove and Rolling Meadows.

TERRY SINCLAIR, station commander, said referrals made by new enlistments in the Army are the best source of candidates.

"A satisfied customer is our strongest tool here," he said. "These recruiters deserve a lot of credit. They must dig up candidates and then turn them into enlistments."

The armed services have turned their focus to academics and attempt to offer a new public image.

"If the country had to defend itself militarily, we'd certainly be ready. But, we are offering men and women an alternative today in education and travel that we never could before. It's an attractive offer," Blumberg said.

The 18 through 22-year-olds who enlist are convinced, but many times their parents are not.

"MOST WOMEN GET defensive about it and feel that we're brainwashing their kids and taking them away from home. Many of the fathers are war veterans who remember the service as it was when they were in it. They don't realize how it's changed," Cross said.

If an individual can pass the required mental and physical examinations, he or she is in the Army for an average two-year stay. However, only half of all candidates pass the required tests, Cross said.

"You know, the Army competes with similar civilian jobs these days. We have to convince people that the same work they would do in the Army would be coupled with many advantages that they wouldn't get in the same civilian profession," Cross said.

There are no bribes or backing an interested candidate into a dark corner. Recruiters aren't paid "by the head." It's just plain recruitment and good salesmanship that gets the Army its men, he said.

"WE CAN'T AFFORD to trick people when they come in here because we'd lose our credibility. We just tell them what the Army has to offer, point up the benefits, meet with them as often as they want. But, these kids have to make the ultimate decision," Blumberg said.

Today recruiters encounter few protest demonstrations like the one that took place outside the Des Plaines recruiting station in 1972, Cross said. Hundreds of area high school students picketed the offices to protest the Vietnam War.

"I've spent 12 years in the Army and time in Vietnam. I've seen the public's attitude change and I've seen the Army change," Blumberg said.

"I became a recruiter because I wanted to see a better quality person get into the service. You could say recruiters like us are trying to change the system by working within the system," he said.

"But, if anything, you could say we are really working — to keep the system alive."

The way we see it

Welfare plan lacks merit

State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, recently proposed one of the worst ideas we have heard in years — a bounty, of sorts, on welfare recipients.

Oh, Regner is not promising a bounty in the sense of paying mercenaries for loose scalps or pelts.

Instead, he has introduced legislation to make welfare recipients the mercenaries, paying them $5,000 if they promise to get out of Illinois and stay out for three years. The goal, he says, with a straight face, is to tempt welfare recipients out of the state and thus save Illinois money.

The take-and-run proposal is hard to take seriously. It would temporarily fatten the wallets of some poor people; it might save the state money over the three-year period of absence. But it would not attack the problem of poverty; it merely would transfer the problem elsewhere.

It demeans welfare recipients; it demeans Sen. Regner and it probably isn't even legal.

The rising costs of welfare, the steady abuse of the system, and the root causes of poverty are all serious subjects for legislative review.

Welfare swallows an enormous chunk of the state's revenues, and welfare abuse seems chronic in Illinois. Current welfare practices are creating a seemingly permanent class of citizens who live better on the public dole than they would if they attempted to get off it.

Basic reforms are needed; instead of drawing headlines, legislators should draw a bead on these vexing problems.

Truth can be costly to American taxpayers

The truth is supposed to free us, but sometimes it only costs us — as in the case of some nonsensical "research" projects financed by the federal government.

Two real gems recently came to light. Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), a foe of government waste, revealed last week that $46,100 in government money — strike that, our money — had been spent to determine that male drivers are less irritable when they have an attractive female to look at. The research involved delaying poor, unsuspecting male drivers at an intersection in West Lafayette, Ind., for 15 seconds. When what the sidewalk ooglers called a tomato was planted at the intersection, drivers gazed at her instead of honking impatiently on their horns.

We don't know what that proved that everyone didn't already know or how anyone could spend $46,100 on such trash.

In another study, discussed recently by staff writer Monica Perin, the National Research Council turned out a five-volume, three-year study concluding that pesticides are losing their effectiveness. The study doesn't take a highly technical approach, so it adds little to serious research. And its cost ($26 for the full study, $11 for the summary) doesn't encourage casual reading.

In fact, the casual reader learned the same thing in reading Racheal Carson's "Silent Spring," a best-seller available 14 years ago.

- In 1975, King Faisal of Saudia Arabia was shot to death by a deranged nephew in his palace in Riyadh.

Nuclear testing protested

Good for Dorothy Lundahl of Rolling Meadows for speaking out about the disposal problem of nuclear waste!

And it's incredible that we can be informed in one small paragraph in The Herald about a hydrogen bomb tested in Nevada last Sunday, 50 times greater than atomic bombs dropped on Japan and leaving a cavern big enough to hold the Empire State Building, and barely a ripple from the public!

Not a peep. Because there is too much power and greed in the world for mankind to solve the problems it has, up to its nose. Sorry, Dorothy, but only God can govern mankind with love and justice and turn this world back into the paradise he intended it to be from the beginning.

Let's read our Bibles. Daniel 2:44 makes it clear: "And in the days of those kings the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that will never be brought to ruin. And the kingdom itself will not be passed on to any other people. It will crush and put an end to all these kingdoms, and it itself will stand to times indefinite."

Reversal of the world situation by man is not possible. We are living in the end of the time of the end. Time is short. It's time for all honest-hearted persons to take their stand for righteousness.

Why walls must be built

Ms. Black who wrote your story concerning "Neighbors file suit over picket fence" needs to look further into Mr. Frost's poem "Mending Wall," of which she quotes, "Good fences make good neighbors." Mr. Frost is not saying this at all. Mr. Frost is being extremely questioning in his poem as to why good neighbors need fences and his neighbors reply, "Good fences make good neighbors." Which is his neighbors father's saying of which his neighbor continues to quote and fails to go beyond. Mr. Frost wrote this poem after viewing the Iron Curtain in Berlin. If Ms. Black quotes out of context she might quote from the same poem — "Before I (Mr. Frost) built a wall I'd ask to know — What I was walling in or walling out, and to whom I was like to give offense."

To quote out of context, when personal issues are at stake, is less than objective reporting.

Dedication is need of board

One would hope board members are not handmaidens of the administration or teachers' union, but professional leaders with expertise to guide both groups according to public direction.

Housewives, mothers, former teachers, PTA presidents or local businessmen are seldom capable of handling Dist. 54's giant legal or financial problems and are most likely to be intimidated by our formidable teachers' union and administration.

Dist. 54 is the largest elementary school district in Illinois. Our problems with a teachers strike and a referendum defeat necessitate putting aside personal interests and seeking knowledgeable professional help.

We need you dedicated, community-minded, professional people.

Come on, get your feet wet!

Still, at heart, in Palatine

Thank you for publishing the article describing our plight. A few of our new problems were overlooked, such as our children being the only ones in their respective Palatine schools from "Schaumburg," not to mention voting in last Tuesday's primary.

What we are objecting to is losing the name of our town, not changing zip codes. Whereas the Post Office claims that it is not confusing to have the golf course directly across the street to be 1740 North Ela Road, and us 2160 South Ela Road, they would be confused if Palatine were also included in zip code 60195. So much for their slogan "Zip Codes move the mail."

For those of your readers who think that this is all a tempest in a teapot, let me point out to them that if they can do this to us, and move a 134-year-old landmark from Palatine to Hoffman Estates, against all opposition, what is to prevent them from making us all a Chicago zip code, or anything else that they please?

'Writing falacies' criticized

Everyone wants to be a hero these days. Monica Wilch Perin wants to be a hero so badly that she relates only those facts she likes when writing about the committee for handgun control and its founder, Susan Sullivan. Mrs. Sullivan wants to be a hero so badly that she will maliciously malign the National Rifle Assn. for attempting to preserve what they perceive as their civil rights. She uses all the logical fallacies identified in high school English books as she heroically crusades to save us from ourselves.

Well, I'm tired of heroes like Monica Perin and Susan Sullivan. Such heroes presided during the Spanish inquisition; they were saving the church. Such heroes solemnly lit fires in Salem, Mass.; they were saving "immortal souls;" and in 1919 the heroes went back to save our livers from alcohol. Now we are to be saved from that tool of the devil, the handgun and the "demons" of the N.R.A.

BUT WHILE salvation is being thrust upon you, remember that inanimate objects are just that: inanimate. People don't speed because cars have gas pedals. They don't put poison in Halloween candy because newspapers gave them the idea, and they don't commit arson because gasoline is so available. To believe otherwise and worse, to legislate on those beliefs, is to create a new state religion, a digression of reason whose basic premise centers on the concept that evil can be overcome only by controlling the innocent and the preservation of civil rights is best left to the all powerful and all knowing bureaucracy.

Whatever happened to natural gas legislation?

by WILLIAM E. CLAYTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Surely you remember the natural gas emergency.

Five months ago, people were worried about it. The Federal Energy Administration had a chart showing production peaking in 1973 and going into a slide thereafter.

The Federal Power Commission said expected winter curtailments of gas to "interruptible" customers — chiefly industry — were up by one third from the previous year, from 2 trillion cubic feet to 2.9 trillion cubic feet.

Some House and Senate members spoke of so many small industries' having to close for the winter that tens of thousands of workers would be laid off until gas was available again.

SO WHAT HAPPENED?

Not much.

The House and Senate took such different directions on the gas question and there may be no bill at all this year. It is an election year and natural gas is a sensitive issue that affects nearly every American.

The Senate, prodded by talk of a crisis and the contention that higher prices would encourage production to increase substantially, passed a bill Oct. 22, cosponsored by Sens. Lloyd M. Bentsen, D-Tex., and James B. Pearson. It would eventually free gas from federal price controls. It would start with some of the gas and add more until all was control-free.

The House members who opposed that, led by Reps. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., and Harley O. Staggers, stalled he Senate-passed bill and got the House to pass a bill Feb. 5 that would free only smaller producers from controls. Its effect was to increase the amount of gas under federal price regulations, because it extended controls to the within-the-state gas sales of the largest companies.

Since Feb. 5, a divided Senate has not decided what to do with the House bill.

As chairman of the pertinent committee, Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., could ask that the House bill be brought up in the Senate and be sent to a House-Senate conference with the Pearson-Bentsen bill.

SOME SUPPORTERS of the Pearson-Bentsen bill would like to give the House a chance to vote on it directly. They feel any conference would only change the Pearson-Bentsen bill in ways that would reduce the incentive they feel gas producers need: higher prices to look for more gas.

Spokesmen for Pearson and Magnuson said they have no definite vote count but the question is close.

Meanwhile, the winter wanes and so does fervor for any more far-reaching energy legislation. Congress may be making the same arguments over natural gas pricing next winter.

Recruiters 'sell' Army, its benefits

convince George Sorensen, 17, Des Plaines, that he should join the Army after graduating in June from Maine West High School.

"I WANT TO GO to college but, like most people, I don't have the money. This way the Army pays for most of it. It will be a challenge and a lot of hard work, but it's security for the next four years and I'll be benefiting from most of it," said Sorensen, who will train for combat arms and parachute jumping.

The recruiting office covers Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Prospect Heights, Park Ridge and Glenview. The areas are characterized by teen-agers conditioned into believing they must go straight into college after high school, Blumberg said.

"It's a rough attitude to beat. But, we get into the nine major high schools in these suburbs and explain to the students that the Army offers extensive college and vocational training programs, in addition to the military training and the travel," Blumberg said.

Another recruiting station, 25 N. Brockway St., Palatine, is confronted with many of the same problems. The station has a monthly quota of 16 and serves Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Palatine, Buffalo Grove and Rolling Meadows.

TERRY SINCLAIR, station commander, said referrals made by new enlistments in the Army are the best source of candidates.

"A satisfied customer is our strongest tool here," he said. "These recruiters deserve a lot of credit. They must dig up candidates and then turn them into enlistments."

"If the country had to defend itself militarily, we'd certainly be ready. But, we are offering men and women an alternative today in education and travel that we never could before. It's an attractive offer," Blumberg said.

"MOST WOMEN GET defensive about it and feel that we're brainwashing their kids and taking them away from home. Many of the fathers are war veterans who remember the service as it was when they were in it. They don't realize how it's changed," Cross said.

If an individual can pass the required mental and physical examinations, he or she is in the Army for an average two-year stay. However, only half of all candidates pass the required tests, Cross said.

"You know, the Army competes with similar civilian jobs these days. We have to convince people that the same work they would do in the Army would be coupled with many advantages that they wouldn't get in the same civilian profession," Cross said.

There are no bribes or backing an interested candidate into a dark corner. Recruiters aren't paid "by the head." It's just plain recruitment and good salesmanship that gets the Army its men, he said.

Today recruiters encounter few protest demonstrations like the one that took place outside the Des Plaines recruiting station in 1972, Cross said. Hundreds of area high school students picketed the offices to protest the Vietnam War.

"I've spent 12 years in the Army and time in Vietnam. I've seen the public's attitude change and I've seen the Army change," Blumberg said.

"I became a recruiter because I wanted to see a better quality person get into the service. You could say recruiters like us are trying to change the system by working within the system," he said.

"But, if anything, you could say we are really working — to keep the system alive."

"Come in, Buffalo Grove"

Come in and win a Citizens Band Radio Transceiver or a 17-inch Zenith color TV in our Grand Opening Sweepstakes.

Home Federal has opened a new branch office in Buffalo Grove. It offers all the same convenient services as our other offices. And something else: a chance to win one of a dozen CB radios or one of six solid state Zenith color TV's, free.

The radio sends out and receives messages on 23 channels. It can put you in touch with other CB-ers for miles around. The TV can put a nice touch of color in your viewing. Entrants must be 18 or over. You need not be present to win.

Get one of these free gifts with a $250 deposit

Open a new Home Federal 5¼% passbook account at our Buffalo Grove location with $250 or more and take your pick of this handsome travel bag or a Borg bathroom scale. Your passbook account earns interest from the day of deposit to the day of withdrawal.

Invest in any of the following accounts and receive a gift.
(Minimum deposit for free gift $250.00.)

5¼% regular passbook,
(Yields 5.39%* annually)

6½% savings certificate, term: 1 year (Yields 6.81%* annually)
$1000 Minimum Deposit

6¾% savings certificate, term: 30 mos. (Yields 7.08%* annually)
$1000 Minimum Deposit

term: 4 years (Yields 7.9%* annually)
$1000 Minimum Deposit

7¾% savings certificate,
term: 6 years (Yields 8.17%* annually)
$1000 Minimum Deposit

*Interest must remain on deposit for full year to earn at the compounded rate. A substantial interest penalty is required for early withdrawal of certificate accounts.

Take home one of these gifts with a $5,000 certificate deposit

Invest $5,000 or more in a Home Federal certificate of deposit (minimum 1 year) at our Buffalo Grove location, and get your choice of a Proctor-Silex 6-button blender or a General Electric clock radio. You'll also receive up to 7¾% interest annually—the highest allowed by federal regulation—if you choose our new six year certificate plan.

‘Wait ’til next year’ a home buying no-no

by LEA TONKIN

The “wait until next year” potential home buyer may end up paying a 10 per cent penalty for procrastination. That’s the opinion of Larry Doyle, secretary of Home Town Real Estate, Inc., and sales manager at the firm’s Buffalo Grove office.

Higher prices for area used homes and an active suburban market are cited by Doyle and Richard Reimann, executive vice president of F-B-K, Realtors, Arlington Heights, in their forecasts of a dynamic home sales trend.

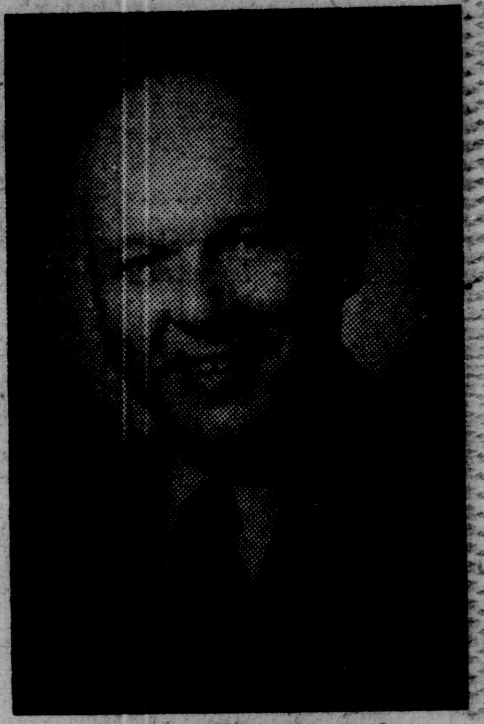
“In the last year, prices increased significiantly more than in previous years,” Doyle said. “I don’t see it tapering off at all.”

“I WOULD SAY THE market is remarkably active. It seems like the higher priced homes are selling more rapidly than the lower priced homes,” Doyle said. He defined a lower-priced home as generally costing $30,000 to $40,000. “Our average sales price is around $50,000,” he said.

Comparison of values will enable potential buyers to know they’re getting the most for their housing dollar, the real estate executive said. Doyle said a buyer, working with a reputable realtor, can check listings of selling prices for homes comparable to the one selected.

“Buyers should still shop around and compare prices,” said Reimann. “But they should arrive at a decision in a short period of time.”

Reimann described the Northwest suburban existing home sales market as “rapid.” He estimates the average selling price in the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect area is $55,000 compared to $51,000 a year ago. In the local MAP Multiple Listing Service area, the average selling price at the end of February was $50,000. MAP is a Northwest suburban real estate association.



RICHARD REIMANN

FIRST-HOME BUYERS AND shoppers who have not scouted for a house the past several years will encounter a good selection of homes priced at $50,000 and higher, Reimann said. Don’t give up because you can’t afford a larger home, he advised. There are homes priced in the $20,000 and $30,000 range. “We’re seeing an abundance of homes priced at over $100,000 and they’re selling,” he said.

“Start out with a price you’re qualified for, in the down payment and monthly payments,” he continued. “If you go over your head, you may have troubles.”

Reimann reports sales increased for the first three months of 1976 compared to 1975 sales. He predicts continued sales and selling price increases.

The rosy sales reports offer contrast to the recent National Assn. of Realtors’ January sales results. The association’s department of economics and research said a seasonally adjusted sales volume index dropped 15 points to 116 in January. Proper analysis cannot be made until February sales information is available, the report said.

The national median sales price for used single family homes jumped $3,000 to $36,000 compared to previous-year figures. North central region prices were an average $30,000 and west region prices averaged $42,170.

Three-bedroom existing homes, selling for an average $35,920 accounted for 54.8 per cent of the market during January. Four-bedroom home sales totaled 26.3 per cent of the market and homes with fewer than three bedrooms accounted for 18.9 per cent of sales.

1976 may be ‘turnaround’ year

Bullish building forecast here

A turnaround in Northwest suburban condominium and apartment markets and continued business and industry development are included in the forecast by Michael F. Pritchett, mortgage officer in the real estate finance division of Baird & Warner, Inc.

“I’m bullish, with some question,” Pritchett said. “The big overall consideration is the economy. If we don’t have a healthy economy, then we’re not going to have the type of development I’m talking about.”

Pritchett believes the O’Hare area and the Northwest suburbs will set the pace for a new surge of Chicago area development. “I think this spring you’ll see at least one major office building started in the O’Hare area of approximately 150,000 square feet,” he said.

Michael Pritchett

THE DEVELOPMENT OF industrial real estate properties and apartments will be included in the second phase of recovery, he said. Although there was some overbuilding in the condominium housing and apartment market, Pritchett said, 1976 could be a turnaround year.

“Long-term interest rates fell ¼ to ½ per cent between the first of January and the end of February, and underwriting requirements of insurance companies have eased slightly,” the finance expert said. He added that question marks include the Federal Reserve Board credit policy and government deficit spending.

The 1975 construction slowdown helped to stabilize costs, Pritchett said. He believes labor costs will not rise “prohibitively” in the near future despite the coming round of construction labor negotiations.

The greatest potential for Chicago area shopping center development is “the category of the neighborhood center anchored by a supermarket,” he said. “Several food retailers are still expanding in the Chicago area and there is ample room for growth in both the continuously expanding suburbs as well as older, established areas of the city.”

THE SCHAUMBURG and O’Hare airport areas will lead office space development in 1976, he said. In contrast to the downtown Chicago office market, “There are now virtually no large spaces available in the O’Hare area, and the limited large spaces which are available in the Schaumburg area are being absorbed,” he said.

The strong and diverse industrial base of the Chicago area could spark a late 1976 development surge, Pritchett forecasts.

The gap between rents and high construction costs continues to stifle apartment construction, he continued. The recent release of funds by the Government National Mortgage Assn. to subsidize Federal Housing Administration-insured loans make those apartments the best candidates for 1976 development, Pritchett said.

Computers help builders figure heating, cooling cost

YORK, Pa. (UPI) — Computers have been put to work to help builders determine the cost of heating and cooling the new homes they build.

A computer program developed by the York Division of Borg-Warner Corp. can evaluate the energy costs of a new home depending on such factors as the type of air-conditioning and heating and the use of insulation, giving the builder a comparison on the initial cost of each option and the estimated energy savings.

Builders provide York dealers with information on individual houses, which is then analyzed with the computer.

Before summer heat wave

Time for air conditioner checkup

by DOROTHEA BROOKS

Now is the time for an annual checkup.

That advice will prod different folks in different directions — health, auto, financial, whatever you’ve been putting off.

For the household with air-conditioning equipment, it’s meant as a reminder that, to insure trouble-free operation through the hottest of summer weather, and to minimize electric consumption, maintenance is a must.

This is a good time for it, whether you live in the north where winter can be hard on idle equipment, or in a warmer clime, where year-around use takes its toll.

The homeowner who doesn’t give his air-conditioning system a routine spring checkup may end up calling a specialist for emergency work on the hottest day of summer, advises George Buchanan, general service manager for the York division of Borg-Warner Corp.

The average homeowner is capable of handling this routine maintenance, Buchanan says, but he urges that repairs be performed only by an expert with proper training.

AT THE TOP OF his check list of maintenance suggestions, Buchanan puts “a complete reading of the manufacturer’s maintenance manual. The few minutes to read it will be the best thing you can do.”

For homes with single package central air-conditioning systems, where condenser and evaporator are in the same unit, he recommends the following:

Reset dampers if there are separate ducts for heating and cooling.

Inspect air inlets, both in and outside the house. Remove any obstructions.

Clean or replace filters. Lubricate where necessary, usually on fan motors and bearings.

Central units with auxiliary drain pans require cleaning of this pan. These are common in attic installations.

AFTER COMPLETING these checks, Buchanan suggests turning on the electric power to the unit for one day before actually running the compressor. “This should be done, as many types of air-conditioners require power to pre-warm compressor oil,” he explained. “During this warmup, only the fan should run and the thermostat should be set high.”

After the warmup comes the test run. This should be on a day when the outside temperatures are in the mid-60s. The unit should be set at a temperature lower than room temperature and run for 10 minutes.

During the test, listen for any unusual noises. If they persist Buchanan suggests calling a professional service technician.

For homes with “split systems,” with compressor located outside and evaporator inside, there are a few extra checks.

Piping going outside should be inspected, as should any insulation. Exposed metal surfaces and concrete foundation outdoors should be inspected for damage.

Check air intake and discharge vents to be sure they are free of debris and leaves.

OWNERS OF ROOM air-conditioners also should follow a brief service routine to assure satisfactory operation.

Any window unit that has been stored should be placed upright on a level surface to allow oil to drain back into the compressor. Some lubricating may be necessary; check the manual.

The unit should be cleaned, particularly air inlets and outlets. If rust is found, some painting may be necessary.

If a unit has been left in a window all winter, it might only need a bit of oil and change of filter.

As with central systems, Buchanan recommends a test run for room units. Choose a day when the room temperature is in the 70s and the outside temperature in the 60s.

Run the unit for 10 minutes, listening for unusual noises and checking cooling effectiveness. If something sounds wrong, or the unit isn’t cooling, it may have lost its refrigerant charge.

Perform this little routine, Buchanan suggests, and you’ll get through the hottest summer without losing your cool.

Your free checking account at the bank may be costing you money if you don’t have a savings account with us.

Many banks are now offering their customers free checking with little or no minimum balance.
So what are YOU doing with $600, $900, or even $1500 remaining in your checking account?

Chances are that you’ve developed a pretty expensive habit.

That extra balance in your checking account is costing you money in the form of lost interest, 5¼% yearly at the minimum. That’s what it could be earning in a passbook savings account with us, because we pay interest on every savings dollar, every day it is on deposit, from the day of deposit to the day of withdrawal.

Break the habit. Start saving or add to your savings account now!

'Wait 'til next year' a home buying no-no

by LEA TONKIN

The "wait until next year" potential home buyer may end up paying a 10 per cent penalty for procrastination. That's the opinion of Larry Doyle, secretary of Home Town Real Estate, Inc., and sales manager at the firm's Buffalo Grove office.

Higher prices for area used homes and an active suburban market are cited by Doyle and Richard Reimann, executive vice president of F-B-K, Realtors, Arlington Heights, in their forecasts of a dynamic home sales trend.

"In the last year, prices increased significiantly more than in previous years," Doyle said. "I don't see it tapering off at all."

"I WOULD SAY THE market is remarkably active. It seems like the higher priced homes are selling more rapidly than the lower priced homes," Doyle said. He defined a lower-priced home as generally costing $30,000 to $40,000. "Our average sales price is around $50,000," he said.

Comparison of values will enable potential buyers to know they're getting the most for their housing dollar, the real estate executive said. Doyle said a buyer, working with a reputable realtor, can check listings of selling prices for homes comparable to the one selected.

"Buyers should still shop around and compare prices," said Reimann. "But they should arrive at a decision in a short period of time."

Reimann described the Northwest suburban existing home sales market as "rapid." He estimates the average selling price in the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect area is $55,000 compared to $51,000 a year ago. In the local MAP Multiple Listing Service area, the average selling price at the end of February was $50,000. MAP is a Northwest suburban real estate association.

FIRST-HOME BUYERS AND shoppers who have not scouted for a house the past several years will encounter a good selection of homes priced at $50,000 and higher, Reimann said. Don't give up because you can't afford a larger home, he advised. There are homes priced in the $20,000 and $30,000 range. "We're seeing an abundance of homes priced at over $100,000 and they're selling," he said.

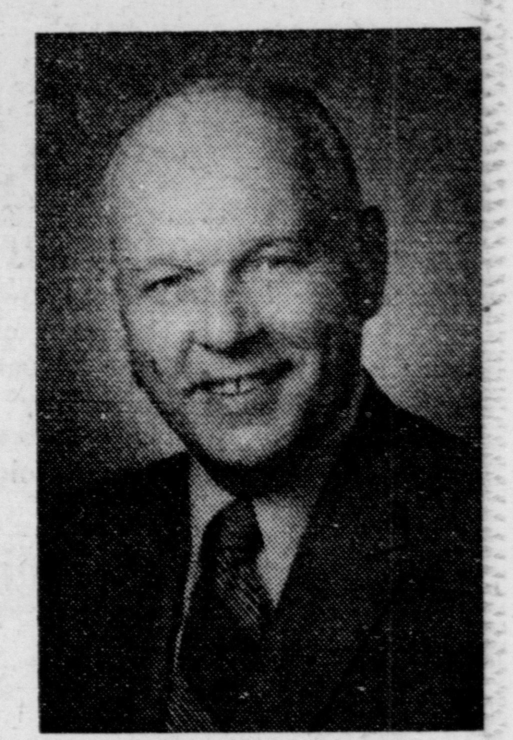
"Start out with a price you're qualified for, in the down payment and monthly payments," he continued. "If you go over your head, you may have troubles."

Reimann reports sales increased for the first three months of 1976 compared to 1975 sales. He predicts continued sales and selling price increases.

The rosy sales reports offer contrast to the recent National Assn. of Realtors' January sales results. The association's department of economics and research said a seasonally adjusted sales volume index dropped 15 points to 116 in January. Proper analysis cannot be made until February sales information is available, the report said.

The national median sales price for used single family homes jumped $3,000 to $36,000 compared to previous-year figures. North central region prices were an average $30,000 and west region prices averaged $42,170.

Three-bedroom existing homes, selling for an average $35,920 accounted for 54.8 per cent of the market during January. Four-bedroom home sales totaled 26.3 per cent of the market and homes with fewer than three bedrooms accounted for 18.9 per cent of sales.



RICHARD REIMANN

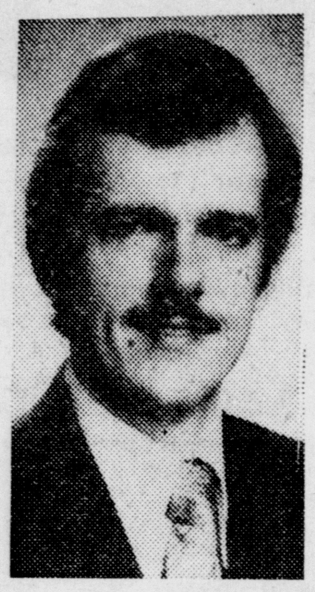
1976 may be 'turnaround' year

Bullish building forecast here

A turnaround in Northwest suburban condominium and apartment markets and continued business and industry development are included in the forecast by Michael F. Pritchett, mortgage officer in the real estate finance division of Baird & Warner, Inc.

"I'm bullish, with some question," Pritchett said. "The big overall consideration is the economy. If we don't have a healthy economy, then we're not going to have the type of development I'm talking about."

Pritchett believes the O'Hare area and the Northwest suburbs will set the pace for a new surge of Chicago area development. "I think this spring you'll see at least one major office building started in the O'Hare area of approximately 150,000 square feet," he said.



Michael Pritchett

THE DEVELOPMENT OF industrial real estate properties and apartments will be included in the second phase of recovery, he said. Although there was some overbuilding in the condominium housing and apartment market, Pritchett said, 1976 could be a turnaround year.

"Long-term interest rates fell ¼ to ½ per cent between the first of January and the end of February, and underwriting requirements of insurance companies have eased slightly," the finance expert said. He added that question marks include the Federal Reserve Board credit policy and government deficit spending.

The 1975 construction slowdown helped to stabilize costs, Pritchett said. He believes labor costs will not rise "prohibitively" in the near future despite the coming round of construction labor negotiations.

The greatest potential for Chicago area shopping center development is "the category of the neighborhood center anchored by a supermarket," he said. "Several food retailers are still expanding in the Chicago area and there is ample room for growth in both the continuously expanding suburbs as well as older, established areas of the city."

THE SCHAUMBURG and O'Hare airport areas will lead office space development in 1976, he said. In contrast to the downtown Chicago office market, "There are now virtually no large spaces available in the O'Hare area, and the limited large spaces which are available in the Schaumburg area are being absorbed," he said.

The strong and diverse industrial base of the Chicago area could spark a late 1976 development surge, Pritchett forecasts.

The gap between rents and high construction costs continues to stifle apartment construction, he continued. The recent release of funds by the Government National Mortgage Assn. to subsidize Federal Housing Administration-insured loans make those apartments the best candidates for 1976 development, Pritchett said.

Computers help builders figure heating, cooling cost

YORK, Pa. (UPI) — Computers have been put to work to help builders determine the cost of heating and cooling the new homes they build.

A computer program developed by the York Division of Borg-Warner Corp. can evaluate the energy costs of a new home depending on such factors as the type of air-conditioning and heating and the use of insulation, giving the builder a comparison on the initial cost of each option and the estimated energy savings.

Builders provide York dealers with information on individual houses, which is then analyzed with the computer.

Before summer heat wave

Time for air conditioner checkup

by DOROTHEA BROOKS

Now is the time for an annual checkup.

That advice will prod different folks in different directions — health, auto, financial, whatever you've been putting off.

For the household with air-conditioning equipment, it's meant as a reminder that, to insure trouble-free operation through the hottest of summer weather, and to minimize electric consumption, maintenance is a must.

This is a good time for it, whether you live in the north where winter can be hard on idle equipment, or in a warmer clime, where year-around use takes its toll.

The homeowner who doesn't give his air-conditioning system a routine spring checkup may end up calling a specialist for emergency work on the hottest day of summer, advises George Buchanan, general service manager for the York division of Borg-Warner Corp.

The average homeowner is capable of handling this routine maintenance, Buchanan says, but he urges that repairs be performed only by an expert with proper training.

AT THE TOP OF his check list of maintenance suggestions, Buchanan puts "a complete reading of the manufacturer's maintenance manual. The few minutes to read it will be the best thing you can do."

For homes with single package central air-conditioning systems, where condenser and evaporator are in the same unit, he recommends the following:

Reset dampers if there are separate ducts for heating and cooling.

Inspect air inlets, both in and outside the house. Remove any obstructions.

Clean or replace filters. Lubricate where necessary, usually on fan motors and bearings.

Central units with auxiliary drain pans require cleaning of this pan. These are common in attic installations.

AFTER COMPLETING these checks, Buchanan suggests turning on the electric power to the unit for one day before actually running the compressor. "This should be done, as many types of air-conditioners require power to pre-warm compressor oil," he explained. "During this warmup, only the fan should run and the thermostat should be set high."

After the warmup comes the test run. This should be on a day when the outside temperatures are in the mid-60s. The unit should be set at a temperature lower than room temperature and run for 10 minutes.

During the test, listen for any unusual noises. If they persist Buchanan suggests calling a professional service technician.

For homes with "split systems," with compressor located outside and evaporator inside, there are a few extra checks.

Piping going outside should be inspected, as should any insulation. Exposed metal surfaces and concrete foundation outdoors should be inspected for damage.

Check air intake and discharge vents to be sure they are free of debris and leaves.

OWNERS OF ROOM air-conditioners also should follow a brief service routine to assure satisfactory operation.

Any window unit that has been stored should be placed upright on a level surface to allow oil to drain back into the compressor. Some lubricating may be necessary; check the manual.

The unit should be cleaned, particularly air inlets and outlets. If rust is found, some painting may be necessary.

If a unit has been left in a window all winter, it might only need a bit of oil and change of filter.

As with central systems, Buchanan recommends a test run for room units. Choose a day when the room temperature is in the 70s and the outside temperature in the 60s.

Run the unit for 10 minutes, listening for unusual noises and checking cooling effectiveness. If something sounds wrong, or the unit isn't cooling, it may have lost its refrigerant charge.

Perform this little routine, Buchanan suggests, and you'll get through the hottest summer without losing your cool.

Cost hikes 'fatal' for home buyer

by LEONARD CURRY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Taxes and inflation have increased maintenance costs 303 per cent for homeowners in the past 20 years and priced eight of 10 potential home buyers out of the market, a national housing leader said recently.

"We cannot meet the housing needs of most Americans and that is a dangerous position to be in," said John C. Hart, president of the National Association of Home Builders.

Hart, a former Indiana state legislator and a Republican national committeeman, said one of the reasons is that the Ford administration has "no housing policy."

Hart said the NAHB's 76,000 members would soon become political, contributing to candidates who favor housing ownership for the average American who is now priced out of the market.

Despite $9.3 billion in net savings flowing into thrift institutions in January and February, Hart said mortgage interest rates are still a "high" 9 per cent "defying the law of supply and demand."

"Overbearing government has caused inflation in housing," Hart told a news conference.

He said interest rates for mortgages were high because of federal borrowing in the private sector. He called for the federal government to reduce its role in housing for state and local governments to relax building restrictions in order for more Americans to own their own homes.

Hart said the average American's income has risen at almost the same rate as prices in the past two decades, but the cost of borrowing money and maintaining a home has climbed even faster.

Disposable income rose 183 per cent from $3,998 in 1955 to $11,329 in 1975, despite higher social security taxes and new state and local income taxes, Hart said. In the same period, the median price of new homes has increased 191 per cent form $13,400 to $39,000.

But real estate taxes soared 341 per cent, insurance 321 per cent, maintenance and repairs 269 per cent and utilities 199 per cent. Mortgage interest climbed from 4.8 per cent to 9 per cent. With every 1 per cent rise in borrowing costs, Hart said 8 per cent of potential buyers are eliminated — or about eight of 10 over that period.

"When you add all these figures, total annual housing expenses increased 303 per cent," he said.

Despite his gloomy assessment, Hart said the climate for homeownership has improved in the past year. More money is available and interest rates are beginning to drop. But Hart said they are not dropping fast enough.

HOMEFINDING IS OUR BUSINESS

Home should be inspected before signing contract

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

The mail has been heavy with complaints from buyers of new houses. Primarily, they are of two types: misunderstandings as to what was promised or agreed upon, or complaints about faulty work for which the builder refuses to accept responsibility. A practical approach drawn from experience, is set forth below for coping with this problem.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: In July I signed an agreement to buy a new house with "stars in my eyes." I moved in November with great expectations, but was completely disillusioned by January.

The agreement stated that the house we were buying was to be "essentially similar to the sample house." The sample was elaborately landscaped — ours not at all. The sample had a wood-paneled game room — ours is plasterboard. The sample had wrought iron railings — ours has none.

The paint is peeling, the lot is poorly graded and the floors have deep scratches. My list of complaints includes 10 other items. The builder says he is finished and it is now my house. Suppose you were buying a new house. How would you have avoided these problems?

—REALLY BURNED.

I'm sorry your summer romance turned into a winter nightmare. There is a technique used by professionals which avoids these problems.

On the day before settlement, arrange for a formal inspection of the house, with a representative of the builder present. Make a list of every item requiring correction or modification. At settlement, have the builder acknowledge "in writing" that he will do the necessary work and accept responsibility. If he refuses, do not complete settlement. If you are not an expert on construction, hire one to represent you when you are making your pre-settlement inspection.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My divorce is about to become final! A good friend told me that since I will be living alone after all these years, I can get my real estate taxes reduced.

Could you advise me the procedure for doing this?

—ALONE AT LAST.

Your "good friend" is not passing out good advice. Real estate taxes are not determined by the number of people living in a house. I'm afraid your real estate taxes will remain the same.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: In one of your recent columns you advised a reader that a loss for shrubs caused by a very dry spell was a proper item for an income tax deduction. The problem is I have is not drought — but vandals.

While on vacation last summer, vandals broke our outdoor furniture, ripped siding from the house and broke several picture windows. The total cost was nearly $1,000. Are we entitled to an income tax deduction?

—PLEASE SAY YES.

Yes, a casualty loss resulting from vandalism may be considered a proper deduction for the homeowner, provided he has not been compensated by insurance. If the homeowner was partially compensated for the loss, he is still entitled to an income tax deduction for the portion not compensated.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I would like to add a family room to my house. My problem is that I don't have too much money to spend. Therefore, the room will have to be small, but I don't want it so small that it doesn't serve the purpose. Under the circumstances, what size would you recommend?

—NEED MORE ROOM.

A room 14 feet by 20 feet would make a fine family room without being too generous. If your financial problem is really severe, you could reduce the size to as small as 12 feet by 24 feet, and it would still be a useful room. However, I would not recommend a family room smaller than that.

Cost hikes 'fatal' for home buyer

by LEONARD CURRY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Taxes and inflation have increased maintenance costs 303 per cent for homeowners in the past 20 years and priced eight of 10 potential home buyers out of the market, a national housing leader said recently.

"We cannot meet the housing needs of most Americans and that is a dangerous position to be in," said John C. Hart, president of the National Association of Home Builders.

Hart, a former Indiana state legislator and a Republican national committeeman, said one of the reasons is that the Ford administration has "no housing policy."

Hart said the NAHB's 76,000 members would soon become political, contributing to candidates who favor housing ownership for the average American who is now priced out of the market.

Despite $9.3 billion in net savings flowing into thrift institutions in January and February, Hart said mortgage interest rates are still a "high" 9 per cent "defying the law of supply and demand."

"Overbearing government has caused inflation in housing," Hart told a news conference.

He said interest rates for mortgages were high because of federal borrowing in the private sector. He called for the federal government to reduce its role in housing for state and local governments to relax building restrictions in order for more Americans to own their own homes.

Hart said the average American's income has risen at almost the same rate as prices in the past two decades, but the cost of borrowing money and maintaining a home has climbed even faster.

Disposable income rose 183 per cent from $3,998 in 1955 to $11,329 in 1975, despite higher social security taxes and new state and local income taxes, Hart said. In the same period, the median price of new homes has increased 191 per cent form $13,400 to $39,000.

But real estate taxes soared 341 per cent, insurance 321 per cent, maintenance and repairs 269 per cent and utilities 199 per cent. Mortgage interest climbed from 4.8 per cent to 9 per cent. With every 1 per cent rise in borrowing costs, Hart said 8 per cent of potential buyers are eliminated — or about eight of 10 over that period.

"When you add all these figures, total annual housing expenses increased 303 per cent," he said.

Despite his gloomy assessment, Hart said the climate for homeownership has improved in the past year. More money is available and interest rates are beginning to drop. But Hart said they are not dropping fast enough.

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

The mail has been heavy with complaints from buyers of new houses. Primarily, they are of two types: misunderstandings as to what was promised or agreed upon, or complaints about faulty work for which the builder refuses to accept responsibility. A practical approach drawn from experience, is set forth below for coping with this problem.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: In July I signed an agreement to buy a new house with "stars in my eyes." I moved in November with great expectations, but was completely disillusioned by January.

The agreement stated that the house we were buying was to be "essentially similar to the sample house." The sample was elaborately landscaped — ours not at all. The sample had a wood-paneled game room — ours is plasterboard. The sample had wrought iron railings — ours has none.

The paint is peeling, the lot is poorly graded and the floors have deep scratches. My list of complaints includes 10 other items. The builder says he is finished and it is now my house. Suppose you were buying a new house. How would you have avoided these problems?

—REALLY BURNED.

I'm sorry your summer romance turned into a winter nightmare. There is a technique used by professionals which avoids these problems.

On the day before settlement, arrange for a formal inspection of the house, with a representative of the builder present. Make a list of every item requiring correction or modification. At settlement, have the builder acknowledge "in writing" that he will do the necessary work and accept responsibility. If he refuses, do not complete settlement. If you are not an expert on construction, hire one to represent you when you are making your pre-settlement inspection.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My divorce is about to become final! A good friend told me that since I will be living alone after all these years, I can get my real estate taxes reduced.

Could you advise me the procedure for doing this?

—ALONE AT LAST.

Your "good friend" is not passing out good advice. Real estate taxes are not determined by the number of people living in a house. I'm afraid your real estate taxes will remain the same.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: In one of your recent columns you advised a reader that a loss for shrubs caused by a very dry spell was a proper item for an income tax deduction. The problem is I have is not drought — but vandals.

While on vacation last summer, vandals broke our outdoor furniture, ripped siding from the house and broke several picture windows. The total cost was nearly $1,000. Are we entitled to an income tax deduction?

—PLEASE SAY YES.

Yes, a casualty loss resulting from vandalism may be considered a proper deduction for the homeowner, provided he has not been compensated by insurance. If the homeowner was partially compensated for the loss, he is still entitled to an income tax deduction for the portion not compensated.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I would like to add a family room to my house. My problem is that I don't have too much money to spend. Therefore, the room will have to be small, but I don't want it so small that it doesn't serve the purpose. Under the circumstances, what size would you recommend?

—NEED MORE ROOM.

A room 14 feet by 20 feet would make a fine family room without being too generous. If your financial problem is really severe, you could reduce the size to as small as 12 feet by 24 feet, and it would still be a useful room. However, I would not recommend a family room smaller than that.

'Pay yourself first'

Building a cash fund requires planning

Managing your family's money

by MERLE E. DOWD

"How do other people accumulate capital for investing, funds for educating their children and chunks of money to pay cash for big ticket items? It's all we can do to keep even!"

This plaintive query with infinite variations crops up in every seminar, group discussion and the mail.

You accumulate cash or capital when you spend less than you earn. Without a backlog of capital, you can't invest or build a fund for retirement income. To set aside cash to build your capital fund, try these proved ideas:

Pay yourself first! When you "keep even," you prove again one of Parkinson's Laws: "Spending increases to keep pace with income." Tax withholdings remove cash from your paycheck before you get it. You can also learn to live on less if you set aside part of your income before you pay bills or spend cash. So, "pay yourself first."

Leakpoints in your spending plan will begin drying up. Our spending priorities may change slightly. Some bills may not be paid as promptly, but your capital fund will begin collecting cash. After all, who is more important than you and your family? You deserve first crack at your cash rather than the leavings, if any, after everyone else has been paid. Paying yourself first is an old idea — but it works!

Another trick — automatic payroll deductions. If you can't muster the discipline to pay yourself, authorize your employer to deposit $25 or $50 from each paycheck in your credit union account. The psychology is the same as tax withholding; if you don't see the cash, you won't spend it. You soon adjust spending to your actual paycheck amount, and your capital builds regularly in the credit union — boosted along with the interest it draws.

Accumulate the cash you save from some economy in shopping or other change. If you give up smoking, set aside the dollars you previously spent for cigarettes in a sugar bowl or box with a slot. DON'T let the dollars slip back into your spending stream. Otherwise, they will simply disappear.

Watching the dollars accumulate motivates you to stick by your resolution to stop smoking. Or, if you pick up milk in a supermarket instead of paying for home delivery, set aside your savings. Accumulating those dollars will encourage you to consider other ways of spending less at the market.

One saving trick a student told me about warrants repeating. This young housewife desperately wanted a portable dishwasher. When it was her turn to wash the evening dishes, she extracted a half-dollar from her husband's pocket change. Either he paid, or he did the dishes! He soon learned to save 50 cents. In less than two years she bought her portable dishwasher at a cash discount.

Convert installment payments into savings. Suppose you're paying on a car or appliance loan. You breathe a big sigh and you slip the last check into the mail. Instead of rescheduling your spending, continue the monthly payments into a savings account. Continue the spending level you learned to live with while making the car payments. Or, declare a dividend and pay only half of the former car payment into a savings account. Either action is easier than carving new dollars out of currrent earning for regular savings.

The family coin trick still works. Each member picks a specific coin. Dad picks quarters. Others pick dimes, nickels — even pennies for youngsters. Every evening they examine all pockets. Each plops the coins he or she picked from his pocket into a jar. When full, deposit the coins in a slush fund to pay for special outings, a skiing trip or a holiday.

Send yourself a monthly bill for savings. Most of us are mentally programmed to respond to requests for payment. Send yourself a postcard with the words, "For monthly savings. Due on account — $50." Stack it along with the other bills and pay it routinely.

Whatever system you use, savings build your capital fund. Once established, a capital fund multiplies and grows on its own. But you must plant the seed with money extracted from current income.

"Your Personal Money Plan" is a complete guide to help you get the most from your money. For a copy, send $1 and your printed name and address to Managing Your Family's Money, in care of this newspaper.

COLOR IT USEFUL! Here's a pocket of delight where once there was a service pantry. Now Lees' Enchantress carpet is the colorful base for a new wine-tasting room. By using two colors, designer Ron Renner created a handsome bordered motif for the floor. The same colors have been used on the folding screen.

Your home

by Carolyn Murray

It's time to take inventory — space inventory, that is. Most of us squander square footage in our apartments and our houses. And with the high cost of real estate, we should tighten the space use at home.

For example, most apartment floor plans have an area at the front door that goes awasting. At most we place a single chest and a mirror in the entry to warm it up.

In older houses, many of us have breakfast rooms we never use, because who sits down to breakfast as a family? Very few of us, except perhaps on Sunday mornings.

No need to obliterate the breakfast room or the entry. Instead, rethink how to use such oddball spaces. The room showed today is a good example of a recycled space. It had been a pantry between kitchen and dining room, with an extra door into the hall. The family lifestyle certainly didn't require this convenience, and when the kitchen was remodeled this extra storage space was not needed.

With interior designer Ron Renner as the idea person, the family began to explore a better use of the space. Since all but one of the children were college age, it seemed silly to convert the space to a family/TV-watching room — the youngster already had a television and portable phonograph in his room!

But wine, as a special interest, had been flowering in the entertaining patterns of the adults. The parents had taken a course in wine appreciation and made a tour of several wineries. Their friends also had been turned on to a few special dinner wines.

So talk developed about the possibility of a miniature wine cellar and tasting room. But the owners felt the space had to be used for other family activities as well.

Renner solved their requests nicely. In this newly redecorated room the Sunday brunch can still be pleasant, the family card game is possible and the weekly wine tastings with friends has become a tradition.

The family contributed some of the labor, installing the ceiling beams of styrofoam and constructing the storage racks for the wine. The floor covering provided an exciting color scheme: raspberry sherbet and coffee bean, found in Lees' "Enchantress" carpeting.

The border system for the heat-set Dacron polyester carpet was subtly repeated in the folding screen. (The screen hides the door to the hall; that was one door too many.)

A neat little settee is also tucked into the area and it provides a good spot for mid-afternoon tea and coffee breaks, or cookbook-reading. The whole new program for this room is a triumph of pleasure and efficiency.

'Pay yourself first'

Building a cash fund requires planning

by MERLE E. DOWD

"How do other people accumulate capital for investing, funds for educating their children and chunks of money to pay cash for big ticket items? It's all we can do to keep even!"

This plaintive query with infinite variations crops up in every seminar, group discussion and the mail.

You accumulate cash or capital when you spend less than you earn. Without a backlog of capital, you can't invest or build a fund for retirement income. To set aside cash to build your capital fund, try these proved ideas:

Pay yourself first! When you "keep even," you prove again one of Parkinson's Laws: "Spending increases to keep pace with income." Tax withholdings remove cash from your paycheck before you get it. You can also learn to live on less if you set aside part of your income before you pay bills or spend cash. So, "pay yourself first."

Leakpoints in your spending plan will begin drying up. Our spending priorities may change slightly. Some bills may not be paid as promptly, but your capital fund will begin collecting cash. After all, who is more important than you and your family? You deserve first crack at your cash rather than the leavings, if any, after everyone else has been paid. Paying yourself first is an old idea — but it works!

Another trick — automatic payroll deductions. If you can't muster the discipline to pay yourself, authorize your employer to deposit $25 or $50 from each paycheck in your credit union account. The psychology is the same as tax withholding; if you don't see the cash, you won't spend it. You soon adjust spending to your actual paycheck amount, and your capital builds regularly in the credit union — boosted along with the interest it draws.

Accumulate the cash you save from some economy in shopping or other change. If you give up smoking, set aside the dollars you previously spent for cigarettes in a sugar bowl or box with a slot. DON'T let the dollars slip back into your spending stream. Otherwise, they will simply disappear.

Watching the dollars accumulate motivates you to stick by your resolution to stop smoking. Or, if you pick up milk in a supermarket instead of paying for home delivery, set aside your savings. Accumulating those dollars will encourage you to consider other ways of spending less at the market.

One saving trick a student told me about warrants repeating. This young housewife desperately wanted a portable dishwasher. When it was her turn to wash the evening dishes, she extracted a half-dollar from her husband's pocket change. Either he paid, or he did the dishes! He soon learned to save 50 cents. In less than two years she bought her portable dishwasher at a cash discount.

Convert installment payments into savings. Suppose you're paying on a car or appliance loan. You breathe a big sigh and you slip the last check into the mail. Instead of rescheduling your spending, continue the monthly payments into a savings account. Continue the spending level you learned to live with while making the car payments. Or, declare a dividend and pay only half of the former car payment into a savings account. Either action is easier than carving new dollars out of currrent earning for regular savings.

The family coin trick still works. Each member picks a specific coin. Dad picks quarters. Others pick dimes, nickels — even pennies for youngsters. Every evening they examine all pockets. Each plops the coins he or she picked from his pocket into a jar. When full, deposit the coins in a slush fund to pay for special outings, a skiing trip or a holiday.

Send yourself a monthly bill for savings. Most of us are mentally programmed to respond to requests for payment. Send yourself a postcard with the words, "For monthly savings. Due on account — $50." Stack it along with the other bills and pay it routinely.

Whatever system you use, savings build your capital fund. Once established, a capital fund multiplies and grows on its own. But you must plant the seed with money extracted from current income.

"Your Personal Money Plan" is a complete guide to help you get the most from your money. For a copy, send $1 and your printed name and address to Managing Your Family's Money, in care of this newspaper.

Bankers attack big government

"Something very strange has happened to the United States government on the way to the Bicentennial," according to Jerome L. Howard, president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America (MBA).

Addressing a recent MBA national mortgage banking conference in Atlanta, Howard said, "The system of checks and balances among the three branches of government and the explicit separation of powers have been eroded as each branch extends its grasp of power into the other's domain and all branches grasp for power over the lives of citizens."

"The Congress no longer has confidence in the executive branch's willingness to carry out its programs. That is why it passes laws that are loaded with administrative details. The executive branch responds with regulations that tell the private sector that supports its programs which 'i's' to dot and which 't's' to cross. Neither side seems willing to recognize the rigors of the market place. Both seem confident that they can repeal the laws of economics."

As an example, Howard referred to a bill in the House of Representatives which proposes changes to Regulation Q, which sets interest rates that commercial banks, savings banks, and savings and loan associations may pay on bank deposits. He said that "no one seems to have the foggiest notion" whether the proposed changes would be an adequate incentive for financial institutions to increase their investments in residential mortgages.

Carpenters set training signup week

Do you want to be a carpenter? Then circle the week of March 29 through April 2 on your calendar.

That is when the Carpenters Apprentice and Trainee Program will be accepting applications for apprenticeship in carpentry for people who live in Cook, Lake and Dupage Counties in Illinois.

"It isn't necessary to be the first to file an application," said Adolph Dardar, coordinator of the apprentice program.

Applicants must file in person at the Carpenters Apprentice and Trainee office, 12 East Erie Street, Chicago, Illinois, Monday, March 29 through Friday, April 2, between 9:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Applications will be accepted for three branches of the trade: General carpentry, millwright and resilient flooring-carpet laying.

Applications received on any day during the week of March 29-April 2, will get equal consideration. Any person is eligible to apply if he or she meets the following qualifications:

1. Is at least 17 years of age;
2. Has successfully completed two years of high school. Applicants are advised to bring an official copy of their high school grade transcript when applying, or have it sent directly to the Apprentice Program office;
3. Is a resident of Cook, Lake or DuPage Counties, Illinois;
4. Has a social security card to submit when applying.

Dardar said the March 29-April 2 period is the first time in two years that apprenticeship applications are being accepted.

COLOR IT USEFUL! Here's a pocket of delight where once there was a service pantry. Now Lees' Enchantress carpet is the colorful base for a new wine-tasting room. By using two colors, designer Ron Renner created a handsome bordered motif for the floor. The same colors have been used on the folding screen.

Your home

by Carolyn Murray

It's time to take inventory — space inventory, that is. Most of us squander square footage in our apartments and our houses. And with the high cost of real estate, we should tighten the space use at home.

For example, most apartment floor plans have an area at the front door that goes awasting. At most we place a single chest and a mirror in the entry to warm it up.

In older houses, many of us have breakfast rooms we never use, because who sits down to breakfast as a family? Very few of us, except perhaps on Sunday mornings.

No need to obliterate the breakfast room or the entry. Instead, rethink how to use such oddball spaces. The room showed today is a good example of a recycled space. It had been a pantry between kitchen and dining room, with an extra door into the hall. The family lifestyle certainly didn't require this convenience, and when the kitchen was remodeled this extra storage space was not needed.

With interior designer Ron Renner as the idea person, the family began to explore a better use of the space. Since all but one of the children were college age, it seemed silly to convert the space to a family/TV-watching room — the youngster already had a television and portable phonograph in his room!

But wine, as a special interest, had been flowering in the entertaining patterns of the adults. The parents had taken a course in wine appreciation and made a tour of several wineries. Their friends also had been turned on to a few special dinner wines.

So talk developed about the possibility of a miniature wine cellar and tasting room. But the owners felt the space had to be used for other family activities as well.

Renner solved their requests nicely. In this newly redecorated room the Sunday brunch can still be pleasant, the family card game is possible and the weekly wine tastings with friends has become a tradition.

The family contributed some of the labor, installing the ceiling beams of styrofoam and constructing the storage racks for the wine. The floor covering provided an exciting color scheme: raspberry sherbet and coffee bean, found in Lees' "Enchantress" carpeting.

The border system for the heat-set Dacron polyester carpet was subtly repeated in the folding screen. (The screen hides the door to the hall; that was one door too many.)

A neat little settee is also tucked into the area and it provides a good spot for mid-afternoon tea and coffee breaks, or cookbook-reading. The whole new program for this room is a triumph of pleasure and efficiency.

Bankers attack big government

"Something very strange has happened to the United States government on the way to the Bicentennial," according to Jerome L. Howard, president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America (MBA).

Addressing a recent MBA national mortgage banking conference in Atlanta, Howard said, "The system of checks and balances among the three branches of government and the explicit separation of powers have been eroded as each branch extends its grasp of power into the other's domain and all branches grasp for power over the lives of citizens."

"The Congress no longer has confidence in the executive branch's willingness to carry out its programs. That is why it passes laws that are loaded with administrative details. The executive branch responds with regulations that tell the private sector that supports its programs which 'i's' to dot and which 't's' to cross. Neither side seems willing to recognize the rigors of the market place. Both seem confident that they can repeal the laws of economics."

As an example, Howard referred to a bill in the House of Representatives which proposes changes to Regulation Q, which sets interest rates that commercial banks, savings banks, and savings and loan associations may pay on bank deposits. He said that "no one seems to have the foggiest notion" whether the proposed changes would be an adequate incentive for financial institutions to increase their investments in residential mortgages.

Carpenters set training signup week

Do you want to be a carpenter? Then circle the week of March 29 through April 2 on your calendar.

That is when the Carpenters Apprentice and Trainee Program will be accepting applications for apprenticeship in carpentry for people who live in Cook, Lake and Dupage Counties in Illinois.

"It isn't necessary to be the first to file an application," said Adolph Dardar, coordinator of the apprentice program.

Applicants must file in person at the Carpenters Apprentice and Trainee office, 12 East Erie Street, Chicago, Illinois, Monday, March 29 through Friday, April 2, between 9:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Applications will be accepted for three branches of the trade: General carpentry, millwright and resilient flooring-carpet laying.

Applications received on any day during the week of March 29-April 2, will get equal consideration. Any person is eligible to apply if he or she meets the following qualifications:

1. Is at least 17 years of age;
2. Has successfully completed two years of high school. Applicants are advised to bring an official copy of their high school grade transcript when applying, or have it sent directly to the Apprentice Program office;
3. Is a resident of Cook, Lake or DuPage Counties, Illinois;
4. Has a social security card to submit when applying.

Dardar said the March 29-April 2 period is the first time in two years that apprenticeship applications are being accepted.

Highest level in three years

Stocks shatter 1,000 in buying spree

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones soared through the 1,000 level Wednesday to its highest level in more than three years during a heavily traded buying spree on the New York Stock Exchange that apparently revived the new year rally.

The Dow, scoring its best gain in three weeks, climbed 13.78 points to close at 1,009.21, the best since it finished at 1,018.66 on Jan. 23, 1973. The volume of 32,610,000 shares, up sharply from the 22,450,000 Tuesday, was the heaviest since 34,320,440 shares changed hands Feb. 26.

The Dow's gain was the best since it rose 15.82 on March 8. A 13.14-point winner Tuesday, it had been ahead more than 16 points before late profit taking trimmed the advance.

THE CLOSELY-WATCHED market barometer, which reached 1,003.31 on March 11, has gained 156.80 points so far this year while pushing toward its all time high of 1,051.70 set Jan. 11, 1973. Since reaching a 12-year low of 577.60 on Dec. 6, 1974, the blue-chip average has soared 431.61 points.

More is in store, according to most analysts, including Newton Zinder, vice pres. of E. F. Hutton & Co. "The market is basking in the best of all worlds," Zinder said. "The economy is improving and interest rates have declined."

The rally, which has a carryover from Tuesday's surge, also drove other averages sharply higher. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed 1.18 to a new high of 103.42, the NYSE common stock index 0.60 to 55.15 and the average price of an NYSE common share 38 cents.

Advances topped declines, 1,068 to 455, among the 1,888 issues crossing the tape, a further demonstration of the breath of the rally.

Analysts said investors were encouraged there had been only moderate selling pressures during the past few weeks and came off the sidelines when they saw prices were not going much lower.

OILS AND some related issues, were pacesetters amid growing prospects of a pickup in gasoline demand and firming prices. Also, the group has received recommendations from some analysts.

Gulf Oil was the second most active Big Board issue, up 5/8 to 24¾ on 321,300 shares.

G. D. Searle, a Tuesday pacesetter with a 1-7/8-point gain, led the Big Board actives, off 1/8 to 16¾ on 481,200 shares, including an opening block of 124,100 shares at 17¼. It had been higher most of the day. The company Tuesday said it was forming a new unit to handle a new computerized body scanner system.

Prices closed higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by nine cents. Volume totaled 3,990,000 shares, compared with 2,730,000 traded Tuesday.

Faces 60-day suspension

Real estate agent loses license

Director Ronald E. Stackler of the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education announced the department has suspended the real estate license of Maywood real estae broker John C. Cruzat.

Cruzat, 1029 S. 17th Ave., Maywood, was found to have accepted $560 in earnest money from a Maywood couple in connection with a real estate transaction. The Real Estate Examining Committee found that Cruzat did not provide the couple with a real estate contract upon receipt of the money. When the transaction was not consumated, Cruzat was asked to return the money on a number of occasions but failed to do so, according to committee findings.

The department has ordered Cruzat's license suspended for 60 days. He is entitled to judicial review of the department's action, but he must surrender his real estate broker's license if he does not take the matter to court.

The department is acting under Section 115 (e) 7 and 21 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, which cover failure to remit or account for moneys or documents belonging to others and violating departmental rules and regulations.

Director Stackler said that his action was part of the department's continuing effort to protect Illinois consumers. "We will not tolerate this kind of unethical conduct," Stackler said. "Our licensees have been put on notice that they face discipline from this department if they violate the laws and regulations governing their professions and trades."

Seeks discrimination end

New lease aids renter

While there is no argument that the amount of monthly rental is probably the most interesting number on your May 1 apartment lease, it is not necessarily the only important number.

The other number, almost too obscure to notice, is "Form 15."

It is the number of the new lease developed by the Chicago Real Estate Board and introduced for the spring 1975 rental season. It has a lot to do with how much satisfaction and peace of mind you might have as a renter.

According to William D. Sally, vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc. and general manager of its property management division, it is the most liberal lease form available. He said that Baird & Warner has adopted Form 15, which took several years to develop, "because we feel the old form discriminates unfairly against the tenant."

If your present lease is more than a year old, it was not Form 15. Even if you renewed your present lease a year ago it's possible that it was not Form 15 since many large management firms chose to retain the old lease, Form 12R, or continued to use their own leases, which are not the same as the liberalized Form 15.

You can determine if the lease you sign is Form 15 by looking for the designation, "Form 15, copyrighted by the Chicago Real Estate Board," on the face of the lease. Copies of blank Form 15 leases are sold at many stationery and office supply stores in the Chicago area, or you can purchase one and compare it with the lease you now have. More than 300,000 copies of the new form have been sold in the past year.

Sally said Form 15 contains several features demanded by tenant organizations and goes far toward eliminating provisions which many tenants felt were objectionable and which could be used against them by a landlord.

"Form 15 describes both the tenant's and the landlord's rights as well as obligations, whereas in the old lease, almost everything was on the side of the landlord with no remedies available to the tenant," Sally said.

For example, Form 15 eliminates the offensive "confession of judgment" clause. With this clause, the landlord can go to court against a tenant who hasn't paid his rent, and the tenant has no remedy because he has confessed to a judgment against him. To put it another way, he has admitted his guilt in advance.

The new lease also specifies the way the landlord must maintain weather protection, plumbing, heating, water, appliances, grounds, floors, walls, ceilings, and elevators. At the same time, it spells out the tenant's obligation to keep the apartment in good order.

For the first time, the lease gives the tenant the right to have guests for extended periods, although the tenant is at all times responsible for the actions of his guests.

The lease also defines "abandonment." Before, if the tenant took a two or three-week vacation, he could be considered to have abandoned his apartment and the landlord could repossess it. This is no longer true.

Other tenant benefits provided by Form 15 include:

- The right of the landlord to enter the apartment is limited. Other lease forms permit the landlord the right of unlimited access.
- The tenant can more easily sublease the apartment. The lease spells out what subleasing entails and also defines the standards of acceptability of a new tenant. Before, the landlord could endlessly thwart a tenant who wished to sublease.
- If one or two people are the tenant and one or both die, the surviving tenant or the heirs can generally terminate the lease. Before, the lease remained as an obligation of the survivor or the estate.
- The tenant can terminate the lease with 30 days notice if the landlord unjustifiably fails to live up to the terms. Before, the tenant had no remedy.
- The landlord must give 30 days' notice before he can terminate the lease becuase of the tenant's false statement in his lease application.
- The landlord must return the security deposit within 30 days of the end of the lease, unless he is using it to cure a rent default of pay for damages.

While the new Form 15 is much longer than the old Form 12R which it replaces, it is much more specific and free of obsolete and unenforceable provisions, Sally said.

Real estate test review planned

The state of Illinois is giving the examination in Springfield on April 13, 1976, for those seeking to be licensed as real estate salesmen or brokers.

Real Estate Education Co. scheduled two All Day Reviews to prepare students for that state exam. One all day review will be held April 10 at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge, 8201 Higgins Rd., Chicago. The second all day review is held April 12, the day before the state exam, at the St. Nicholas Hotel, 4th and Jefferson, Springfield. Both review sessions begin at 9:30 a.m. Tuition is $35 for those preparing to take the salesman's exam and $40 for those preparing for the broker's exam, with a $10 discount to students of the Real Estate Education Co., Chicago.

Stocks shatter 1,000 in buying spree

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones soared through the 1,000 level Wednesday to its highest level in more than three years during a heavily traded buying spree on the New York Stock Exchange that apparently revived the new year rally.

The Dow, scoring its best gain in three weeks, climbed 13.78 points to close at 1,009.21, the best since it finished at 1,018.66 on Jan. 23, 1973. The volume of 32,610,000 shares, up sharply from the 22,450,000 Tuesday, was the heaviest since 34,320,440 shares changed hands Feb. 26.

The Dow's gain was the best since it rose 15.82 on March 8. A 13.14-point winner Tuesday, it had been ahead more than 16 points before late profit taking trimmed the advance.

THE CLOSELY-WATCHED market barometer, which reached 1,003.31 on March 11, has gained 156.80 points so far this year while pushing toward its all time high of 1,051.70 set Jan. 11, 1973. Since reaching a 12-year low of 577.60 on Dec. 6, 1974, the blue-chip average has soared 431.61 points.

More is in store, according to most analysts, including Newton Zinder, vice pres. of E. F. Hutton & Co. "The market is basking in the best of all worlds," Zinder said. "The economy is improving and interest rates have declined."

The rally, which has a carryover from Tuesday's surge, also drove other averages sharply higher. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed 1.18 to a new high of 103.42, the NYSE common stock index 0.60 to 55.15 and the average price of an NYSE common share 38 cents.

Advances topped declines, 1,068 to 455, among the 1,888 issues crossing the tape, a further demonstration of the breath of the rally.

Analysts said investors were encouraged there had been only moderate selling pressures during the past few weeks and came off the sidelines when they saw prices were not going much lower.

OILS AND some related issues, were pacesetters amid growing prospects of a pickup in gasoline demand and firming prices. Also, the group has received recommendations from some analysts.

Gulf Oil was the second most active Big Board issue, up 5/8 to 24¾ on 321,300 shares.

G. D. Searle, a Tuesday pacesetter with a 1-7/8-point gain, led the Big Board actives, off 1/8 to 16¾ on 481,200 shares, including an opening block of 124,100 shares at 17¼. It had been higher most of the day. The company Tuesday said it was forming a new unit to handle a new computerized body scanner system.

Prices closed higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by nine cents. Volume totaled 3,990,000 shares, compared with 2,730,000 traded Tuesday.

Faces 60-day suspension

Real estate agent loses license

Director Ronald E. Stackler of the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education announced the department has suspended the real estate license of Maywood real estae broker John C. Cruzat.

Cruzat, 1029 S. 17th Ave., Maywood, was found to have accepted $560 in earnest money from a Maywood couple in connection with a real estate transaction. The Real Estate Examining Committee found that Cruzat did not provide the couple with a real estate contract upon receipt of the money. When the transaction was not consumated, Cruzat was asked to return the money on a number of occasions but failed to do so, according to committee findings.

The department has ordered Cruzat's license suspended for 60 days. He is entitled to judicial review of the department's action, but he must surrender his real estate broker's license if he does not take the matter to court.

The department is acting under Section 115 (e) 7 and 21 of the Illinois Revised Statutes, which cover failure to remit or account for moneys or documents belonging to others and violating departmental rules and regulations.

Director Stackler said that his action was part of the department's continuing effort to protect Illinois consumers. "We will not tolerate this kind of unethical conduct," Stackler said. "Our licensees have been put on notice that they face discipline from this department if they violate the laws and regulations governing their professions and trades."

Use these four basic rules to hold down income tax

How can you hold down your income tax bill this year?

The same way you can, and should, do every year: make full use of the four basic tools for reducing the income subject to taxes, for lowering the rate at which the tax is levied and in some cases for having part of the tax forgiven. According to Ralph Fujimoto, chairman of the taxation committee, Illinois CPA Society, the four are: adjustments, deductions, exemptions and tax credits.

Adjustments, such as sick pay and moving expenses, are attractive because they reduce gross income, leaving "adjusted gross income," a much smaller target for the tax collector to aim at.

Deductions (for taxes and interest paid, contributions, medical costs, etc.) are nice, too: they, and the exemptions we get for ourselves and our dependents, reduce adjustment gross income still further — to "taxable income."

In the meantime, what new tax-saving opportunities are available this year? The big changes over the 1974 tax picture are:

- If you use the standard deduction instead of itemizing, you can now deduct 16 per cent of adjusted gross income, with a maximum of $2,300 for single persons, and $2,600 for couples filing joint returns or surviving spouses. For a married person filing a separate return, the maximum is $1,300.

- There's also a new minimum standard deduction of $1,600 for singles, $1,900 for married couples, but you don't have to compute it because it's built into the tax tables.

- The level of gross income below which you don't even have to file a tax return has been raised to $2,350 for singles, $3.400 for joint filers, $2,650 for a surviving spouse and $750 if married and filing separately. (Each person over 65 years of age is entitled to an additional $750 exemption.)

- Because of efforts last summer to stimulate the lagging economy, all taxpayers, regardless of their tax bill, can subtract $30 from what they owe, plus another $30 for each dependent.

- Qualified low-income taxpayers, with adjusted gross income under $8,000, get a credit of 10 per cent of earned income, up to a maximum credit of $400 on $4,000 of earned income. They lose the credit at the same 10 per cent rate as their income rises above $4,000 so the credit is lost when earned income or adjusted gross income hits $8,000. If the credit exceeds taxes owed, the excess is paid to the taxpayer like a refund. To qualify, you must have maintained a household in this country with at least one dependent child.

- If, in order to hold a job, you had to pay for the care of a dependent who is under 15 or disabled or your spouse, you may be able to claim up to $4,800 a year of such expenses, if your combined incomes did not exceed $18,000.

- If you bought a new home in 1975, under certain conditions, you may be eligible for a tax credit of 5 per cent of the purchase price, up to $2,000.

- If you sold a home, you have 18 months, rather than 12, to defer any capital gain tax by reinvesting and occupying another home costing at least as much. (You have 24 months if you build a new home as the replacement, construction having begun within 18 months of the sale.)

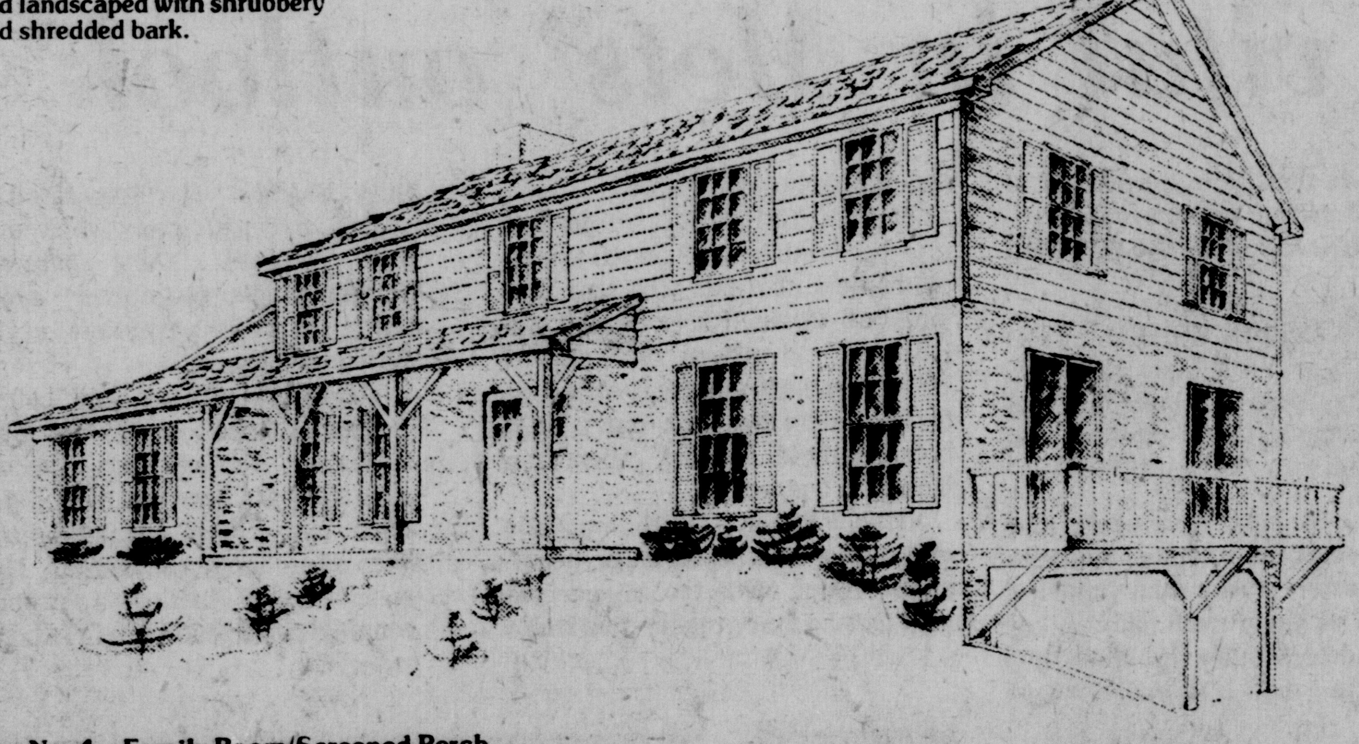
THE IDEA HOME

The home pictured below, like most of our homes, includes a full basement, three car garage with electric door opener, air conditioning, humidification, brick or stone veneer, cedar siding, screened-in porch, oak cabinetry and two fireplaces. In addition, our Idea Home has many unique concepts:

Idea No. 1—Site Planning
As with all homes designed by Barrington Construction Company, the Idea Home was individually designed for the natural terrain of the lot. There is a dry creek that meanders diagonally across the property with trees along each side. The home was sited to the side of the creek and to the rear of the trees on the high part of the lot. The walk from the drive to the front door is made with used railroad ties. There are several retaining walls made with used railroad ties and landscaped with shrubbery and shredded bark.

Idea No. 2—Entrance
The centrally located foyer distributes traffic to six areas: the living room, family room, kitchen, laundry room, den, second floor. The foyer floor is a country provincial ceramic tile. The exterior door locks, interior door knobs, switch plates, cabinet handles, and bathroom hardware are the same pattern in order to develop a consistent trim finish theme.

Idea No. 3—Kitchen
The kitchen is designed in a country motif. The cabinets have solid oak panelled doors in distressed walnut. Total cooking capability is provided by a microwave oven, a self-clean oven, ceramic cooktop, indoor grill and griddle. The ceramic tile cooking center is framed with heavy, solid cedar beams and columns dark stained. A new type of kitchen sink has an oversized compartment for washing large pots and pans. Instead of peninsular wall cabinets which cut the kitchen in half, the wall cabinets are installed between the base cabinets and the breakfast area to make a 3′ wide cabinet and countertop area and workspace. A 1′ high back on the pass-through countertop shields the kitchen from the breakfast area. There is a 30′ expanse of glass across the kitchen, breakfast room, and family room.



Idea No. 4—Family Room/Screened Porch
The family room is panelled with rough-sawn horizontal cedar boards of the same pattern as the exterior siding. The ceiling has heavy rough-sawn cedar beams that are solid timber. To each side of the fireplace are sliding glass doors leading to a large screened-in porch. The screening goes from the floor to the underside of the cedar rafters which are 16′ high at their highest point.

Idea No. 5—Laundry Room/Powder Room
The laundry is finished uniquely so that it may be considered as part of the foyer, part of the den-guest room, or a hallway to the powder room. If the pocket door between the laundry and foyer is open and the closet doors are closed over the laundry fixtures, it becomes a hallway to the luxurious powder room. If the pocket door is shut, the powder room becomes a private bath for the den-guest room.

Idea no. 6—Den/Guest Room
The den-guest room has a full wall of bookshelves. It has windows to the south and west. It also has sliding glass doors to the porch on the north side. With glass on three sides, the den-guest room is a very light-bright room.

Idea No. 7—Owner's Suite
Upstairs, there are four large bedrooms. The owner's suite is several rooms in one. A fireplace divides the sleeping area from the sitting room. There are sliding glass doors from the sitting room to a wood deck overlooking a lake. The dressing room has three-way, full-length mirror doors, a double walkin closet with 24′ of clothespole, and a large linen closet. There are double bath vanities with 24k gold plated faucets. The vanity top is raised an extra 4″ in height and has a marble cosmetic ledge. There is a luminous ceiling over the vanity area with full height mirror completely covering three walls.

Individually Designed One-Of-A-Kind Homes In A Unique Environment

In South Barrington, you will find a secluded community of 1-2 acre homesites on high, rolling terrain overlooking miles of countryside and small private ponds. Some lots are on one of the largest residential lakes in Cook County with four season recreation. The Village of Barrington, shopping, schools, golf courses, indoor tennis, other activites are minutes away.

Barrington Construction Company designs and builds a one-of-a-kind home to fit the individual tastes of each owner. Home types include ranch, hillside ranch, Cape Cod, and 2-story. Home styles include colonial, traditional, Spanish, and rustic contemporary. If you have some dramatic, unusual ideas of your own for a new home, come see us. We'll take the time and effort to design and build a home for your particular lifestyle. Call 381-6288 for an appointment to discuss your plans and visit our Idea Home.

Seeks discrimination end

New lease aids renter

While there is no argument that the amount of monthly rental is probably the most interesting number on your May 1 apartment lease, it is not necessarily the only important number.

The other number, almost too obscure to notice, is "Form 15."

It is the number of the new lease developed by the Chicago Real Estate Board and introduced for the spring 1975 rental season. It has a lot to do with how much satisfaction and peace of mind you might have as a renter.

According to William D. Sally, vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc. and general manager of its property management division, it is the most liberal lease form available. He said that Baird & Warner has adopted Form 15, which took several years to develop, "because we feel the old form discriminates unfairly against the tenant."

If your present lease is more than a year old, it was not Form 15. Even if you renewed your present lease a year ago it's possible that it was not Form 15 since many large management firms chose to retain the old lease, Form 12R, or continued to use their own leases, which are not the same as the liberalized Form 15.

You can determine if the lease you sign is Form 15 by looking for the designation, "Form 15, copyrighted by the Chicago Real Estate Board," on the face of the lease. Copies of blank Form 15 leases are sold at many stationery and office supply stores in the Chicago area, or you can purchase one and compare it with the lease you now have. More than 300,000 copies of the new form have been sold in the past year.

Sally said Form 15 contains several features demanded by tenant organizations and goes far toward eliminating provisions which many tenants felt were objectionable and which could be used against them by a landlord.

"Form 15 describes both the tenant's and the landlord's rights as well as obligations, whereas in the old lease, almost everything was on the side of the landlord with no remedies available to the tenant," Sally said.

For example, Form 15 eliminates the offensive "confession of judgment" clause. With this clause, the landlord can go to court against a tenant who hasn't paid his rent, and the tenant has no remedy because he has confessed to a judgment against him. To put it another way, he has admitted his guilt in advance.

The new lease also specifies the way the landlord must maintain weather protection, plumbing, heating, water, appliances, grounds, floors, walls, ceilings, and elevators. At the same time, it spells out the tenant's obligation to keep the apartment in good order.

For the first time, the lease gives the tenant the right to have guests for extended periods, although the tenant is at all times responsible for the actions of his guests.

The lease also defines "abandonment." Before, if the tenant took a two or three-week vacation, he could be considered to have abandoned his apartment and the landlord could repossess it. This is no longer true.

Other tenant benefits provided by Form 15 include:

- The right of the landlord to enter the apartment is limited. Other lease forms permit the landlord the right of unlimited access.
- The tenant can more easily sublease the apartment. The lease spells out what subleasing entails and also defines the standards of acceptability of a new tenant. Before, the landlord could endlessly thwart a tenant who wished to sublease.
- If one or two people are the tenant and one or both die, the surviving tenant or the heirs can generally terminate the lease. Before, the lease remained as an obligation of the survivor or the estate.
- The tenant can terminate the lease with 30 days notice if the landlord unjustifiably fails to live up to the terms. Before, the tenant had no remedy.
- The landlord must give 30 days' notice before he can terminate the lease becuase of the tenant's false statement in his lease application.
- The landlord must return the security deposit within 30 days of the end of the lease, unless he is using it to cure a rent default of pay for damages.

While the new Form 15 is much longer than the old Form 12R which it replaces, it is much more specific and free of obsolete and unenforceable provisions, Sally said.

Harper launches baseball season today

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Loaded with eight returning players and the best freshman recruits in the school's history, the Harper Hawks will open the area baseball season with an ambitious eight game road trip through the south.

The Hawks open today with Southwestern in Harrisburg, Ill. and take their show from there to Kentucky and Tennessee as they play eight games in four days.

"We don't have a set lineup," said head coach John Eliasik. "That's what we're hoping to find out from this trip."

What Eliasik may find is that his Hawks are better than the team that posted a 16-10 record last year and finished third in the Skyway Conference, the toughest Juco baseball loop in the state.

Eliasik put on his recruiting helmet and landed five key freshmen, all of whom could step into starting roles before the season is very old.

"We got probably the best batch of freshmen out of our district ever," Eliasik enthused. "We're expecting a lot from this group."

Eliasik is concerned with pitching depth, a must in the long conference grind since Harper moved to the N4C, and freshmen Dar Townsend and Scott Green have the arms and the stuff to help.

Townsend was the Mid-Suburban League's Player of the Year last season.

He was the mainstay of the Arlington High School pitching staff, tossing a perfect game against Hersey in the state tournament, and did time behind the plate when he wasn't on the mound. Townsend is also a deadly hitter.

Green, the starting center for Harper's basketball team this year, is a pitcher and outfielder out of Rolling Meadows High School.

Eliasik's other prize freshmen are Marty Luquet and Joe Colamino, a pair of steady-gloved infielders from Conant, and Greg Meyer, an all-conference outfielder from Palatine.

"We have some standout freshmen," Eliasik stated.

He also has some returnees to go with them, including Dave Patterson, the leading pitcher on the staff last year.

Patterson won six games for the Hawks last year and worked 65 innings, the most on the staff, for a 1.61 earned run average.

He also hit .342 as a designated hitter and was a first team selection on the All-Skyway Conference team.

Another all-conference sophomore is Dave Mills, who trailed only the departed Rigg Lile in the team batting derby with an average of .367.

Tom Good, a .262 hitter last year, is the third starter returning. Eliasik is trying him as a pitcher and sees progress there.

The other sophomores on the team are Gary Oslance, Steve Arnieri, Howie Bauer, Dave Mnichowicz and Gary Gustafson.

Tuneups continue for league meet

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

Hersey's surprise victory over Rolling Meadows in Tuesday's indoor track duel wasn't necessarily a surprise to Hersey head coach Larry Travis.

"We've got a pretty good dual-meet team," Travis said. "We've been really close in some of our losses, and our wins over two good teams in the last week (Meadows and Hoffman Estates) have got the kids pumped up."

The Huskies, with their 77-46 win Tuesday, knocked off one of the league favorites in next Wednesday's Mid-Suburban indoor championships. Rolling Meadows, along with Palatine, Hoffman, Fremd and maybe a couple of other teams will challenge Forest View for the MSL title.

But Travis knows that it would take some outstanding efforts by his athletes up and down the line for his Huskies to be near the top next Wednesday.

One key athlete is "Chip" Newren, who came out following the conclusion of the basketball season and reached 6-1 in the high jump in his first meet. Newren could give the Huskies some unexpected points, but he'll probably have to go higher than 6-1 in a loaded field of MSL high jumpers.

Travis expects scoring from triple jumpers Dave Koelper, who has surpassed 42 feet, and shotputter Dave Komiss, whose best is 53 feet. Tony Becker and Matt Zakula are likely to score in those events, too.

But Hersey is also counting on several "sleepers," including quarter-miler Al Mitchell, sprinter Gary Modesto, and a speedy mile relay team that might be one of the best in the league.

Koelper, a key member on the relay teams, may also be a threat in the long jump, where he reached 20-1¼ against Meadows for his best mark of the season.

Rolling Meadows coach Joe Vitton took the loss in stride and suggested that some of his athletes might pass up the Oak Park Relays this Saturday in order to concentrate on the conference championships.

"This was probably the most 'down' meet we've had this year," said Vitton, who indicated that some of his Mustangs missed the meet at Hersey. "But we'll be ready for conference."

Two of Vitton's key trackmen, Rick Sutton and Jeff Lund, are probable favorites to win their specialties — the 50-yard dash and the high jump, respectively. But the Mustang coach hasn't settled on where else to use those two versatile athletes.

Sutton, who coasted to a win in :05.7 against Hersey, has a top time of :05.5 in the 50, but Vitton may also want to use his talented junior in the 440 and/or a pair of relays.

Lund, who has high jumped consistently at the 6-4 level for the last several weeks, can also be considered a threat in the triple jump and the long jump. But Vitton may restrict him to the high jump if it looks like he'll be pushed there, which is almost certain. Besides, Meadows has Pat Murphy, who went 20-1½ in the long jump Tuesday.

"Right now, I'm just counting on Jeff to come through in the high jump," said the coach.

Two other important Mustangs are shotputter Rich Huber and quarter-miler Fred Kocian. Huber, a junior, lost to Komiss by a half-inch Tuesday and must be rated one of the favorites next week. Kocian, another junior, won the pole vault (10-6) at Hersey, but his main value is on the track, where he has run a :54.3 in the 440.

"Kocian vaulted 11-9 as a sophomore," Vitton pointed out, "but he's just getting over a back injury and that's the first time he's vaulted in four weeks."

Kocian is a key man on the Mustangs' crack mile relay team, too, so he'll let Mike Quinnett do the vaulting. Kocian's senior teammate has hit 13-0 this year and was third in the league outdoors as a junior.

Maine West badminton team holds favorite's role for league finals

Maine West's badminton team will carry the favorite's role into the Central Suburban League South's championship matches today at 4:30 p.m. at Maine South.

Going into the two-day meet, the West Warriors of Coach Royleen Tipton are in first place with eight points. They finished the dual meet portion of the schedule with a 7-0 record.

Maine South is right behind at 6-1, having lost earlier in the season to West, 5-2. South has seven points.

Each of the South Division teams will have four singles and three doubles matches, earning a point for each victory as they try to advance to individual titles.

Tipton will send four undefeated players into the meet — Karen Kiester at first singles, Barb Klein in fourth singles and the first doubles team of Evelyn Johnson and Jane Krauser.

Two other players have just one loss — Jenny Bruns at second singles and Robin Downing at third.

Maine West finished fourth in the over-all standings last year with Deerfield taking the title. However, due to the conference split, a new champion will be crowned.

Tipton's team is hoping it will be in the winner's circle Friday. The finals action begins at 4 p.m.

Revised foul rules? 30-second time clock?

Dramatic changes in high school basketball rules will be considered next week in Philadelphia at the annual meeting of the National Basketball Committee of the United States and Canada.

The Elgin, Ill., headquarters staff of the National Federation of State High School Associations will be there to consider rules changes which would affect most amateur basketball competition played in North America.

However, this does not mean the changes will be adopted. They are up for consideration at the meeting March 30-31.

The committee will consider a lengthy agenda which includes returning to the rule which allowed dunking and the rule which required players to raise their hand when assessed with a foul.

Other proposals would, if passed, provide an additional foul for undisqualified players in overtime games, or one additional foul in each overtime period. The committee will also consider revising the foul rule to permit three fouls per half.

The 30-second clock, and a rule which requires controlling teams to shoot before 30 seconds elapse or forfeit control of the ball, will also receive the committee's consideration.

ISU to host three sports camps for girls

Girls' sports camps in basketball, volleyball and track and field will be held at Illinois State University in June.

Basketball camps are set for the weeks of June 6 and 20, and each camp is open to 70 girls in grades 8 through 12. Participants will be divided into beginners and advanced groups for instruction and game play.

Volleyball will be the weeks of June 13 and 27 and is also open to 70 girls each week.

Track and field instruction will be the week of June 14 and is open to 50 campers. Instruction will be presented in sprinting, long distance running, hurdles, shot put, discus, high jump, long jump and relays. Participants will receive individual coaching in each event in which they are interested. A local track meet will culminate the week's camp.

Heading the camps will be ISU coaches Jill Hutchison in basketball, Linda Herman in volleyball and Joyce Morton in track and field. ISU has won five consecutive state basketball titles and is the current track title-holder.

The fee for each week of camp is $90 including food and housing. Girls who commute will pay $50. A non-refundable $50 is due May 15 and the balance is to be paid at registration.

All boarding students will be housed in air-conditioned dormitories and supervised by camp staff. Meals will be served in the residence hall dining room and will be planned by a dietician.

Special activities including swimming and tennis will be planned for the participants in each camp.

Assisting the ISU coaches in conducting the camps will be Melinda Fischer of Peoria Richwoods, Margie Wright of Metamora, Carol Dewey of Purdue, Chris Voelz of Maine South, Marsha Horn of Hillcrest, Laurie Meyers of Western Illinois University, Carolyn Williams of Monticello and Debbie Wilson, AIAW National Pentathlon Champion in 1974.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Jill Hutchison, McCormick Hall, Illinois State University, Normal, Ill. 61761 (AC 309 438-8276).

Return of Harrelson vital in Mets' outlook

(This is the 3rd in a series of 24 baseball spring training camp sizeups) TODAY: THE NEW YORK METS:

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — The New York Mets have traditionally been a ballclub that goes as far as their pitching can take them.

That will hold true again this season, but new Mets Manager Joe Frazier warns that injuries, or lack of them, will play a key role in determining the Mets' 1976 finish in the National League East.

"We cannot afford to have a rash of injuries," said Frazier in reference to the club's immediate loss of outfielder Mike Vail, who tore up his ankle in an aff-season pickup basketball game. "Our outfield now becomes a big concern to me. We can get by with Dave Kingman, Del Unser and John Milner but we can't afford to lose anyone else out there." Vail, who hit .302 as a late-season rookie sensation last year, will be lost to the club until late May or June.

There will be few new faces adorning the Mets' roster this year although Frazier does plan a few changes. At third base, slick fielding rookie Roy Staiger will alternate with veteran holdover Wayne Garrett, while at first base, veterans Ed Kranepool and Joe Torre will platoon. Also, veteran southpaw Mickey Lolich, acquired from the Detroit Tigers for Rusty Staub in the off-season, and last year's relief specialist Bob Apodaca will be added as the No. 4 and 5 starters.

Most significant addition to Frazier's lineup, however, could be the return of shortstop Bud Herrelson. Herrelson, often called the catalyst of the ballclub, was sidelined all last year with a knee injury.

STRENGHTS: As always, one of the deepest pitching staffs in baseball, led by Cy Young award winner Tom Seaver (22-9), Jon Matlack (16-12) and vet southpaw Jerry Koosman (14-13). Lolich (12-18 at Detroit) will add depth, while Skip Lockwood heads up a formidable bullpen crew.

WEAKNESSES: Still a light hitting ball club with Dave Kingman (36 homers, 88 RBIs) the only real long ball threat. Rusty Staub's 105 RBIs will be missed. Staiger and Harrelson add defensive expertise to the infield but both carry light bats. Outfield defense, other than Unser, is suspect.

NEW FACES: Lolich was the only major off-season trade acquisition. Along with the 35-year old southpaw came rookie outfielder Billy Baldwin who impressed in spring and will likely stick until Vail recovers. Third baseman Staiger will be given every opportunity to take advantage of his outstanding glove.

OUTLOOK: As we said before, the pitching will carry the Mets. If Seaver, Matlack and Koosman have typical years and Lolich gets some new life in his aging arm from the change of leagues, Mets could make Frazier a pennant winning manager in his first try.

OUT MOST OF last season after knee surgery, New York Mets' shortstop Bud Harrelson is extra busy getting into shape for 1976. At top he spends some time around second base with new manager Joe Frazier.

Use these four basic rules to hold down income tax

How can you hold down your income tax bill this year?

The same way you can, and should, do every year: make full use of the four basic tools for reducing the income subject to taxes, for lowering the rate at which the tax is levied and in some cases for having part of the tax forgiven. According to Ralph Fujimoto, chairman of the taxation committee, Illinois CPA Society, the four are: adjustments, deductions, exemptions and tax credits.

Adjustments, such as sick pay and moving expenses, are attractive because they reduce gross income, leaving "adjusted gross income," a much smaller target for the tax collector to aim at.

Deductions (for taxes and interest paid, contributions, medical costs, etc.) are nice, too: they, and the exemptions we get for ourselves and our dependents, reduce adjustment gross income still further — to "taxable income."

In the meantime, what new tax-saving opportunities are available this year? The big changes over the 1974 tax picture are:

- If you use the standard deduction instead of itemizing, you can now deduct 16 per cent of adjusted gross income, with a maximum of $2,300 for single persons, and $2,600 for couples filing joint returns or surviving spouses. For a married person filing a separate return, the maximum is $1,300.
- There's also a new minimum standard deduction of $1,600 for singles, $1,900 for married couples, but you don't have to compute it because it's built into the tax tables.
- The level of gross income below which you don't even have to file a tax return has been raised to $2,350 for singles, $3.400 for joint filers, $2,650 for a surviving spouse and $750 if married and filing separately. (Each person over 65 years of age is entitled to an additional $750 exemption.)
- Because of efforts last summer to stimulate the lagging economy, all taxpayers, regardless of their tax bill, can subtract $30 from what they owe, plus another $30 for each dependent.
- Qualified low-income taxpayers, with adjusted gross income under $8,000, get a credit of 10 per cent of earned income, up to a maximum credit of $400 on $4,000 of earned income. They lose the credit at the same 10 per cent rate as their income rises above $4,000 so the credit is lost when earned income or adjusted gross income hits $8,000. If the credit exceeds taxes owed, the excess is paid to the taxpayer like a refund. To qualify, you must have maintained a household in this country with at least one dependent child.
- If, in order to hold a job, you had to pay for the care of a dependent who is under 15 or disabled or your spouse, you may be able to claim up to $4,800 a year of such expenses, if your combined incomes did not exceed $18,000.
- If you bought a new home in 1975, under certain conditions, you may be eligible for a tax credit of 5 per cent of the purchase price, up to $2,000.
- If you sold a home, you have 18 months, rather than 12, to defer any capital gain tax by reinvesting and occupying another home costing at least as much. (You have 24 months if you build a new home as the replacement, construction having begun within 18 months of the sale.)

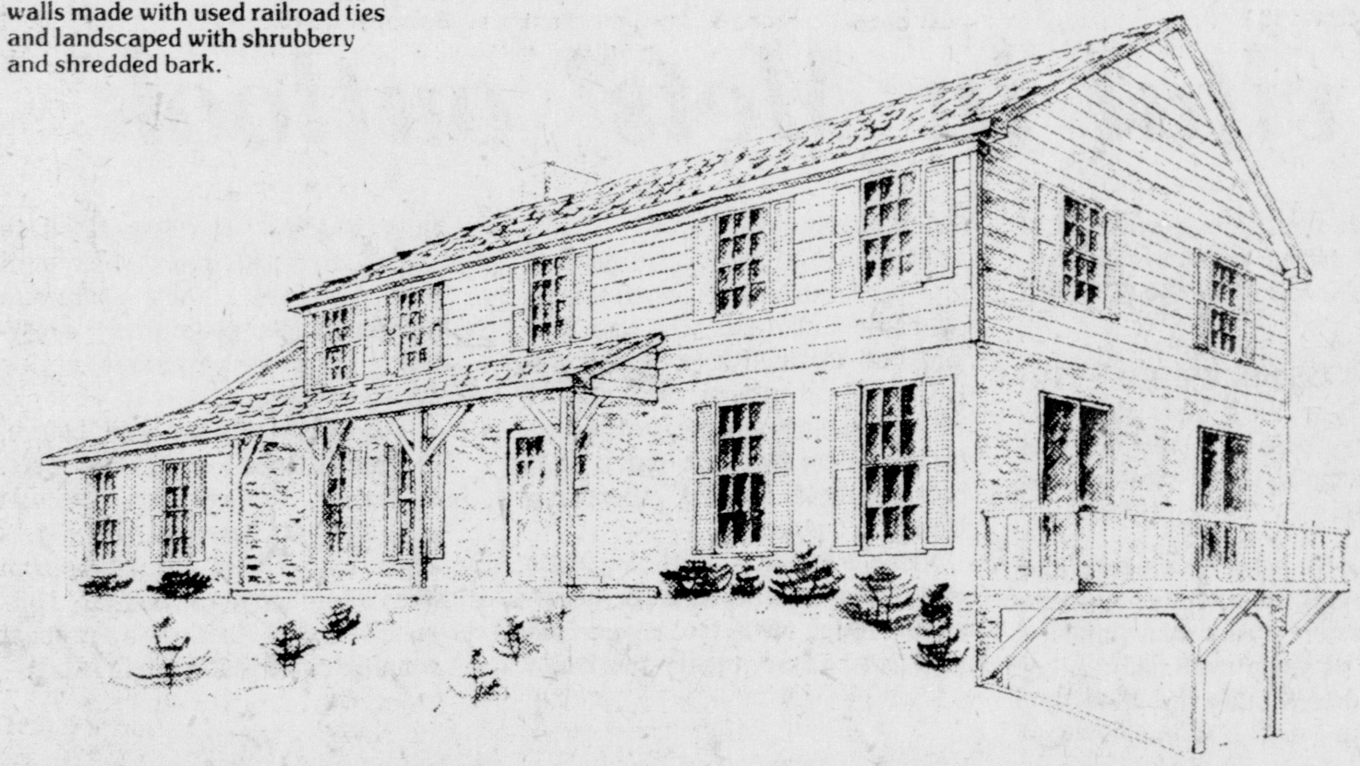
THE IDEA HOME

The home pictured below, like most of our homes, includes a full basement, three car garage with electric door opener, air conditioning, humidification, brick or stone veneer, cedar siding, screened-in porch, oak cabinetry and two fireplaces. In addition, our Idea Home has many unique concepts:

Idea No. 1—Site Planning
As with all homes designed by Barrington Construction Company, the Idea Home was individually designed for the natural terrain of the lot. There is a dry creek that meanders diagonally across the property with trees along each side. The home was sited to the side of the creek and to the rear of the trees on the high part of the lot. The walk from the drive to the front door is made with used railroad ties. There are several retaining walls made with used railroad ties and landscaped with shrubbery and shredded bark.

Idea No. 2—Entrance
The centrally located foyer distributes traffic to six areas: the living room, family room, kitchen, laundry room, den, second floor. The foyer floor is a country provincial ceramic tile. The exterior door locks, interior door knobs, switch plates, cabinet handles, and bathroom hardware are the same pattern in order to develop a consistent trim finish theme.

Idea No. 3—Kitchen
The kitchen is designed in a country motif. The cabinets have solid oak panelled doors in distressed walnut. Total cooking capability is provided by a microwave oven, a self-clean oven, ceramic cooktop, indoor grill and griddle. The ceramic tile cooking center is framed with heavy, solid cedar beams and columns dark stained. A new type of kitchen sink has an oversized compartment for washing large pots and pans. Instead of peninsular wall cabinets which cut the kitchen in half, the wall cabinets are installed between the base cabinets and the breakfast area to make a 3′ wide cabinet and countertop area and workspace. A 1′ high back on the pass-through countertop shields the kitchen from the breakfast area. There is a 30′ expanse of glass across the kitchen, breakfast room, and family room.



Idea No. 4—Family Room/Screened Porch
The family room is panelled with rough-sawn horizontal cedar boards of the same pattern as the exterior siding. The ceiling has heavy rough-sawn cedar beams that are solid timber. To each side of the fireplace are sliding glass doors leading to a large screened-in porch. The screening goes from the floor to the underside of the cedar rafters which are 16′ high at their highest point.

Idea No. 5—Laundry Room/Powder Room
The laundry is finished uniquely so that it may be considered as part of the foyer, part of the den-guest room, or a hallway to the powder room. If the pocket door between the laundry and foyer is open and the closet doors are closed over the laundry fixtures, it becomes a hallway to the luxurious powder room. If the pocket door is shut, the powder room becomes a private bath for the den-guest room.

Idea no. 6—Den/Guest Room
The den-guest room has a full wall of bookshelves. It has windows to the south and west. It also has sliding glass doors to the porch on the north side. With glass on three sides, the den-guest room is a very light-bright room.

Idea No. 7—Owner's Suite
Upstairs, there are four large bedrooms. The owner's suite is several rooms in one. A fireplace divides the sleeping area from the sitting room. There are sliding glass doors from the sitting room to a wood deck overlooking a lake. The dressing room has three-way, full-length mirror doors, a double walkin closet with 24′ of clothespole, and a large linen closet. There are double bath vanities with 24k gold plated faucets. The vanity top is raised an extra 4″ in height and has a marble cosmetic ledge. There is a luminous ceiling over the vanity area with full height mirror completely covering three walls.

Area women in key roles on national curling champ

NATIONAL CHAMPS. The quartet of (from left) Jackie Warner of Lake Forest, Ann Brown of Arlington Heights, Cynthia Willis of Deerfield and Jean Nickoley of Bannockburn, representing the Exmoor Country Club of Highland Park, won the 1976 U.S. Women's Curling Assn. National Championship and the world competition is April 22 in Winnipeg, Canada.

Today, the nationals.

Tomorrow, the world?

That question will be answered in April when the Jackie Warner rink of the Exmoor Curling Club competes for the world title in Winnipeg, Canada.

The 1976 United States Women's Curling Assn. champion, a unit currently featuring one Arlington Heights resident and another woman who grew up in Arlington, will leave April 22 for Canada.

They will meet with women from Sweden, Canada and Scotland in the world meet.

The team of Jackie Warner, Ann Brown, Cynthia Willis and Jean Nickoley is the nation's best after their impressive victory in the recent competition in Virginia, Minn.

Ann (Mrs. Lawrence H.) Brown lives in Arlington Heights and Jean Nickoley grew up in Arlington. Her maiden name was Baldwin.

Mrs. Brown has had a successful year in curling. In addition to the national championship, she also was on the Illinois State Women's Championship rink and the Illinois State Mixed Championship.

Lawrence Brown also was on the state mixed titlist, and the entire Brown family is involved in curling. Three sons curl at Exmoor in Highland Park and the oldest boy, Mi-

Cubs claim Cactus opener

The Chicago Cubs opened their spring training season in Yuma, Ariz. Wednesday, and despite some shaky pitching by righthanded starter Steve Stone the Cubs managed to bail out a victory.

Leftfielder Bobby Valentine dropped a fly ball in the 10th inning to allow the winning runs to score as the Cubs outlasted the San Diego Padres 9-6.

The Padres had tied the score at 6-6 in the bottom of the ninth when Chicago centerfielder Joe Wallis dropped a two-out fly ball. Outfielder-first baseman Peter LaCock led a 14-hit Cub attack with a pair of 400-foot doubles driving in three runs while shortstop Dave Rosello added four singles to the cause.

The Padres hit four home runs in the first three innings off Stone. Outfielder John Grubb, shortstop Hector Torres, first baseman Willie McCovey and rightfielder Dave Winfield all connected with McCovey and Winfield hitting theirs back-to-back in the third.

After the third inning, Cub pitchers Ken Crosby, Darold Knowles and Oscar Zamora allowed the Padres just one unearned run in seven innings with Knowles getting the win. Padre rookie Mark Dupree took the loss.

Non-roster Sox belt HRs

Cleon Jones and Bob Oliver, two non-roster veterans looking for jobs, each slugged a home run and double Wednesday to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 6-1 exhibition victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in Sarasota.

Jones went 3-for-4 while Oliver had two hits in three at bats.

Starting pitcher Wilbur Wood threw three scoreless innings to gain the victory for the White Sox split squad and Clay Carroll, acquired from Cincinnati in the off season, worked the middle three innings, also shutting out the Pirates.

The White Sox led 2-0 after six innings, then added four runs in the seventh off Pirate rookie Odell Jones.

Cleon Jones led off the inning with a home run, but two of the four runs were unearned because of an error by third baseman Ed Kirkpatrick.

Meanwhile, in Orlando, ex-Cub Joe Decker recovered from a recent spell of wildness, reminiscent of Steve Blass last year, to blank the White Sox B team for three innings as Minnesota took a 6-2 victory. Decker struck out five and walked no one, allowing just one hit along the way. Bert Blyleven pitched three shutout innings to earn the win.

Carbo hits, Splittorff's wild

Bernie Carbo drove in three runs and Carlton Fisk knocked home the game-winner in the seventh inning Wednesday to propel the Boston Red Sox to a 7-6 victory over the Houston Astros in the defending American League Champion's spring opener.

Sheldon Mallory slammed a two-run triple and the Kansas City Royals scored four runs in the eighth inning off former teammate Nelson Briles Wednesday to roll to an 8-3 victory over the Texas Rangers in the exhibition opener for both teams. Strong winds played havoc with fly balls in the first inning, as Texas starter Gaylord Perry gave up three hits and two runs in the first inning while his counterpart Paul Splittorff issued five walks.

Bill Buckner drove home three runs with two doubles and a triple and the Los Angeles Dodgers erupted for nine runs in the eighth inning Wednesday to down the Montreal Expos 13-4 before a standing room crowd of 3,048.

Jamie Thompson, a non-roster player, hit a two-run home run in the ninth inning Wednesday to enable the Detroit Tigers to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 8-6 in their exhibition opener.

'Hondo' leads Celts, 94-87

John Havlicek scored 12 of his 20 points in the third quarter Wednesday night to power the Boston Celtics past the Chicago Bulls 94-87 in a fight-marred NBA game in Boston.

The Bulls pulled ahead 52-47 in the third quarter, thanks to a 10-2 opening splurge, but Boston's Paul Silas sandwiched seven points, including a three-point play, around a basket by Bob Love to tie it 54-54.

Boston then reeled off the next eight points, two on a back door play from Dave Cowans to teve Kuberski, and six by Havlicek who hit three straight jumpers from the key.

But the Celtics could not hold the lead and dropped behind by five towards the end of the third period. Suddenly Boston started hitting and went on a 21-6 tear to end the period leading 70-60.

Love's hot shooting in the first half — good for 11 of his 17 points — kept Chicago in the game.

Tom Boerwinkle had 14 points and Love had 17.

Silas, who had 17 points, got into a tussel with Chicago's Jack Marin in the second quarter. The two were fighting for a rebound when Marin wrestled Silas to the ground. The fight was quickly broken up and each team was assessed a technical foul.

Flames do the snuffing, 7-2

Goals by seven different players and a defense which limited the Black Hawks to just 28 shots gave the Atlanta Flames a 7-2 victory at the Stadium Wednesday night to clinch a playoff berth in the Lester Patrick Division.

Phil Russell scored on a Hawk power play 1:44 into the game but Atlanta responded on goals by Larry Romanchych and Ed Kea in a 68-second span and Claude S. Sauveur tallied midway in the first period to give the Flames a 3-1 edge.

Midway in the second period, Bill Clement and Bill Flett beat Hawk goaltender Tony Esposito, who was in the nets for his 11th straight game, as Atlanta moved to a 5-1 lead.

Hawks defenseman Keith Magnuson entered the game late in the second period after a 19-game layoff due to a back injury and 30 seconds later drew 17 minutes in penalties after a fight with Eric Vail.

Progress seen at pool site

The President of the International Swimming Federation said Wednesday he is "close to 95 per cent confident" that the Olympic swimming pool under construction in Montreal will be completed in time for the opening of the Games on July 17.

Dr. Harold W. Henning said, "it is just fantastic, the wonderful progress that has been made" since his latest inspection of the site Jan. 24.

But Hennnng said the Federation still did not plan to release the Olympics Installation Board from its "catastrophe plan" to provide an alternate pool in Montreal for at least another 30 days.

Henning and his consulting architect, Jackson Smith, toured the pool construction site Wednesday morning prior to their news conference.

The Naperville, Ill., dentist said that despite the earlier delays, construction "is in may areas ahead of schedule."

"I am pretty close to 95 per cent confident that things will be completed, provided nothing unforeseen happens," Henning said.

Harper launches baseball season today

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Loaded with eight returning players and the best freshman recruits in the school's history, the Harper Hawks will open the area baseball season with an ambitious eight game road trip through the south.

The Hawks open today with Southwestern in Harrisburg, Ill. and take their show from there to Kentucky and Tennessee as they play eight games in four days.

"We don't have a set lineup," said head coach John Eliasik. "That's what we're hoping to find out from this trip."

What Eliasik may find is that his Hawks are better than the team that posted a 16-10 record last year and finished third in the Skyway Conference, the toughest Juco baseball loop in the state.

Eliasik put on his recruiting helmet and landed five key freshmen, all of whom could step into starting roles before the season is very old.

"We got probably the best batch of freshmen out of our district ever," Eliasik enthused. "We're expecting a lot from this group."

Eliasik is concerned with pitching depth, a must in the long conference grind since Harper moved to the N4C, and freshmen Dar Townsend and Scott Green have the arms and the stuff to help.

Townsend was the Mid-Suburban League's Player of the Year last season.

He was the mainstay of the Arlington High School pitching staff, tossing a perfect game against Hersey in the state tournament, and did time behind the plate when he wasn't on the mound. Townsend is also a deadly hitter.

Green, the starting center for Harper's basketball team this year, is a pitcher and outfielder out of Rolling Meadows High School.

Eliasik's other prize freshmen are Marty Luquet and Joe Colamino, a pair of steady-gloved infielders from Conant, and Greg Meyer, an all-conference outfielder from Palatine.

"We have some standout freshmen," Eliasik stated.

He also has some returnees to go with them, including Dave Patterson, the leading pitcher on the staff last year.

Patterson won six games for the Hawks last year and worked 65 innings, the most on the staff, for a 1.61 earned run average.

He also hit .342 as a designated hitter and was a first team selection on the All-Skyway Conference team.

Another all-conference sophomore is Dave Mills, who trailed only the departed Rigg Lile in the team batting derby with an average of .367.

Tom Good, a .262 hitter last year, is the third starter returning. Eliasik is trying him as a pitcher and sees progress there.

The other sophomores on the team are Gary Oslance, Steve Arnieri, Howie Bauer, Dave Mnichowicz and Gary Gustafson.

Tuneups continue for league meet

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

Hersey's surprise victory over Rolling Meadows in Tuesday's indoor track duel wasn't necessarily a surprise to Hersey head coach Larry Travis.

"We've got a pretty good dual-meet team," Travis said. "We've been really close in some of our losses, and our wins over two good teams in the last week (Meadows and Hoffman Estates) have got the kids pumped up."

The Huskies, with their 77-46 win Tuesday, knocked off one of the league favorites in next Wednesday's Mid-Suburban indoor championships. Rolling Meadows, along with Palatine, Hoffman, Fremd and maybe a couple of other teams will challenge Forest View for the MSL title.

But Travis knows that it would take some outstanding efforts by his athletes up and down the line for his Huskies to be near the top next Wednesday.

One key athlete is "Chip" Newren, who came out following the conclusion of the basketball season and reached 6-1 in the high jump in his first meet. Newren could give the Huskies some unexpected points, but he'll probably have to go higher than 6-1 in a loaded field of MSL high jumpers.

Travis expects scoring from triple jumpers Dave Koelper, who has surpassed 42 feet, and shotputter Dave Komiss, whose best is 53 feet. Tony Becker and Matt Zakula are likely to score in those events, too.

But Hersey is also counting on several "sleepers," including quarter-miler Al Mitchell, sprinter Gary Modesto, and a speedy mile relay team that might be one of the best in the league.

Koelper, a key member on the relay teams, may also be a threat in the long jump, where he reached 20-1¼ against Meadows for his best mark of the season.

Rolling Meadows coach Joe Vitton took the loss in stride and suggested that some of his athletes might pass up the Oak Park Relays this Saturday in order to concentrate on the conference championships.

"This was probably the most 'down' meet we've had this year," said Vitton, who indicated that some of his Mustangs missed the meet at Hersey. "But we'll be ready for conference."

Two of Vitton's key trackmen, Rick Sutton and Jeff Lund, are probable favorites to win their specialties — the 50-yard dash and the high jump, respectively. But the Mustang coach hasn't settled on where else to use those two versatile athletes.

Sutton, who coasted to a win in :05.7 against Hersey, has a top time of :05.5 in the 50, but Vitton may also want to use his talented junior in the 440 and/or a pair of relays.

Lund, who has high jumped consistently at the 6-4 level for the last several weeks, can also be considered a threat in the triple jump and the long jump. But Vitton may restrict him to the high jump if it looks like he'll be pushed there, which is almost certain. Besides, Meadows has Pat Murphy, who went 20-1½ in the long jump Tuesday.

"Right now, I'm just counting on Jeff to come through in the high jump," said the coach.

Two other important Mustangs are shotputter Rich Huber and quarter-miler Fred Kocian. Huber, a junior, lost to Komiss by a half-inch Tuesday and must be rated one of the favorites next week. Kocian, another junior, won the pole vault (10-6) at Hersey, but his main value is on the track, where he has run a :54.3 in the 440.

"Kocian vaulted 11-9 as a sophomore," Vitton pointed out, "but he's just getting over a back injury and that's the first time he's vaulted in four weeks."

Kocian is a key man on the Mustangs' crack mile relay team, too, so he'll let Mike Quinnett do the vaulting. Kocian's senior teammate has hit 13-0 this year and was third in the league outdoors as a junior.

Maine West badminton team holds favorite's role for league finals

Maine West's badminton team will carry the favorite's role into the Central Suburban League South's championship matches today at 4:30 p.m. at Maine South.

Going into the two-day meet, the West Warriors of Coach Royleen Tipton are in first place with eight points. They finished the dual meet portion of the schedule with a 7-0 record.

Maine South is right behind at 6-1, having lost earlier in the season to West, 5-2. South has seven points.

Each of the South Division teams will have four singles and three doubles matches, earning a point for each victory as they try to advance to individual titles.

Tipton will send four undefeated players into the meet — Karen Kiester at first singles, Barb Klein in fourth singles and the first doubles team of Evelyn Johnson and Jane Krauser.

Two other players have just one loss — Jenny Bruns at second singles and Robin Downing at third.

Maine West finished fourth in the over-all standings last year with Deerfield taking the title. However, due to the conference split, a new champion will be crowned.

Tipton's team is hoping it will be in the winner's circle Friday. The finals action begins at 4 p.m.

Revised foul rules? 30-second time clock?

Dramatic changes in high school basketball rules will be considered next week in Philadelphia at the annual meeting of the National Basketball Committee of the United States and Canada.

The Elgin, Ill., headquarters staff of the National Federation of State High School Associations will be there to consider rules changes which would affect most amateur basketball competition played in North America.

However, this does not mean the changes will be adopted. They are up for consideration at the meeting March 30-31.

The committee will consider a lengthy agenda which includes returning to the rule which allowed dunking and the rule which required players to raise their hand when assessed with a foul.

Other proposals would, if passed, provide an additional foul for undisqualified players in overtime games, or one additional foul in each overtime period. The committee will also consider revising the foul rule to permit three fouls per half.

The 30-second clock, and a rule which requires controlling teams to shoot before 30 seconds elapse or forfeit control of the ball, will also receive the committee's consideration.

ISU to host three sports camps for girls

Girls' sports camps in basketball, volleyball and track and field will be held at Illinois State University in June.

Basketball camps are set for the weeks of June 6 and 20, and each camp is open to 70 girls in grades 8 through 12. Participants will be divided into beginners and advanced groups for instruction and game play.

Volleyball will be the weeks of June 13 and 27 and is also open to 70 girls each week.

Track and field instruction will be the week of June 14 and is open to 50 campers. Instruction will be presented in sprinting, long distance running, hurdles, shot put, discus, high jump, long jump and relays. Participants will receive individual coaching in each event in which they are interested. A local track meet will culminate the week's camp.

Heading the camps will be ISU coaches Jill Hutchison in basketball, Linda Herman in volleyball and Joyce Morton in track and field. ISU has won five consecutive state basketball titles and is the current track titleholder.

The fee for each week of camp is $90 including food and housing. Girls who commute will pay $50. A non-refundable $50 is due May 15 and the balance is to be paid at registration.

Return of Harrelson vital in Mets' outlook

(This is the 3rd in a series of 24 baseball spring training camp sizeups) TODAY: THE NEW YORK METS:

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — The New York Mets have traditionally been a ballclub that goes as far as their pitching can take them.

That will hold true again this season, but new Mets Manager Joe Frazier warns that injuries, or lack of them, will play a key role in determining the Mets' 1976 finish in the National League East.

"We cannot afford to have a rash of injuries," said Frazier in reference to the club's immediate loss of outfielder Mike Vail, who tore up his ankle in an aff-season pickup basketball game. "Our outfield now becomes a big concern to me. We can get by with Dave Kingman, Del Unser and John Milner but we can't afford to lose anyone else out there." Vail, who hit .302 as a late-season rookie sensation last year, will be lost to the club until late May or June.

There will be few new faces adorning the Mets' roster this year although Frazier does plan a few changes. At third base, slick fielding rookie Roy Staiger will alternate with veteran holdover Wayne Garrett, while at first base, veterans Ed Kranepool and Joe Torre will platoon. Also, veteran southpaw Mickey Lolich, acquired from the Detroit Tigers for Rusty Staub in the off-season, and last year's relief specialist Bob Apodaca will be added as the No. 4 and 5 starters.

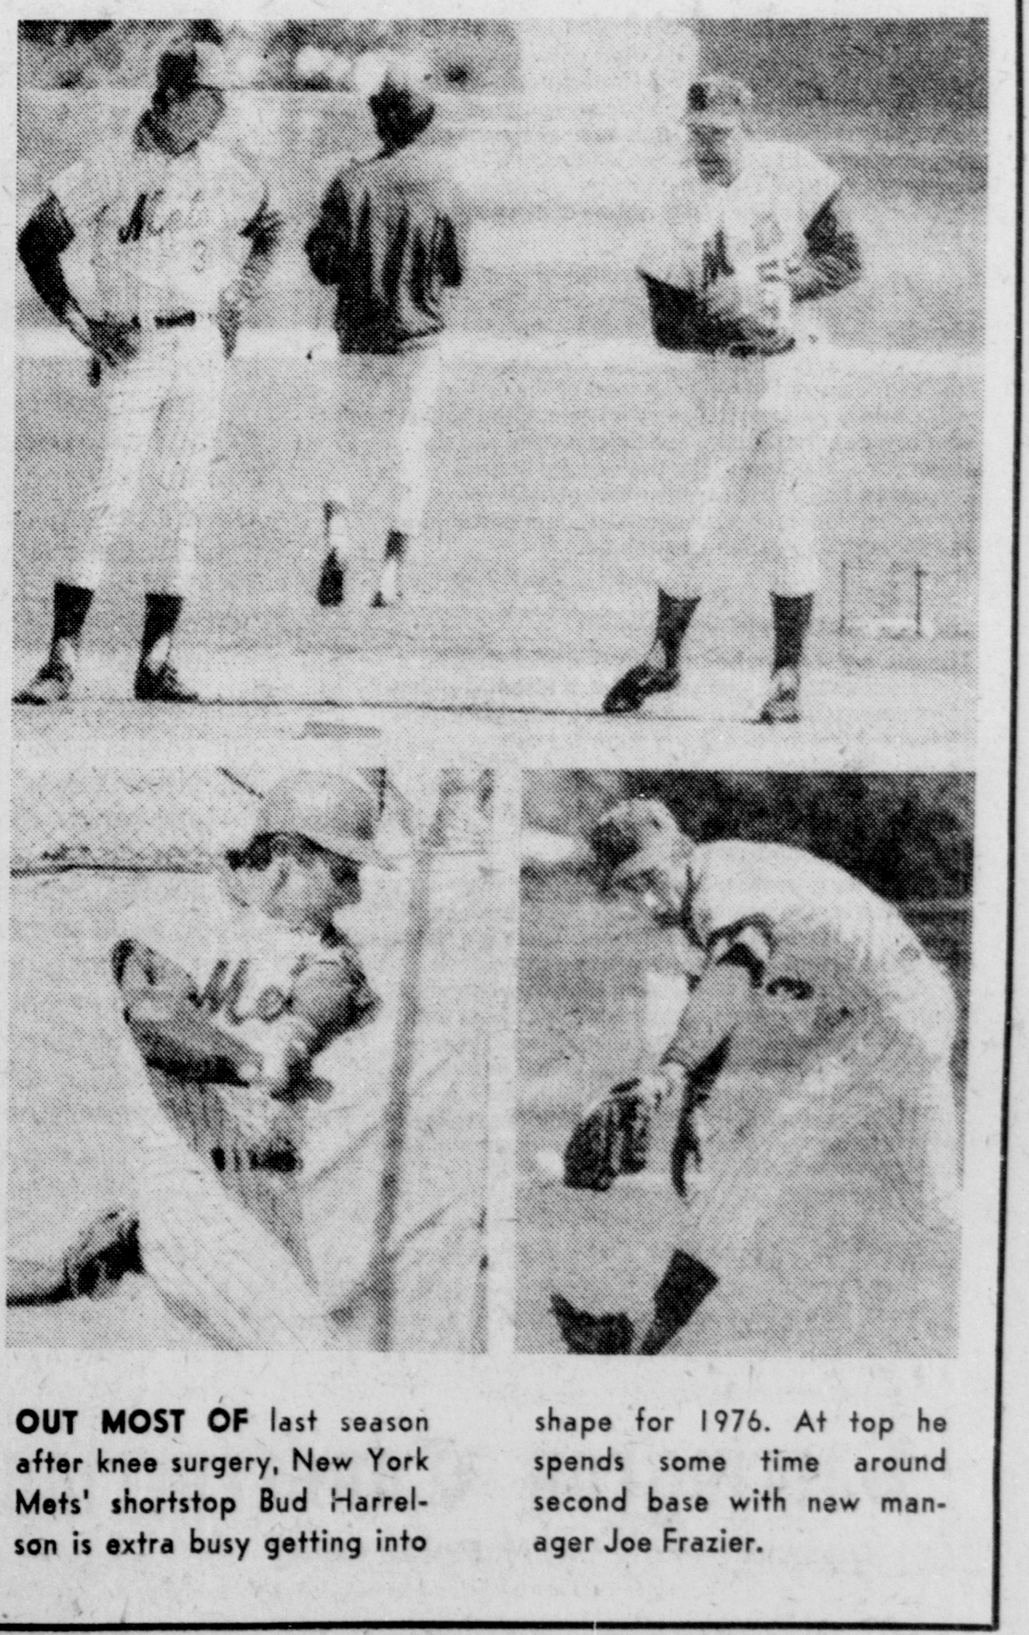
Most significant addition to Frazier's lineup, however, could be the return of shortstop Bud Herrelson. Herrelson, often called the catalyst of the ballclub, was sidelined all last year with a knee injury.

STRENGHTS: As always, one of the deepest pitching staffs in baseball, led by Cy Young award winner Tom Seaver (22-9), Jon Matlack (16-12) and vet southpaw Jerry Koosman (14-13). Lolich (12-18 at Detroit) will add depth, while Skip Lockwood heads up a formidable bullpen crew.

WEAKNESSES: Still a light hitting ball club with Dave Kingman (36 homers, 88 RBIs) the only real long ball threat. Rusty Staub's 105 RBIs will be missed. Staiger and Harrelson add defensive expertise to the infield but both carry light bats. Outfield defense, other than Unser, is suspect.

NEW FACES: Lolich was the only major off-season trade acquisition. Along with the 35-year old southpaw came rookie outfielder Billy Baldwin who impressed in spring and will likely stick until Vail recovers. Third baseman Staiger will be given every opportunity to take advantage of his outstanding glove.

OUTLOOK: As we said before, the pitching will carry the Mets. If Seaver, Matlack and Koosman have typical years and Lolich gets some new life in his aging arm from the change of leagues, Mets could make Frazier a pennant winning manager in his first try.



OUT MOST OF last season after knee surgery, New York Mets' shortstop Bud Harrelson is extra busy getting into shape for 1976. At top he spends some time around second base with new manager Joe Frazier.

Curling

chael, was skip of the Illinois State Junior Mixed Championship rink this year.

In the nationals 12 states were represented in the National Bonspiel including Alaska with 48 rinks playing.

Curling actually is a combination of shuffleboard, bowling, billiards and golf — played on pebbled ice. You grasp the handle of a 40-pound polished spheroid stone and slide it down a long sheet of ice so that it "curls" in a gentle arc to a particular spot in a target area pointed out by the skip, or "quarterback" of a four-player team.

"Our team has been together for four years now, except for Hedy Benit who was new and began this year," said Jackie Warner. "We were on a winning streak when Hedy's child was in a snowmobile accident.

"When she had to pull out, we weren't sure where to turn, and then we got Jean Nickoley from Bannockburn. Obviously, Jean was the perfect substitute and when we arrived in Minnesota they were moving together well."

Jackie, the skip of the team, stressed they had "an excellent coach from the Exmoor Club, Gerry Du Guid, who was a Canadian champion and filled us with a vast amount of knowledge and spurred us onto the ice, setting up games at every opportunity.

"We spent several hours on the ice a day," she continued, "but this is a problem now because there is little available in ice in this area and the world competition isn't until the end of April.

"But I'm sure we'll figure out something."

NATIONAL CHAMPS. The quartet of (from left) Jackie Warner of Lake Forest, Ann Brown of Arlington Heights, Cynthia Willis of Deerfield and Jean Nickoley of Bannockburn, representing the Exmoor Country Club of Highland Park, won the 1976 U.S. Women's Curling Assn. National Championship and the world competition is April 22 in Winnipeg, Canada.

Today, the nationals.

Tomorrow, the world?

That question will be answered in April when the Jackie Warner rink of the Exmoor Curling Club competes for the world title in Winnipeg, Canada.

The 1976 United States Women's Curling Assn. champion; a unit currently featuring one Arlington Heights resident and another woman who grew up in Arlington, will leave April 22 for Canada.

They will meet with women from Sweden, Canada and Scotland in the world meet.

The team of Jackie Warner, Ann Brown, Cynthia Willis and Jean Nickoley is the nation's best after their impressive victory in the recent competition in Virginia, Minn.

Ann (Mrs. Lawrence H.) Brown lives in Arlington Heights and Jean Nickoley grew up in Arlington. Her maiden name was Baldwin.

Mrs. Brown has had a successful year in curling. In addition to the national championship, she also was on the Illinois State Women's Championship rink and the Illinois State Mixed Championship.

Lawrence Brown also was on the state mixed titlist, and the entire Brown family is involved in curling. Three sons curl at Exmoor in Highland Park and the oldest boy, Mi-

Cubs claim Cactus opener

The Chicago Cubs opened their spring training season in Yuma, Ariz. Wednesday, and despite some shaky pitching by righthanded starter Steve Stone the Cubs managed to bail out a victory.

Leftfielder Bobby Valentine dropped a fly ball in the 10th inning to allow the winning runs to score as the Cubs outlasted the San Diego Padres 9-6.

The Padres had tied the score at 6-6 in the bottom of the ninth when Chicago centerfielder Joe Wallis dropped a two-out fly ball. Outfielder-first baseman Peter LaCock led a 14-hit Cub attack with a pair of 400-foot doubles driving in three runs while shortstop Dave Rosello added four singles to the cause.

The Padres hit four home runs in the first three innings off Stone. Outfielder John Grubb, shortstop Hector Torres, first baseman Willie McCovey and rightfielder Dave Winfield all connected with McCovey and Winfield hitting theirs back-to-back in the third.

After the third inning, Cub pitchers Ken Crosby, Darold Knowles and Oscar Zamora allowed the Padres just one unearned run in seven innings with Knowles getting the win. Padre rookie Mark Dupree took the loss.

Non-roster Sox belt HRs

Cleon Jones and Bob Oliver, two non-roster veterans looking for jobs, each slugged a home run and double Wednesday to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 6-1 exhibition victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in Sarasota.

Jones went 3-for-4 while Oliver had two hits in three at bats.

Starting pitcher Wilbur Wood threw three scoreless innings to gain the victory for the White Sox split squad and Clay Carroll, acquired from Cincinnati in the off season, worked the middle three innings, also shutting out the Pirates.

The White Sox led 2-0 after six innings, then added four runs in the seventh off Pirate rookie Odell Jones.

Cleon Jones led off the inning with a home run, but two of the four runs were unearned because of an error by third baseman Ed Kirkpatrick.

Meanwhile, in Orlando, ex-Cub Joe Decker recovered from a recent spell of wildness, reminiscent of Steve Blass last year, to blank the White Sox B team for three innings as Minnesota took a 6-2 victory. Decker struck out five and walked no one, allowing just one hit along the way. Bert Blyleven pitched three shutout innings to earn the win.

Carbo hits, Splittorff's wild

Bernie Carbo drove in three runs and Carlton Fisk knocked home the game-winner in the seventh inning Wednesday to propel the Boston Red Sox to a 7-6 victory over the Houston Astros in the defending American League Champion's spring opener.

Sheldon Mallory slammed a two-run triple and the Kansas City Royals scored four runs in the eighth inning off former teammate Nelson Briles Wednesday to roll to an 8-3 victory over the Texas Rangers in the exhibition opener for both teams. Strong winds played havoc with fly balls in the first inning, as Texas starter Gaylord Perry gave up three hits and two runs in the first inning while his counterpart Paul Splittorff issued five walks.

Bill Buckner drove home three runs with two doubles and a triple and the Los Angeles Dodgers erupted for nine runs in the eighth inning Wednesday to down the Montreal Expos 13-4 before a standing room crowd of 3,048.

Jamie Thompson, a non-roster player, hit a two-run home run in the ninth inning Wednesday to enable the Detroit Tigers to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 8-6 in their exhibition opener.

'Hondo' leads Celts, 94-87

John Havlicek scored 12 of his 20 points in the third quarter Wednesday night to power the Boston Celtics past the Chicago Bulls 94-87 in a fight-marred NBA game in Boston.

The Bulls pulled ahead 52-47 in the third quarter, thanks to a 10-2 opening splurge, but Boston's Paul Silas sandwiched seven points, including a three-point play, around a basket by Bob Love to tie it 54-54.

Boston then reeled off the next eight points, two on a back door play from Dave Cowans to teve Kuberski, and six by Havlicek who hit three straight jumpers from the key.

But the Celtics could not hold the lead and dropped behind by five towards the end of the third period. Suddenly Boston started hitting and went on a 21-6 tear to end the period leading 70-60.

Love's hot shooting in the first half — good for 11 of his 17 points — kept Chicago in the game.

Tom Boerwinkle had 14 points and Love had 17.

Silas, who had 17 points, got into a tussel with Chicago's Jack Marin in the second quarter. The two were fighting for a rebound when Marin wrestled Silas to the ground. The fight was quickly broken up and each team was assessed a technical foul.

Flames do the snuffing, 7-2

Goals by seven different players and a defense which limited the Black Hawks to just 28 shots gave the Atlanta Flames a 7-2 victory at the Stadium Wednesday night to clinch a playoff berth in the Lester Patrick Division.

Phil Russell scored on a Hawk power play 1:44 into the game but Atlanta responded on goals by Larry Romanchych and Ed Kea in a 68-second span and Claude S. Sauveur tallied midway in the first period to give the Flames a 3-1 edge.

Midway in the second period, Bill Clement and Bill Flett beat Hawk goaltender Tony Esposito, who was in the nets for his 11th straight game, as Atlanta moved to a 5-1 lead.

Hawks defenseman Keith Magnuson entered the game late in the second period after a 19-game layoff due to a back injury and 30 seconds later drew 17 minutes in penalties after a fight with Eric Vail.

Progress seen at pool site

The President of the International Swimming Federation said Wednesday he is "close to 95 per cent confident" that the Olympic swimming pool under construction in Montreal will be completed in time for the opening of the Games on July 17.

Dr. Harold W. Henning said, "it is just fantastic, the wonderful progress that has been made" since his latest inspection of the site Jan. 24.

But Hennnng said the Federation still did not plan to release the Olympics Installation Board from its "catastrophe plan" to provide an alternate pool in Montreal for at least another 30 days.

Henning and his consulting architect, Jackson Smith, toured the pool construction site Wednesday morning prior to their news conference.

The Naperville, Ill., dentist said that despite the earlier delays, construction "is in may areas ahead of schedule."

"I am pretty close to 95 per cent confident that things will be completed, provided nothing unforeseen happens," Henning said.

Curling

chael, was skip of the Illinois State Junior Mixed Championship rink this year.

In the nationals 12 states were represented in the National Bonspiel including Alaska with 48 rinks playing.

Curling actually is a combination of shuffleboard, bowling, billiards and golf — played on pebbled ice. You grasp the handle of a 40-pound polished spheroid stone and slide it down a long sheet of ice so that it "curls" in a gentle arc to a particular spot in a target area pointed out by the skip, or "quarterback" of a four-player team.

"Our team has been together for four years now, except for Hedy Benit who was new and began this year," said Jackie Warner. "We were on a winning streak when Hedy's child was in a snowmobile accident.

"When she had to pull out, we weren't sure where to turn, and then we got Jean Nickoley from Bannockburn. Obviously, Jean was the perfect substitute and when we arrived in Minnesota they were moving together well."

Jackie, the skip of the team, stressed they had "an excellent coach from the Exmoor Club, Gerry Du Guid, who was a Canadian champion and filled us with a vast amount of knowledge and spurred us onto the ice, setting up games at every opportunity.

"We spent several hours on the ice a day," she continued, "but this is a problem now because there is little available in ice in this area and the world competition isn't until the end of April.

"But I'm sure we'll figure out something."

Methodists are leaders in ordaining

by MONICA PERIN
(Last in a series)

Church historian Margaret Sittler Ermarth observed in her book "Adam's Fractured Rib" that Methodists in the United States ordained the country's first female theologian a hundred years ago, but in 1969 were formally studying "the woman problem."

Ms. Ermarth termed this the "stereotype syndrome," by which women have been channeled into limited, traditional types of service despite "relative freedom from the theological restraints and ecclesiastical traditions . . . that afflict other denominations."

According to Nancy Grissom Self, co-director of the Commission on the Status and Role of Women of the United Methodist Church, it is "long-established hierarchical pattern" that works against women.

Still, in comparison with a number of other denominations, the Methodist church has come a long way toward achieving full utilization of women.

Since ordination of women was officially adopted in 1956, the denomination has ordained 620 women — more than any other denomination — of whom about 12 to 15 are in the Chicago area. One, the Rev. Ruth Wegner, served as an associate pastor at the United Methodist Church in Palatine from 1971 to 1973.

In addition, a second woman is now serving as a district superintendent, a high post in the Methodist church administration and one held only by ordained persons.

ONE OF THE projects of the Women's Commission, which is headquartered in Evanston, has been to establish a women's "talent bank" to aid in getting women on more boards and agencies of the church, Ms. Self said.

"The male system always says its reason for not appointing a woman is that there aren't any qualified women available," said Ms. Self, so the talent bank will make such women known to those seeking them.

The commission, formed in 1972 by the church's general conference, will report to the conference next month that the church needs a "thorough-going, systemic" reform of its utilization of women. Only "token" numbers of women have so far broken into traditional male roles, it reports.

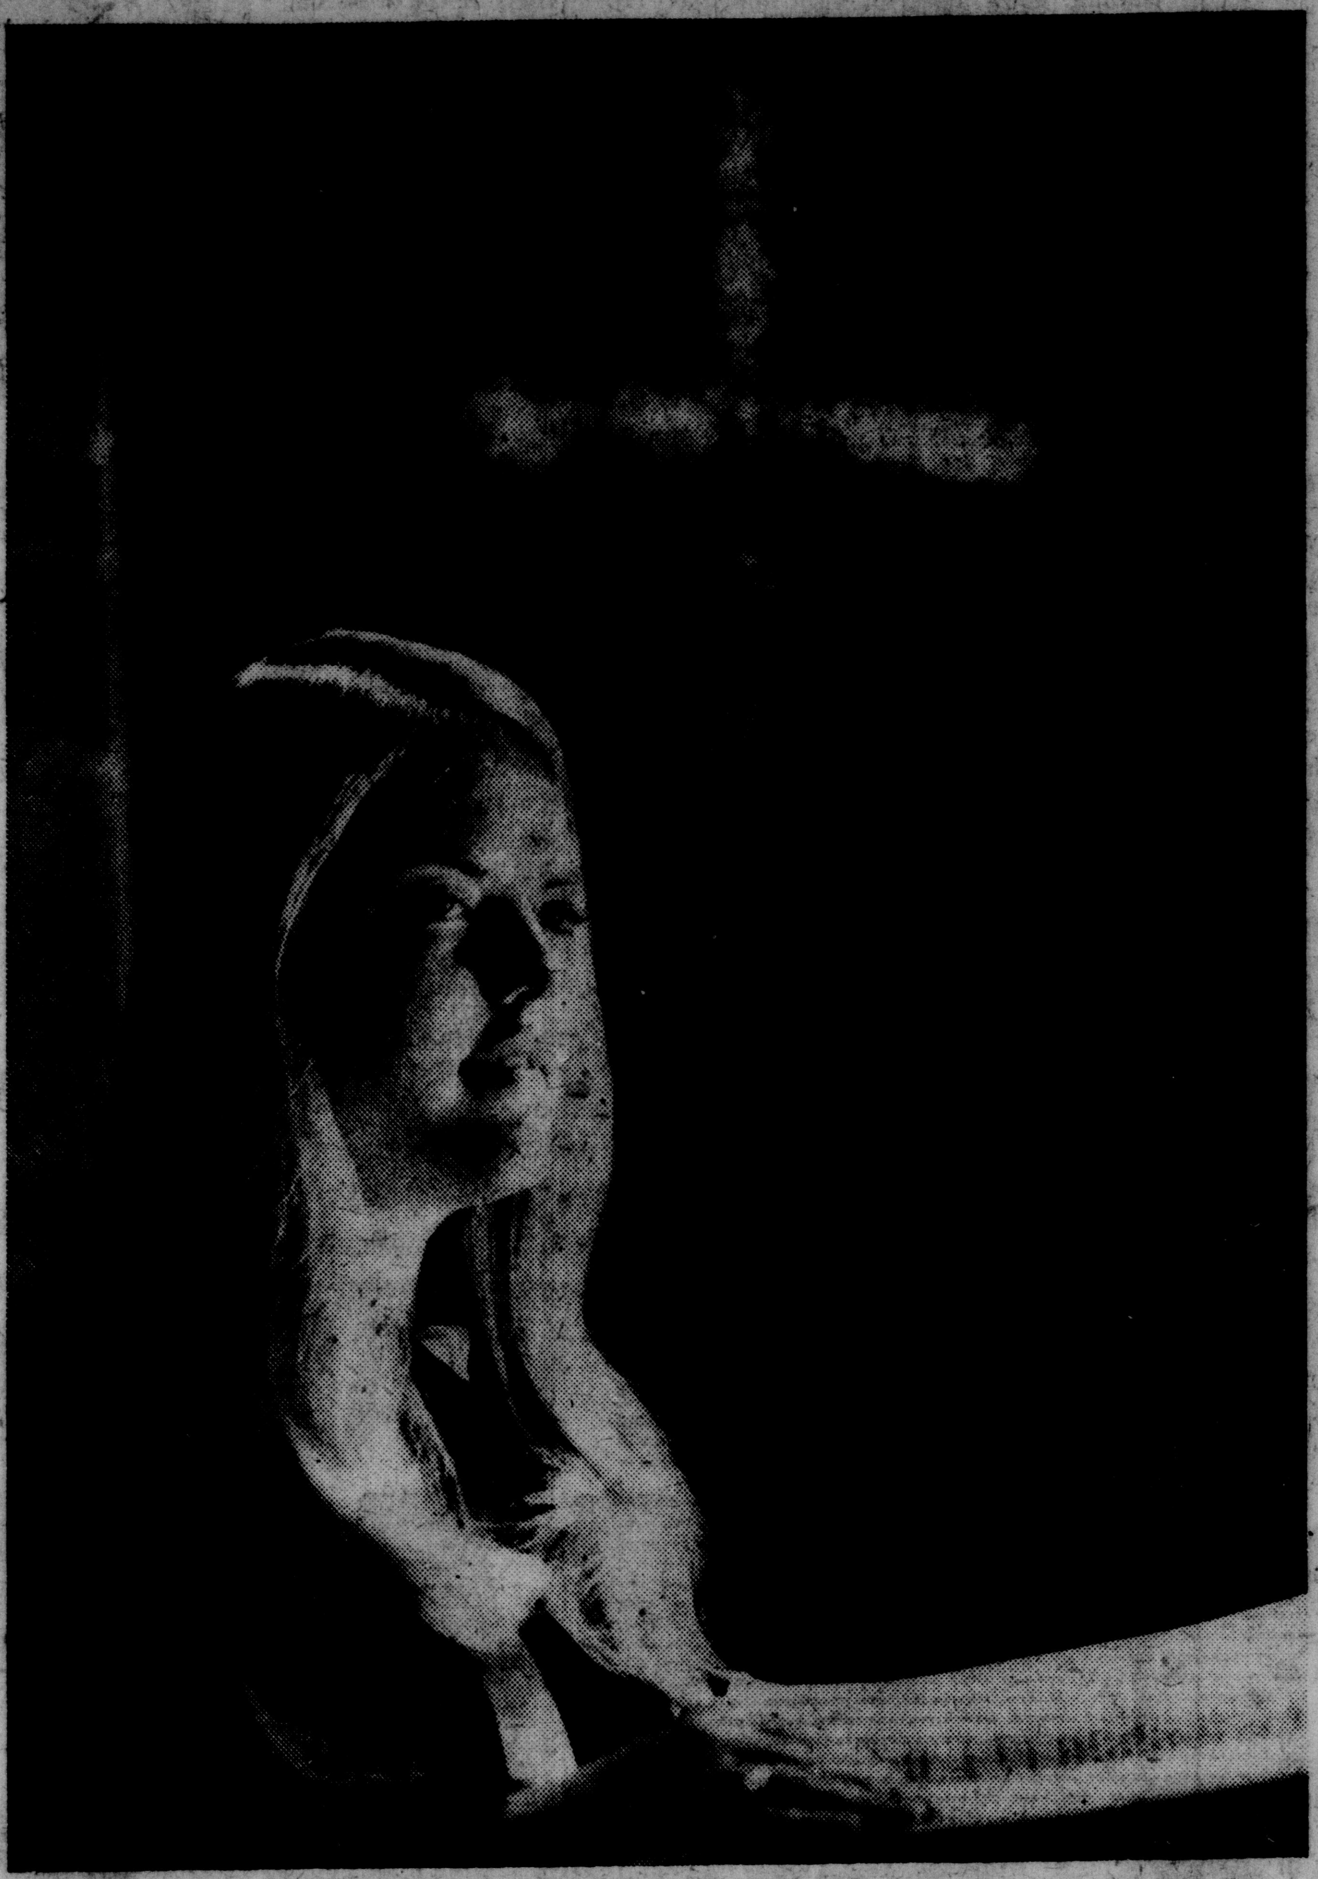
According to Ms. Self, the commission has found that more than half — 54 per cent — of the church membership are women, but participation by women in leadership positions is far below that level.

The commission is composed of 43 members, both clergy and laity, including five ordained women and 17 men. It is looking into such specific areas of concern as third world women, laywomen and women employed by the church.

IT IS TRYING to aid in the recruitment and placement of ordained women and recently held a conference of all ordained women in the Methodist church at which, Ms. Self said, the women gained crucial moral support from each other. Most are "isolated" from one another, serving in scattered locations, she said, and many still experience problems of acceptance.

Ten of these clergy women will serve as delegates to the upcoming general conference, the first time that has happened, Ms. Self added. She said there is also "momentum" going into the conference to elect a woman bishop, thus far an all-male post.

The Methodist church has also been taking strides on the issue of sexist language. According to Ms. Self, many agencies of the church already have adopted the McGraw-Hill Publishing Co.'s screen for sex and race bias. This is now applied to the church's Christian education curricula, devotional publications, hymns and liturgy, theology and organizational language.



ONE OF 620 women ordained in the Methodist Church, the Rev. Ruth Wegner served as associate pastor of First Methodist in Palatine two years. She is now a chaplain at a Chicago hospital.

When the commission asked women of the church for their experiences and observations concerning sexist language, it received more than 600 responses which have been collected in a book on the subject.

THE UNITED PRESBYTERIAN Church has also been ordaining women since 1956 and has about 190 clergywomen nationwide, with five in the Chicago area.

The Community Presbyterian Church of Mount Prospect has for some years been served by women in ministerial roles. The Rev. Amos Wilkie of that church reports he now is assisted by two women pastors awaiting calls and formal ordination.

He added, however, that it is still difficult for women to be placed in Presbyterian parishes, in part due to the surplus of ministers which also affects the Methodist and other Protestant churches.

Besides that, there is still opposition from the laity in many churches: "Women and men both have trouble with women in the pulpit — it's a problem," the Rev. Mr. Wilkie said.

But the president of the board of trustees and three board members at the Mount Prospect church are women, as well as seven of 15 elders and six of nine deacons.

THE CHRISTIAN WOMAN:
Her changing role

"There are still some Presbyterian churches where women are not elected as elders and trustees," Reverend Wilkie said.

SOMEWHAT MORE controversial in the Presbyterian church right now is the issue of sexist language. In 1971 the church's general assembly mandated that "all present church documents be revised in the next three years," because, it said, "generic usage of masculine nouns, pronouns, and adjectives is no longer acceptable in church documents."

In 1974 a proposed revision of the United Presbyterian book of worship, involving some 250 changes of sexist wording, was overwhelmingly defeated. Since then, no further action has been taken on the issue, according to David Donovan of the Chicago Presbytery.

However, the Chicago Presbytery has approved a revised church constitution in which sexist language was removed, and this will come before the general assembly in May, Donovan said.

Though the 1974 general assembly saw a record number of women participants as well as women serving for the first time in various leadership positions, a report in a Presbyterian publication termed the issue of sexist language "the cutting edge of the drive for the liberation of women and men."

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH, despite dramatic confrontations on the ordination issue, basically holds no theological objections to women as priests. The Church of England, parent of the U.S. Episcopal church, has found scripture and theology to be divided and inconclusive on the issue, and church tradition to be based on outdated, medieval assumptions.

The Anglican church has called for reappraisal and renewal of its lay resources and women in particular. Last year the Anglican church of Canada became the first of this denomination to approve ordination of women.

In the U.S. the issue is expected to be dealt with at a general convention of the church later this year, and some church leaders predict the practice will be approved.

The Rt. Rev. William F. Creighton, bishop of Washington, D.C., who opposed the irregular ordination of four women there last fall, said at that time that ordination of women would "unquestionably" be done by the church "no later than 18 months from now." He opposed ordination of the four on grounds that the issue has yet to be settled by the convention.

Storms of controversy have surrounded 11 other women who were ordained, also "irregularly," in 1974. One of these women has been serving as a priest at a Washington, D.C., church in defiance of an order by Bishop Creighton.

EARLIER THIS MONTH she was fired by the church's vestry and then reinstated at the demand of the congregation. Amid threats by Episcopal authorities that the church's priest would be suspended and the church closed, a member of the congregation termed the situation "raw political pressure."

Whatever the politics, it is probable that economics figures in the picture. The Episcopal church ex-

Bank right of set-off called into question

The only way to deal with banks is never to walk away from the window until you've made absolutely sure every detail of the transaction is correct.

Because if there has been an error it can be costly for the customer, even if it wasn't necessarily his error, and difficult for him to challenge. Although dissatisfied bank customers can complain to the state or federal administrator of banks, these agencies are sometimes not paragons of clarity and action where consumers are concerned.

Consider what happened to Clifford and Elaine Salzmann of Arlington Heights:

They were planning their vacation last summer and decided to get some traveler's checks from First Arlington National Bank, where they kept their checking account.

ON AUG. 1, Mrs. Salzmann went to her savings and loan and withdrew $600 in cash. Then she went immediately to First Arlington to convert the cash into American Express Travelers Cheques.

The teller suggested dividing the sum between two books of checks, one containing twenties and the other twenties and fifties. The transaction was completed, and Mrs. Salzmann put the two books into her purse. The family went on vacation and spent the checks.

One day late last October Mr. and Mrs. Salzmann received a letter from the bank saying that the teller who had handled their traveler's checks had made an error, recording 10 $20 checks as totaling $100 instead of $200. The bank claimed the teller had received only $100 from Mrs. Salzmann in payment for that book, that American Express was "requesting payment," and that $100 would be debited from Mr. and Mrs. Salzmann's checking account, subject to communication from them on the matter.

MRS. SALZMANN asked the bank to show her proof that she did not lay down a total of $600 — $200 for the book in question. She asked to see the teller's record for that day, but the bank did not produce it.

On Dec. 9 the money was deducted from the account "without my consent," Mrs. Salzmann later wrote to the regional administrator of national banks, Billy C. Wood.

"On December 13," she wrote, "my husband and I made a personal visit to the bank and demanded that the hundred dollars be returned to our account. We were flatly refused . . . To the best of my recollection, I have laid down the correct amount of cash as full payment for the checks. I ask the bank to prove that I didn't. To date, they haven't."

While waiting for the administrator to respond, Salzmann went to First Arlington to close out the checking account and move it elsewhere. Although the $100 had already been deducted, the bank's computer still registered a $100 "hold" on the account. It took 24 hours for Salzmann to gain

Area clubs take flower show honors

Six area garden clubs entered the standard flower show sponsored by the Garden Club of Illinois being held this week in conjunction with the Chicago Flower and Garden Show at McCormick Place. All six won ribbons according to Mrs. Joseph Koenen of Arlington Heights, committee member of the show.

Winning blue ribbons were the Garden Club of Inverness and Plum Grove Junior Garden Club. The Inverness entry, Mrs. David J. Kachik, chairman, was entered in the design class, "Godey's Lady's Book," Victorian type arrangements in a velvet lined niche.

Plum Grove Juniors earned the first place ribbon in "Creeks, Ponds and Sloughs" and also a third place yellow ribbon for "On the Banks of Plum Creek," a segment table picnic setting on a weathered nail keg.

EARNING RED RIBBONS were the Garden Club of Mount Prospect in "Dreams Come True" and Palanois Park Garden Club in "You Rang, Sir?"

Des Plaines Garden Club garnered a yellow third place in "Woods and Wilderness" and Arlington Heights Garden Club a white honorable mention for "Gilded Age."

The Garden Club of Illinois exhibit includes 84 artistic designs and table settings plus horticultural exhibits, educational and craft displays and lecture demonstrations.

The Chicago Flower and Garden Show continues through this Sunday and is open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. today and Friday; 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday; and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday.

Tickets are $3.50 for adults; $1.50 for children under 12.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Vital protein absent from all-fruit diet

My son and his wife have gone on a diet that is strictly fruits and vegetables with no milk, meat, eggs, bread, cheese, etc. As an example, for breakfast they have fresh fruits such as sliced peaches, melons, apples and bananas. For lunch they have lettuce, tomatoes, radishes, bananas, peaches or an apple mixed with raw nuts or sunflower seeds but no peanuts because they are of the legume family. For dinner they have stewed vegetables and no seasonings.

They eat this day after day for months. They claim it is for their health, to cleanse their bodies and not because it is a reducing diet. It is part of their religion. They expect to keep this up for at least a year.

My son has lost approximately 20 pounds since starting this diet. I am concerned about them but try not to interfere in their way of living. I would like to know if this is a healthy diet for a person doing heavy physical labor.

Although I do not claim to be a student of the Bible, I do believe that a basic tenet of most religions is to avoid suicide and things which are damaging to one's health. This is a strong statement, but the continuation of the kind of diet that you described over a long period of time can lead to such a severe malnutritional problem that it runs the risk of inducing a major health crisis or death.

Many people are able to eat a well-balanced diet as strict vegetarians, but they do this by using adequate amounts of the legume or bean family. Without an adequate amount of these in the diet they would have a severe protein deficiency. In the diet that you have described about the only source of protein I see is the small amount present in raw nuts and sunflower seeds.

AS A READER of my column, you know that I prefer for people to eliminate all excess body fat, but I do not believe in starvation or emaciation because of an inadequate diet. I hope that your son's loss of 20 pounds has been all body fat and not muscle. However, the above diet strongly suggests that he may be losing muscle as well as fat.

I cannot condemn such a diet too strongly. Every diet must have an adequate amount of protein. If a person for religious beliefs wishes to avoid all animal products, then he must be absolutely certain that he includes an adequate amount of the bean family in his diet to provide sufficient protein.

The diet must contain sufficient calories not to cause undue weight loss which results in loss of muscle and vital body cells.

I consider a number of these fad diets that have been circulated in recent times as being real health menaces. Those who want information on the balanced diet can send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 4-6, Balanced Diet, recommended by Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA). Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Those phone rentals worth checking out

Dear Dorothy: I consider myself a good shopper. But, oh, have I been had. Had to check the phone company about a mistake in billing (a call to Ecuador, which neither if us here made) and in the process of talking with the accounts person, noticed the monthly charge for a Princess phone extension. The conversation was utterly fascinating. Turned out we could have paid in full for that phone years ago, but it's all money gone since we never inquired in the first place! Talk about rip-offs! — Gayle Finley.

Let me join the club. You inspired a check on our Princess extension. Same story. The rental paid is not applicable now — it's simply one of those "expenses" one encounters in any kind of rental project. If we move, we can take the phone along—and then pay only an installation charge. No wonder that dividend goes up.

Dear Dorothy: There's a lesson here for everybody who bakes potatoes. I washed the potatoes cut off the ends of each — all except one. The phone interrupted me and that's why the one was forgotten. You can guess what happened. That potato burst — all over my clean oven. Ugh.—Phyllis Munter.

Dear Dorothy: Here's the way large crocheted scarves should be stretched. After laundering, use stiff starch and wring out well. Put a piece of plastic over the mattress and, using a yardstick for measuring, pin the scarf with stainless pins to the mattress. Starched and dried this way, a scarf stays clean for months.—Carolyn Shaw.

Methodists are leaders in ordaining

THE CHRISTIAN WOMAN:

Her changing role

by MONICA PERIN

(Last in a series)

Church historian Margaret Sittler Ermarth observed in her book "Adam's Fractured Rib" that Methodists in the United States ordained the country's first female theologian a hundred years ago, but in 1969 were formally studying "the woman problem."

Ms. Ermarth termed this the "stereotype syndrome," by which women have been channeled into limited, traditional types of service despite "relative freedom from the theological restraints and ecclesiastical traditions . . . that afflict other denominations."

According to Nancy Grissom Self, co-director of the Commission on the Status and Role of Women of the United Methodist Church, it is "long-established hierarchical pattern" that works against women.

Still, in comparison with a number of other denominations, the Methodist church has come a long way toward achieving full utilization of women.

Since ordination of women was officially adopted in 1956, the denomination has ordained 620 women — more than any other denomination — of whom about 12 to 15 are in the Chicago area. One, the Rev. Ruth Wegner, served as an associate pastor at the United Methodist Church in Palatine from 1971 to 1973.

In addition, a second woman is now serving as a district superintendent, a high post in the Methodist church administration and one held only by ordained persons.

ONE OF THE projects of the Women's Commission, which is headquartered in Evanston, has been to establish a women's "talent bank" to aid in getting women on more boards and agencies of the church, Ms. Self said.

"The male system always says its reason for not appointing a woman is that there aren't any qualified women available," said Ms. Self, so the talent bank will make such women known to those seeking them.

The commission, formed in 1972 by the church's general conference, will report to the conference next month that the church needs a "thorough-going, systemic" reform of its utilization of women. Only "token" numbers of women have so far broken into traditional male roles, it reports.

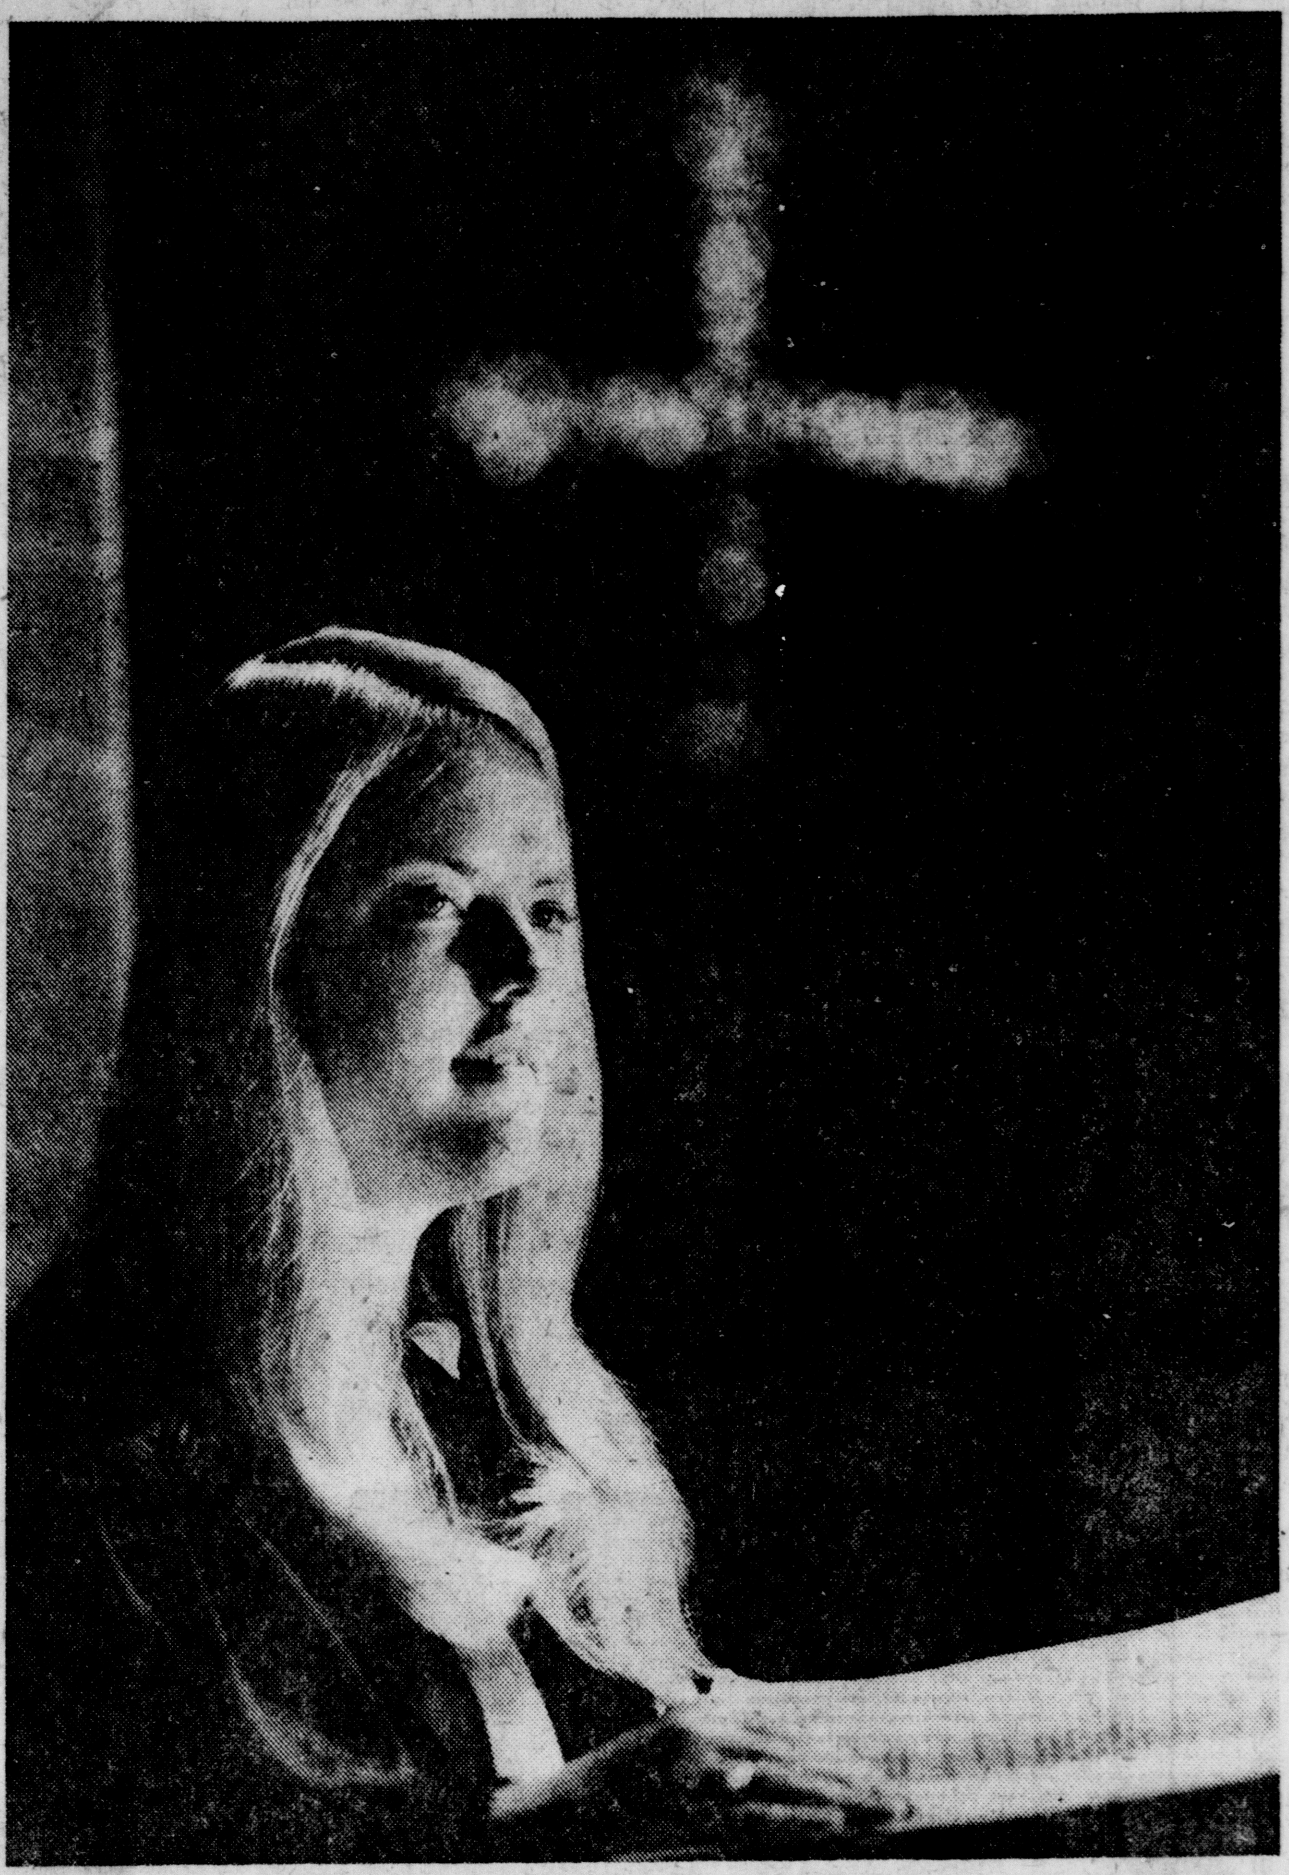
According to Ms. Self, the commission has found that more than half — 54 per cent — of the church membership are women, but participation by women in leadership positions is far below that level.

The commission is composed of 43 members, both clergy and laity, including five ordained women and 17 men. It is looking into such specific areas of concern as third world women, laywomen and women employed by the church.

IT IS TRYING to aid in the recruitment and placement of ordained women and recently held a conference of all ordained women in the Methodist church at which, Ms. Self said, the women gained crucial moral support from each other. Most are "isolated" from one another, serving in scattered locations, she said, and many still experience problems of acceptance.

Ten of these clergy women will serve as delegates to the upcoming general conference, the first time that has happened, Ms. Self added. She said there is also "momentum" going into the conference to elect a woman bishop, thus far an all-male post.

The Methodist church has also been taking strides on the issue of sexist language. According to Ms. Self, many agencies of the church already have adopted the McGraw-Hill Publishing Co.'s screen for sex and race bias. This is now applied to the church's Christian education curricula, devotional publications, hymns and liturgy, theology and organizational language.



ONE OF 620 women ordained in the Methodist Church, the Rev. Ruth Wegner served as associate pastor of First Methodist in Palatine two years. She is now a chaplain at a Chicago hospital.

When the commission asked women of the church for their experiences and observations concerning sexist language, it received more than 600 responses which have been collected in a book on the subject.

THE UNITED PRESBYTERIAN Church has also been ordaining women since 1956 and has about 190 clergywomen nationwide, with five in the Chicago area.

The Community Presbyterian Church of Mount Prospect has for some years been served by women in ministerial roles. The Rev. Amos Wilkie of that church reports he now is assisted by two women pastors awaiting calls and formal ordination.

He added, however, that it is still difficult for women to be placed in Presbyterian parishes, in part due to the surplus of ministers which also affects the Methodist and other Protestant churches.

Besides that, there is still opposition from the laity in many churches: "Women and men both have trouble with women in the pulpit — it's a problem," the Rev. Mr. Wilkie said.

But the president of the board of trustees and three board members at the Mount Prospect church are women, as well as seven of 15 elders and six of nine deacons.

"There are still some Presbyterian churches where women are not elected as elders and trustees," Reverend Wilkie said.

SOMEWHAT MORE controversial in the Presbyterian church right now is the issue of sexist language. In 1971 the church's general assembly mandated that "all present church documents be revised in the next three years," because, it said, "generic usage of masculine nouns, pronouns, and adjectives is no longer acceptable in church documents."

In 1974 a proposed revision of the United Presbyterian book of worship, involving some 250 changes of sexist wording, was overwhelmingly defeated. Since then, no further action has been taken on the issue, according to David Donovan of the Chicago Presbytery.

However, the Chicago Presbytery has approved a revised church constitution in which sexist language was removed, and this will come before the general assembly in May, Donovan said.

Though the 1974 general assembly saw a record number of women participants as well as women serving for the first time in various leadership positions, a report in a Presbyterian publication termed the issue of sexist language "the cutting edge of the drive for the liberation of women and men."

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH, despite dramatic confrontations on the ordination issue, basically holds no theological objections to women as priests. The Church of England, parent of the U.S. Episcopal church, has found scripture and theology to be divided and inconclusive on the issue, and church tradition to be based on outdated, medieval assumptions.

The Anglican church has called for reappraisal and renewal of its lay resources and women in particular. Last year the Anglican church of Canada became the first of this denomination to approve ordination of women.

In the U.S. the issue is expected to be dealt with at a general convention of the church later this year, and some church leaders predict the practice will be approved.

The Rt. Rev. William F. Creighton, bishop of Washington, D.C., who opposed the irregular ordination of four women there last fall, said at that time that ordination of women would "unquestionably" be done by the church "no later than 18 months from now." He opposed ordination of the four on grounds that the issue has yet to be settled by the convention.

Storms of controversy have surrounded 11 other women who were ordained, also "irregularly," in 1974. One of these women has been serving as a priest at a Washington, D.C., church in defiance of an order by Bishop Creighton.

EARLIER THIS MONTH she was fired by the church's vestry and then reinstated at the demand of the congregation. Amid threats by Episcopal authorities that the church's priest would be suspended and the church closed, a member of the congregation termed the situation "raw political pressure."

Whatever the politics, it is probable that economics figures in the picture. The Episcopal church ex-

Bank right of set-off called into question

The only way to deal with banks is never to walk away from the window until you've made absolutely sure every detail of the transaction is correct.

Because if there has been an error it can be costly for the customer, even if it wasn't necessarily his error, and difficult for him to challenge. Although dissatisfied bank customers can complain to the state or federal administrator of banks, these agencies are sometimes not paragons of clarity and action where consumers are concerned.

Consider what happened to Clifford and Elaine Salzmann of Arlington Heights:

They were planning their vacation last summer and decided to get some traveler's checks from First Arlington National Bank, where they kept their checking account.

ON AUG. 1, Mrs. Salzmann went to her savings and loan and withdrew $600 in cash. Then she went immediately to First Arlington to convert the cash into American Express Travelers Cheques.

The teller suggested dividing the sum between two books of checks, one containing twenties and the other twenties and fifties. The transaction was completed, and Mrs. Salzmann put the two books into her purse. The family went on vacation and spent the checks.

One day late last October Mr. and Mrs. Salzmann received a letter from the bank saying that the teller who had handled their traveler's checks had made an error, recording 10 $20 checks as totaling $100 instead of $200. The bank claimed the teller had received only $100 from Mrs. Salzmann in payment for that book, that American Express was "requesting payment," and that $100 would be debited from Mr. and Mrs. Salzmann's checking account, subject to communication from them on the matter.

MRS. SALZMANN asked the bank to show her proof that she did not lay down a total of $600 — $200 for the book in question. She asked to see the teller's record for that day, but the bank did not produce it.

On Dec. 9 the money was deducted from the account "without my consent," Mrs. Salzmann later wrote to the regional administrator of national banks, Billy C. Wood.

"On December 13," she wrote, "my husband and I made a personal visit to the bank and demanded that the hundred dollars be returned to our account. We were flatly refused . . . To the best of my recollection, I have laid down the correct amount of cash as full payment for the checks. I ask the bank to prove that I didn't. To date, they haven't."

While waiting for the administrator to respond, Salzmann went to First Arlington to close out the checking account and move it elsewhere. Although the $100 had already been deducted, the bank's computer still registered a $100 "hold" on the account. It took 24 hours for Salzmann to gain

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Vital protein absent from all-fruit diet

My son and his wife have gone on a diet that is strictly fruits and vegetables with no milk, meat, eggs, bread, cheese, etc. As an example, for breakfast they have fresh fruits such as sliced peaches, melons, apples and bananas. For lunch they have lettuce, tomatoes, radishes, bananas, peaches or an apple mixed with raw nuts or sunflower seeds but no peanuts because they are of the legume family. For dinner they have stewed vegetables and no seasonings.

They eat this day after day for months. They claim it is for their health, to cleanse their bodies and not because it is a reducing diet. It is part of their religion. They expect to keep this up for at least a year.

My son has lost approximately 20 pounds since starting this diet. I am concerned about them but try not to interfere in their way of living. I would like to know if this is a healthy diet for a person doing heavy physical labor.

Although I do not claim to be a student of the Bible, I do believe that a basic tenet of most religions is to avoid suicide and things which are damaging to one's health. This is a strong statement, but the continuation of the kind of diet that you described over a long period of time can lead to such a severe malnutritional problem that it runs the risk of inducing a major health crisis or death.

Many people are able to eat a well-balanced diet as strict vegetarians, but they do this by using adequate amounts of the legume or bean family. Without an adequate amount of these in the diet they would have a severe protein deficiency. In the diet that you have described about the only source of protein I see is the small amount present in raw nuts and sunflower seeds.

AS A READER of my column, you know that I prefer for people to eliminate all excess body fat, but I do not believe in starvation or emaciation because of an inadequate diet. I hope that your son's loss of 20 pounds has been all body fat and not muscle. However, the above diet strongly suggests that he may be losing muscle as well as fat.

I cannot condemn such a diet too strongly. Every diet must have an adequate amount of protein. If a person for religious beliefs wishes to avoid all animal products, then he must be absolutely certain that he includes an adequate amount of the bean family in his diet to provide sufficient protein.

The diet must contain sufficient calories not to cause undue weight loss which results in loss of muscle and vital body cells.

I consider a number of these fad diets that have been circulated in recent times as being real health menaces. Those who want information on the balanced diet can send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 4-6, Balanced Diet, recommended by Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA). Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Those phone rentals worth checking out

Dear Dorothy: I consider myself a good shopper. But, oh, have I been had. Had to check the phone company about a mistake in billing (a call to Ecuador, which neither if us here made) and in the process of talking with the accounts person, noticed the monthly charge for a Princess phone extension. The conversation was utterly fascinating. Turned out we could have paid in full for that phone years ago, but it's all money gone since we never inquired in the first place! Talk about rip-offs! — Gayle Finley.

Let me join the club. You inspired a check on our Princess extension. Same story. The rental paid is not applicable now — it's simply one of those "expenses" one encounters in any kind of rental project. If we move, we can take the phone along—and then pay only an installation charge. No wonder that dividend goes up.

Dear Dorothy: There's a lesson here for everybody who bakes potatoes. I washed the potatoes cut off the ends of each — all except one. The phone interrupted me and that's why the one was forgotten. You can guess what happened. That potato burst — all over my clean oven. Ugh.—Phyllis Munter.

Dear Dorothy: Here's the way large crocheted scarves should be stretched. After laundering, use stiff starch and wring out well. Put a piece of plastic over the mattress and, using a yardstick for measuring, pin the scarf with stainless pins to the mattress. Starched and dried this way, a scarf stays clean for months.—Carolyn Shaw.

Dear Dorothy: A friend and I were named a "committee" to make a raft of sandwiches for a luncheon meeting. Our salvation was an electric knife. And no shredding of the bread!—Joyce Madden.

Baby tears gets a name

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

"Betty Boop" was the name chosen to win the Potting Shed's Name-the-Plant Contest.

For her winning name, Mrs. Alvin Soltys of Des Plaines will receive a new gardening book in the mail. Other creative suggestions submitted for my baby tears plant were "Rosemary's Baby," entered by Mary Lozander of Buffalo Grove and "Sarah Bernhardt," submitted by Karen Russell of Schaumburg. We're sending these plant buffs some experimental Burpee seeds to try in their gardens — seeds that won't appear on the market until next year.

I DON'T KNOW whether most persons attend the Chicago Flower and Garden Show more for the spectacular show gardens or all the goodie booths. Somehow, though, each part needs the other.

Personally, I go bananas over all the little plant boutiques. One would have to comb Chicagoland to find as vast an array of hard-to-find treats as are marshalled by the flower show foliage hawkers. I saw many oldsters, probably blowing their Social Security checks on new acquisitions, people in wheel chairs, too. There was even a lady fighting the crowds while hooked up to her own oxygen tank — that's what you call real dedication!

I had to get my annual supply of insect-eating cobra lilies (darlingtonia) from Frank Zink and Son of Lombard, who make their yearly appearance at the show. And the ti grower was there, along with a new outfit from Hawaii, manned by Hawaiians, selling sprouted coconuts, anthuriums and all the treats from the Islands. Chicagoans seem to go crazy over Polynesian plants. It was a fight to get to the front of the line to buy plants.

FRED'S GARDEN Center of Milwaukee always brings hordes of 60-cent cactus for the sun-lovers. And there is Aeonium (black rose), Old Man of the Ances, watch chain and grizzly bear cactus — so many impulse buys for plant-happy people such as you and I.

Barbara Stanley of Sure Crop, Inc. of Glen Ellyn told me that their "Big Red" and "Big Green" seed starting kits (for growing tomatoes, cukes, squash, peppers) have already sold to 1.4 million customers — and it's a new product devised by her ingenious husband, Peter, for this spring consumption.

Mrs. Stanley had a difficult time trying to keep up with the customers stocking up on her "Big Reds" and talking to me at the same time, but she managed. Barbara said her husband got the idea for merchandising his clever produce (through Jewel, Penneys, K-Mart, Ben Franklin, etc) from Leggs Pantyhose' egg. The "Big Red" is a large, red plastic vegetable that divides into two halves to become a growing container, housing peat pellet, seeds and directions.

PETER STANLEY developed the moxie to devise what has to be the most creative horticultural packaging idea of the new growing season from his background as an Extension Service agent, as a buyer for the home and garden section of W. T. Grant Co. and as an employe of the prestigious wholesale seed firm, George Ball Co.

NOW SOMEBODY should come up with a unique device for carrying around all the things people buy at the flower show so their plants don't get bruised, and they'd make a million dollars!

If you haven't trekked down to the flower show yet, there are still three days left — best time to cash in on bargains. Many of the plant sellers don't really want to drag leftovers back and you just might get a big bargain! See the big gardens! They'll make you want to go home and dig up your whole lawn, hire a bulldozer and create a new Garden of Eden.

GARDEN WRITER Mary B. Good shows off her baby tears plant, heretofore nameless, but now called Betty Boop, as suggested by a Potting Shed reader in Mary's name the plant contest.

Task forces will study rape services

Several task forces to investigate rape services were set up as a result of a seminar on rape in the northwest suburbs, held last Saturday at Harper College.

Under consideration are a speaker's bureau to organize continuing education on rape issues; a lay advocates' group to help victims and their families through the complicated prosecution procedures; a newsletter to be sent to schools, churches, counseling organizations and other interested persons; and a crisis line to aid victims immediately after the assault.

A planning session for those interested in these task forces is scheduled for April 3, said Gail Russell, one of the seminar's organizers from The Bridge in Palatine Township.

THE SEMINAR attracted about 60 persons, including 11 men. Ms. Russell said three police departments were represented, Hoffman Estates, Barrington Hills and Palatine.

She said most persons thought the problem of rape was so large and complex they didn't know where to begin dealing with it.

"So much is culturally determined," said Ms. Russell. "From what we can tell, it (rape) has existed since the time of recorded history. It doesn't seem to us there are enough resources to deal with it out here."

In her counseling work with The Bridge, she said, it has been very difficult to find services for rape victims here.

THERE IS no one to follow up on victims who take their cases to court, said Ms. Russell, who has counseled young girls experiencing emotional setbacks resulting from rape.

She said people are not aware of how prominent rape is in the northwest suburbs. "Most cases are not reported," she said. "I am aware of a couple of young girls right now who have decided not to report it."

Ms. Russell said she would like to see a network, independent of the various agencies, set up to provide educational services to the communities and supportive measures to the victims and their families.

Those interested in attending the April 3 meeting should telephone her at The Bridge, 359-7490.

perienced an 11.6 per cent drop in membership from 1970-1974, but an increase in clergy of 7.3 per cent. With 100 to 200 clergymen out of work, four diocesan bishops have imposed moratoriums on ordinations. In Washington Bishop Creighton endorses only four ordination applicants a year — out of 80 to 100 who present themselves.

The economic situation is similar for most of the other mainline denominations. Many are experiencing severe budget difficulties as inflation soars and membership drops. Some churches must get along without a pastor because they can't afford to pay a living wage.

Nevertheless, according to the Association of Theological Schools, enrollment of women in seminaries has nearly doubled since 1971, although ordinations have not increased.

The concept of equality for women is at least as revolutionary for the church as it has been for American society. Yet, ironically, the manmade laws which require society to treat women equally had their origin in natural or God-given law, the philosophical basis for democracy.

Here's how to announce engagement in Herald

Paddock Suburban Living department is often called by those seeking information on submitting announcements for publication. We print the following for the reader's information and help.

The announcement of an engagement is always made by the parents of the engaged girl, who may either fill out an engagement form at our office or submit their own information along with a wallet sized picture of the bride-to-be.

If a wallet sized photograph is not available, a larger one can be used.

Bring or mail picture and copy to The Herald office in Arlington Heights or mail to Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60006.

Parents not using one of our forms may either write or type the information. If the announcement is submitted in hand-writing we ask that all names be printed to avoid errors. We also request that a phone number accompany the signature at the bottom of the announcement.

A glossy picture is preferable although a dull finish is acceptable. Color photos are used at the discretion of the editors depending on contrast and depth of color.

There is no charge for engagement pictures and announcements. Usually they will be printed within a week after reaching our office.

All announcements must be in our office at least six weeks before the wedding date.

release of the money left in the account.

IN FEBRUARY Mr. and Mrs. Salzmann were notified by the federal administrator and by First Arlington that the $100 was being restored to them — temporarily.

The letter from the bank said, "We expect that when verification (meaning the canceled checks) comes from American Express, you will return to us the $100."

On Feb. 21 Mr. and Mrs. Salzmann received a note from the bank enclosing the canceled traveler's checks and requesting $100 payment.

But Mr. and Mrs. Salzmann still insisted the canceled checks did not prove how much cash crossed the counter that day. They wanted to see the teller's record. (The federal administrator's office would not say whether they had seen the bank's record of the day.)

WHEN THE HERALD asked the bank about the teller's record, assistant vice president Kay Higgison said it had balanced and that this indicated the teller only received $500. She agreed to send a copy of the record to the Salzmanns, but did not do so. She told The Herald this week that the bank "does not want to give out copies of bank records," and thus has decided to drop the case.

The federal administrator's office was reluctant to talk about what people's rights are in regard to banks, or what procedures banks are supposed to follow. John Sherry, legal counsel to the federal administrator, refused to discuss details of the Salzmann case but pointed out that the Uniform Commercial Code gives banks the right of "set-off":

ARTICLE 4 Section 4-401 states that banks may charge against a customer's account "any item which is otherwise properly payable from that account."

Sherry conceded that there was a question in the Salzmann incident "whether the facts were sufficient" to justify set-off.

A local attorney and an examiner for the state comptroller of banks, asked by The Herald for their interpretation of the Salzmann case, both questioned whether the right of set-off applied. The examiner pointed in particular to the three-month lapse before the bank notified the Salzmanns of the error. He also said set-off usually has been applied to loan defaults and bad checks.

Baby tears gets a name

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

"Betty Boop" was the name chosen to win the Potting Shed's Name-the-Plant Contest.

For her winning name, Mrs. Alvin Soltys of Des Plaines will receive a new gardening book in the mail. Other creative suggestions submitted for my baby tears plant were "Rosemary's Baby," entered by Mary Lozander of Buffalo Grove and "Sarah Bernhardt," submitted by Karen Russell of Schaumburg. We're sending these plant buffs some experimental Burpee seeds to try in their gardens — seeds that won't appear on the market until next year.

I DON'T KNOW whether most persons attend the Chicago Flower and Garden Show more for the spectacular show gardens or all the goodie booths. Somehow, though, each part needs the other.

Personally, I go bananas over all the little plant boutiques. One would have to comb Chicagoland to find as vast an array of hard-to-find treats as are marshalled by the flower show foliage hawkers. I saw many oldsters, probably blowing their Social Security checks on new acquisitions, people in wheel chairs, too. There was even a lady fighting the crowds while hooked up to her own oxygen tank — that's what you call real dedication!

I had to get my annual supply of insect-eating cobra lilies (darlingtonia) from Frank Zink and Son of Lombard, who make their yearly appearance at the show. And the ti grower was there, along with a new outfit from Hawaii, manned by Hawaiians, selling sprouted coconuts, anthuriums and all the treats from the Islands. Chicagoans seem to go crazy over Polynesian plants. It was a fight to get to the front of the line to buy plants.

FRED'S GARDEN Center of Milwaukee always brings hordes of 60-cent cactus for the sun-lovers. And there is Aeonium (black rose), Old Man of the Ances, watch chain and grizzly bear cactus — so many impulse buys for plant-happy people such as you and I.

Barbara Stanley of Sure Crop, Inc. of Glen Ellyn told me that their "Big Red" and "Big Green" seed starting kits (for growing tomatoes, cukes, squash, peppers) have already sold to 1.4 million customers — and it's a new product devised by her ingenious husband, Peter, for this spring consumption.

Mrs. Stanley had a difficult time trying to keep up with the customers stocking up on her "Big Reds" and talking to me at the same time, but she managed. Barbara said her husband got the idea for merchandising his clever produce (through Jewel, Penneys, K-Mart, Ben Franklin, etc) from Leggs Pantyhose' egg. The "Big Red" is a large, red plastic vegetable that divides into two halves to become a growing container, housing peat pellet, seeds and directions.

PETER STANLEY developed the moxie to devise what has to be the most creative horticultural packaging idea of the new growing season from his background as an Extension Service agent, as a buyer for the home and garden section of W. T. Grant Co. and as an employe of the prestigious wholesale seed firm, George Ball Co.

NOW SOMEBODY should come up with a unique device for carrying around all the things people buy at the flower show so their plants don't get bruised, and they'd make a million dollars!

If you haven't trekked down to the flower show yet, there are still three days left — best time to cash in on bargains. Many of the plant sellers don't really want to drag leftovers back and you just might get a big bargain! See the big gardens! They'll make you want to go home and dig up your whole lawn, hire a bulldozer and create a new Garden of Eden.

GARDEN WRITER Mary B. Good shows off her baby tears plant, heretofore nameless, but now called Betty Boop, as suggested by a Potting Shed reader in Mary's name the plant contest.

Task forces will study rape services

Several task forces to investigate rape services were set up as a result of a seminar on rape in the northwest suburbs, held last Saturday at Harper College.

Under consideration are a speaker's bureau to organize continuing education on rape issues; a lay advocates' group to help victims and their families through the complicated prosecution procedures; a newsletter to be sent to schools, churches, counseling organizations and other interested persons; and a crisis line to aid victims immediately after the assault.

A planning session for those interested in these task forces is scheduled for April 3, said Gail Russell, one of the seminar's organizers from The Bridge in Palatine Township.

THE SEMINAR attracted about 60 persons, including 11 men. Ms. Russell said three police departments were represented, Hoffman Estates, Barrington Hills and Palatine.

She said most persons thought the problem of rape was so large and complex they didn't know where to begin dealing with it.

"So much is culturally determined," said Ms. Russell. "From what we can tell, it (rape) has existed since the time of recorded history. It doesn't seem to us there are enough resources to deal with it out here."

In her counseling work with The Bridge, she said, it has been very difficult to find services for rape victims here.

THERE IS no one to follow up on victims who take their cases to court, said Ms. Russell, who has counseled young girls experiencing emotional setbacks resulting from rape.

She said people are not aware of how prominent rape is in the northwest suburbs. "Most cases are not reported," she said. "I am aware of a couple of young girls right now who have decided not to report it."

Ms. Russell said she would like to see a network, independent of the various agencies, set up to provide educational services to the communities and supportive measures to the victims and their families.

Those interested in attending the April 3 meeting should telephone her at The Bridge, 359-7490.

perienced an 11.6 per cent drop in membership from 1970-1974, but an increase in clergy of 7.3 per cent. With 100 to 200 clergymen out of work, four diocesan bishops have imposed moratoriums on ordinations. In Washington Bishop Creighton endorses only four ordination applicants a year — out of 80 to 100 who present themselves.

The economic situation is similar for most of the other mainline denominations. Many are experiencing severe budget difficulties as inflation soars and membership drops. Some churches must get along without a pastor because they can't afford to pay a living wage.

Nevertheless, according to the Association of Theological Schools, enrollment of women in seminaries has nearly doubled since 1971, although ordinations have not increased.

The concept of equality for women is at least as revolutionary for the church as it has been for American society. Yet, ironically, the manmade laws which require society to treat women equally had their origin in natural or God-given law, the philosophical basis for democracy.

Here's how to announce engagement in Herald

Paddock Suburban Living department is often called by those seeking information on submitting announcements for publication. We print the following for the reader's information and help.

The announcement of an engagement is always made by the parents of the engaged girl, who may either fill out an engagement form at our office or submit their own information along with a wallet sized picture of the bride-to-be.

If a wallet sized photograph is not available, a larger one can be used.

Bring or mail picture and copy to The Herald office in Arlington Heights or mail to Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60006.

Parents not using one of our forms may either write or type the information. If the announcement is submitted in hand-writing we ask that all names be printed to avoid errors. We also request that a phone number accompany the signature at the bottom of the announcement.

A glossy picture is preferable although a dull finish is acceptable. Color photos are used at the discretion of the editors depending on contrast and depth of color.

There is no charge for engagement pictures and announcements. Usually they will be printed within a week after reaching our office.

All announcements must be in our office at least six weeks before the wedding date.

release of the money left in the account.

IN FEBRUARY Mr. and Mrs. Salzmann were notified by the federal administrator and by First Arlington that the $100 was being restored to them — temporarily.

The letter from the bank said, "We expect that when verification (meaning the canceled checks) comes from American Express, you will return to us the $100."

On Feb. 21 Mr. and Mrs. Salzmann received a note from the bank enclosing the canceled traveler's checks and requesting $100 payment.

But Mr. and Mrs. Salzmann still insisted the canceled checks did not prove how much cash crossed the counter that day. They wanted to see the teller's record. (The federal administrator's office would not say whether they had seen the bank's record of the day.)

WHEN THE HERALD asked the bank about the teller's record, assistant vice president Kay Higgison said it had balanced and that this indicated the teller only received $500. She agreed to send a copy of the record to the Salzmanns, but did not do so. She told The Herald this week that the bank "does not want to give out copies of bank records," and thus has decided to drop the case.

The federal administrator's office was reluctant to talk about what people's rights are in regard to banks, or what procedures banks are supposed to follow. John Sherry, legal counsel to the federal administrator, refused to discuss details of the Salzmann case but pointed out that the Uniform Commercial Code gives banks the right of "set-off":

ARTICLE 4 Section 4-401 states that banks may charge against a customer's account "any item which is otherwise properly payable from that account."

Sherry conceded that there was a question in the Salzmann incident "whether the facts were sufficient" to justify set-off.

A local attorney and an examiner for the state comptroller of banks, asked by The Herald for their interpretation of the Salzmann case, both questioned whether the right of set-off applied. The examiner pointed in particular to the three-month lapse before the bank notified the Salzmanns of the error. He also said set-off usually has been applied to loan defaults and bad checks.

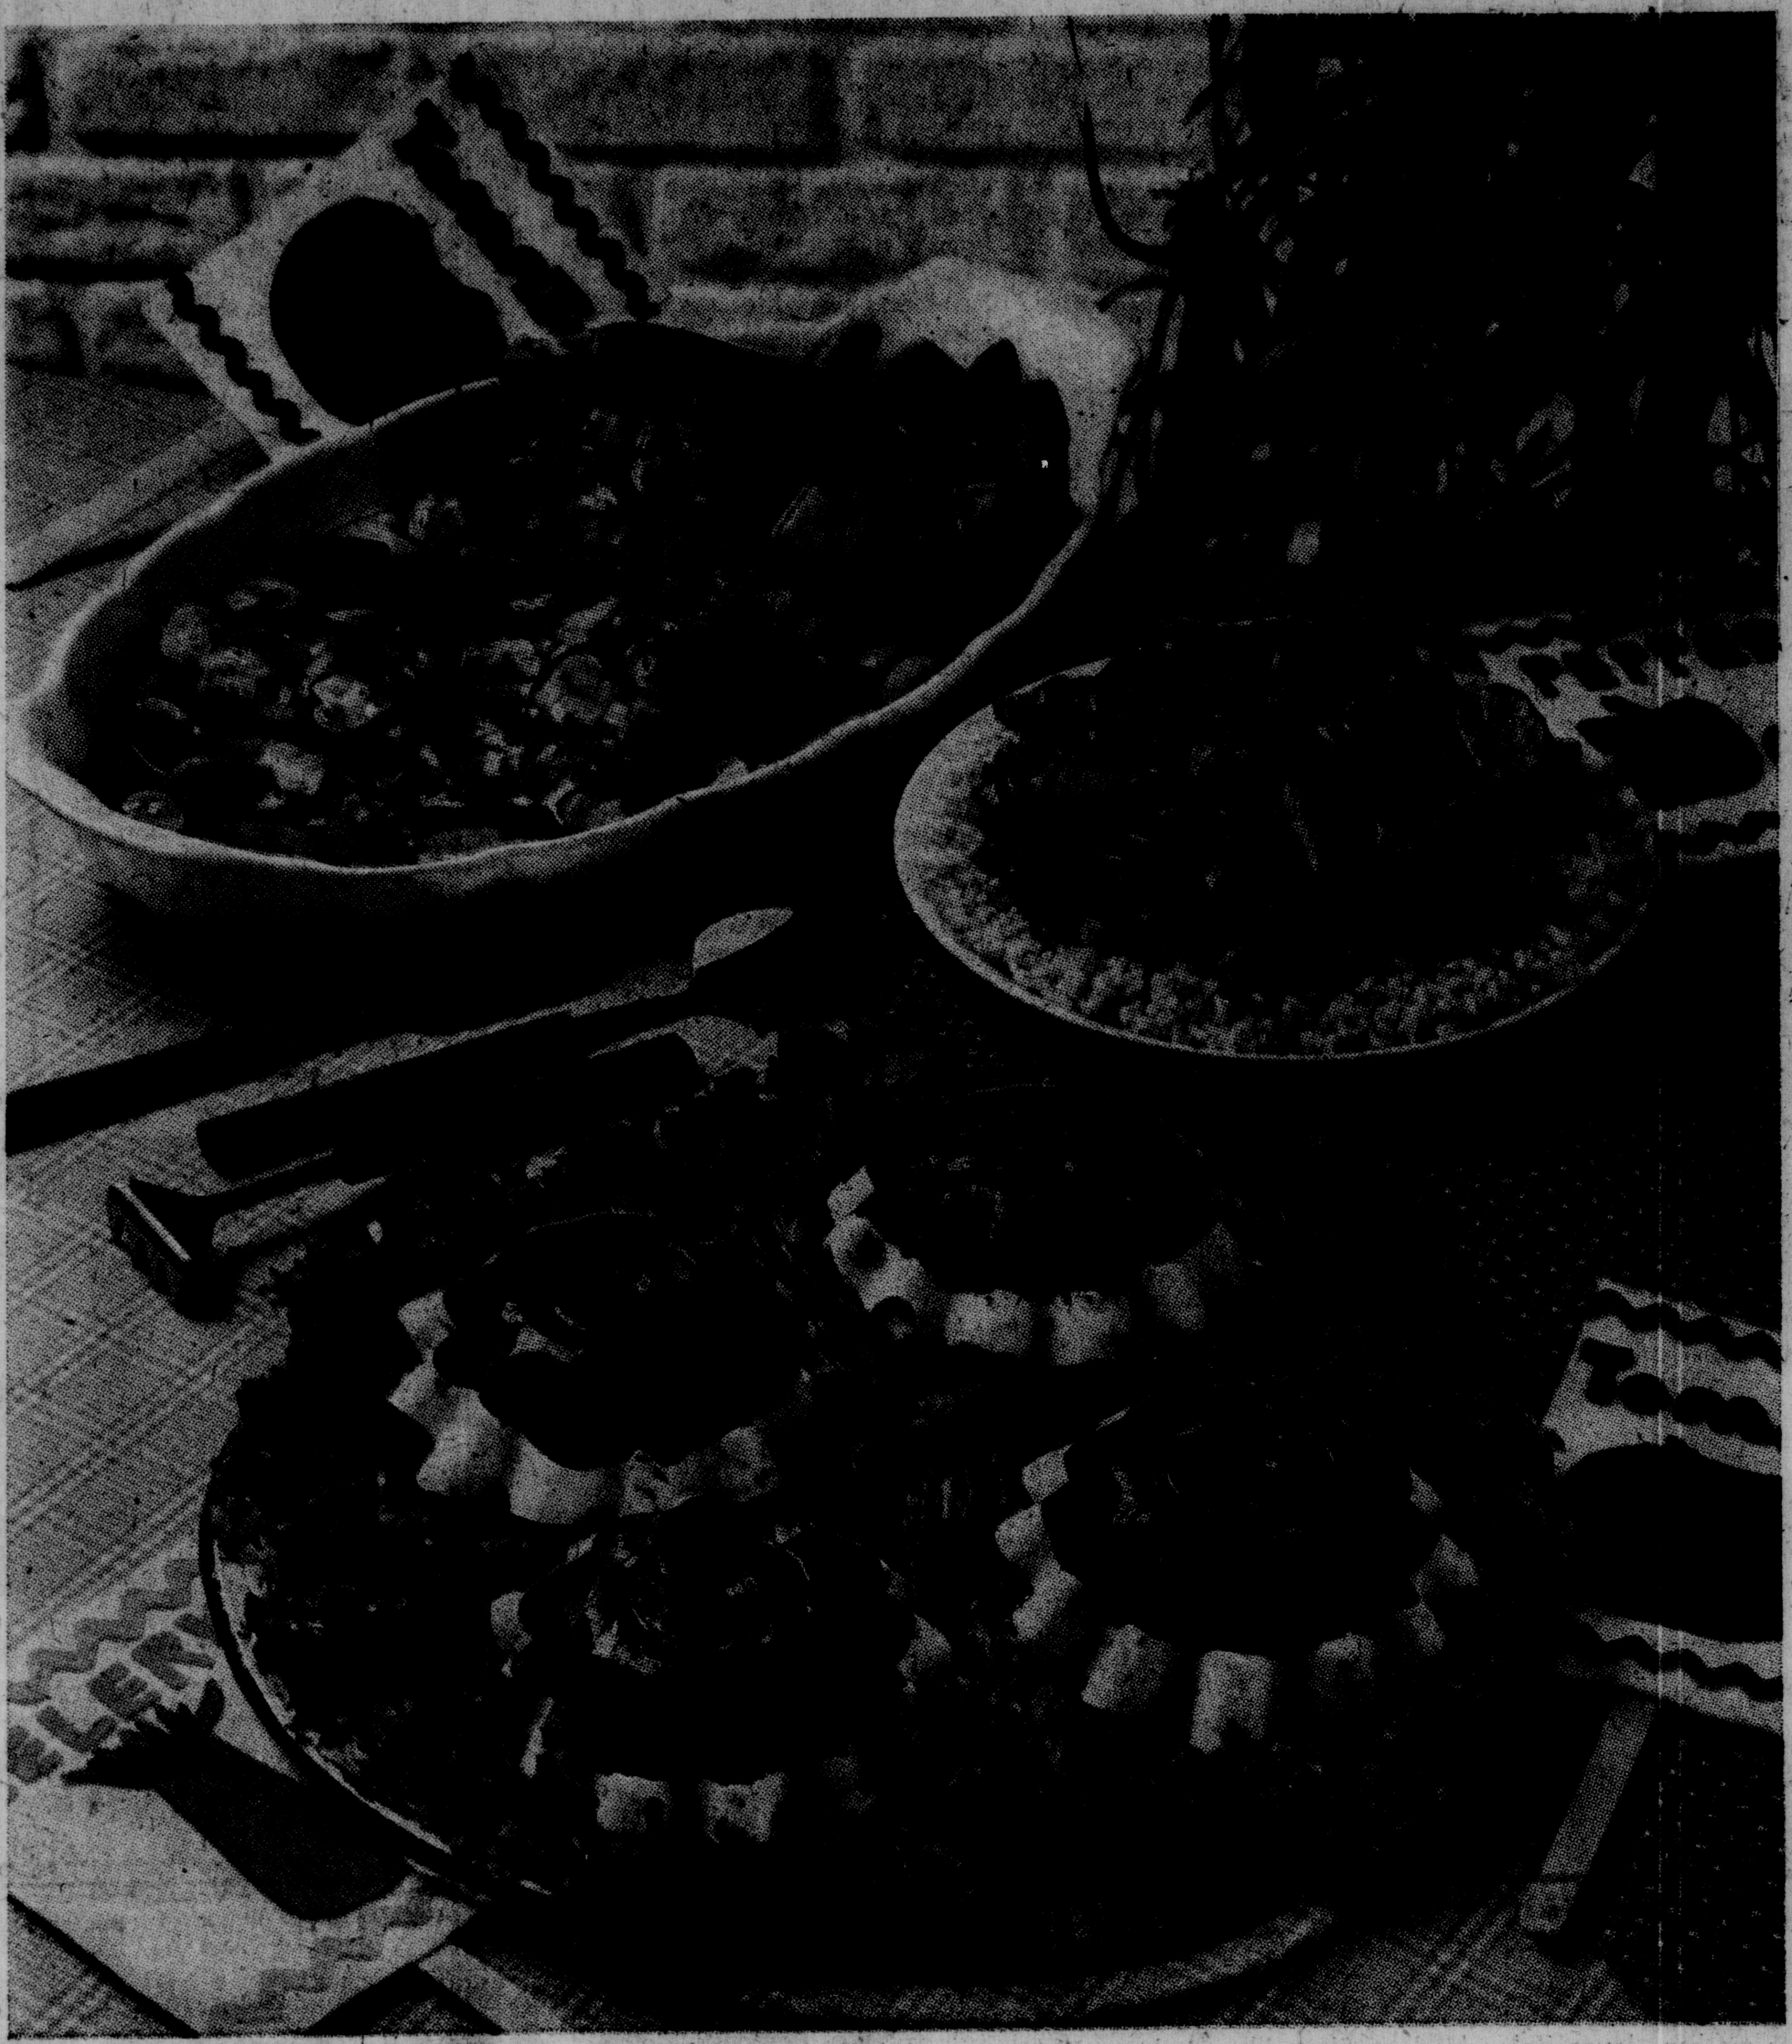
SPRINGTIME LUNCHTIME

When weather is cold, soup and sandwiches are fine for lunch. But now that spring is on the way, it's a good time to begin planning lunches that satisfy reawakened appetites.

Sometimes it's fun to turn an old favorite into something quite different — like this Bacon, Lettuce and Tomato Aspic instead of a sandwich. It is particularly good for women's luncheons and is made ahead of time.

Creole Franks on Cheese Rice can be made in minutes — an important plus to planning for children's lunches. And for the heartier appetites is Chicken and Celery Italiano, a relatively low-calorie dish.

All three recipes require tomato juice, which has only 35 calories per three-fourths cup. When used as a liquid in a recipe, it adds vitamin A and C, and small amounts of iron and niacin, besides providing a bright look of spring.



Bacon, Lettuce and Tomato Aspic

2 envelopes (6 teaspoons) unflavored gelatin
2 cups tomato juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon seasoned salt
1 cup finely chopped lettuce*
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
1 cup water
⅔ cup mayonnaise
¾ cup shredded Tilsit or Muenster cheese (3 ounces)
6 slices bacon, crisp cooked and crumbled
1 teaspoon chopped fresh parsley

*Crisp center of Iceberg lettuce is best.

In a small saucepan, soften 4 teaspoons gelatin in ½ cup of tomato juice. Heat over medium heat to dissolve gelatin. Add remaining tomato juice, lemon juice and seasoned salt. Place pan in bowl of ice water to cool. Stir occasionally until consistency of unbeaten egg whites. Stir in lettuce and green pepper. Pour into eight 6-ounce molds or custard cups. Chill while preparing mayonnaise layer.

In a small saucepan, soften remaining 2 teaspoons of gelatin in water. Stir over medium heat until gelatin is dissolved. Place pan in bowl of ice water to cool. Stir occasionally until thickened, as above. Stir in mayonnaise, cheese, bacon and parsley. Pour about ¼ cup over aspic layer in each mold. Chill until set. Unmold on lettuce-lined plates. Makes 8 servings.

Creole Franks on Cheesy Rice

¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 cup tomato juice
2 teaspoons cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon sugar
⅛ teaspoon thyme
6 frankfurters, quartered

In medium-sized saucepan, saute onion, celery and green pepper in butter 3 to 5 minutes until onion is transparent. Combine ¼ cup of tomato juice with cornstarch, salt, sugar and thyme; add to sauteed vegetables with remaining tomato juice. Stir to combine. Add quartered frankfurters. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened and bubbly. Simmer 5 minutes while preparing rice.

CHEESE RICE: Prepare 4 servings enriched precooked rice according to package directions. Add 2 ounces (½ cup) shredded Colby cheese, stirring until melted.
To serve, spoon Creole Franks over Cheesy Rice. Makes 4 servings.

Chicken and Celery Italiano

1 large chicken breast, split (12 ounces)
4 stalks celery
10 fresh mushrooms, sliced (4 ounces)
1 tablespoon chopped green onion
¾ cup tomato juice
1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon oregano
⅛ teaspoon dry mustard

Remove skin from chicken; cut celery diagonally into ¾ inch pieces. Arrange chicken and vegetables in 10-inch skillet. Combine remaining ingredients; pour over chicken mixture. Bring to a boil; cover, reduce heat and simmer 20 to 25 minutes or until chicken is done (celery will be slightly crisp). Remove one half of chicken and one half of vegetables with slotted spoon. Cool, wrap and refrigerate to serve cold for lunch. Serve hot chicken and vegetables with sauce spooned over top for dinner.

Makes 1 lunch serving chicken and vegetables, 180 calories; and 1 dinner serving chicken and vegetables with sauce, 215 calories.

Experience is Joyce Zeller's recipe

by BARBARA LADD

If there's one thing Joyce Zeller wants understood now, it's that she isn't a good cook.

"I cope with the problem of cooking. Sometimes successfully, sometimes not so successfully," she said.

And that's the basis of her column, which begins in Sugar 'n' Spice April 8. Called "The Working Woman Cooks," it is a dialogue between Joyce and her readers on the trials and tribulations of busy women who have families to feed.

"The idea of this column has been fermenting for a long time," said Joyce, an Arlington Heights mother of four.

A social change has taken place, she said. More and more women are getting out of the home and into the work force. Joyce herself works in the paste-up department of Paddock Publications. Before that she was with Motorola Co.

"MY AGE GROUP is taking the brunt of this social change," she said. "They take on new lifestyles but have carry-overs from the traditional roles."

"Though both men and women have found they don't want to do what they have been doing, women give each other more support than men."

It's that kind of moral boost Joyce hopes to give her readers.

"It's to be a sharing of ideas. After all, we have to cook some thousand meals a year," she said.

Those thousand meals weren't always as easy for Joyce as they are now. "I didn't know how to cook very well when I was married. My dad had taught me how to cook only certain things."

"THE FIRST TIME I cooked for company was a disaster. We were in the service and had invited a couple of our service friends. Of course, when you're in the service and you know you'll be eating out at night, you don't eat anything else through the day. So our friends were really hungry," she said.

"Well, one of the things my father taught me to make was roast chicken. That seemed a safe thing to fix, but no one taught me the difference between stewing chicken and roasting chicken. So when I saw these two birds in the store and one was so much cheaper than the other, I was only thinking about the good buy I was getting," she laughed.

As it turned out, the chicken never got done and was so tough no one could eat it.

"I'VE HAD INTERNAL scars from that ever since," she said, laughing. "For 10 years after that terrible dinner, I spent the hour before company arrived in the john with a stomach ache."

Since Joyce works full-time and is busy with civic activities like the Arlington Heights Youth Council and the Zero Vandalism Committee, she prefers to spend no more than an hour fixing evening meals.

This streamlined approach has elicited such creations as Mon's-it's-good-for-you Casseroles, which her husband, Robert, and their children eye with humor, if not a bit of caution.

Though three of her four offspring are grown and away from home, Joyce said she still remembers the way it was. And she said she hopes her experiences and solutions will be helpful to her new readers.

A WORKING mother, Joyce Zeller, Arlington Heights, does not like to spend much time in the kitchen. She will soon be writing about her successes and failures with food in her weekly column.

Utility bills may drop with careful planning

Practicing the art of fuel-saving cookery nn make a difference with utility and fuel bills. All it takes is a little planning and some basic principles.

For example, cut down on fuel expenditures by reducing the burners used. This means more one-dish meals instead of three or four separate foods.

Also, smaller pieces of food cook faster than larger pieces. Therefore cut up potatoes and meats used in stews and shred vegetables to create interesting, quick-cooking dishes.

Planning oven time helps make the most of fuel, too. If one part of a meal is to be cooked in the oven, plan to make the rest of the meal for the oven, too.

A meal of Chicken and Dried Beef Pilaf, broccoli and baked fresh pears is an example of the practical kind of oven cookery.

CHICKEN AND DRIED BEEF PILAF

¾ cup uncooked regular rice
½ cup diagonally sliced celery
2 tablespoons chopped celery leaves
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 jar (2½ ounces) dried beef
¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
1 can (13¾ ounces) chicken broth, plus water to make 2 cups
1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving pieces
1 teaspoon flavor enhancer (optional)
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

In a Dutch oven or 3-quart casserole, mix rice, celery, celery leaves, onion, parsley, chipped beef, thyme and chicken broth plus water. Sprinkle chicken with flavor enhancer, salt and pepper; place on rice mixture. Cover and bake in a 375 degree oven 1 hour, or until chicken is tender when pierced with a fork. Serves 4.

OVEN VEGETABLES

2 packages (9 or 10 ounces each) frozen vegetables such as broccoli, peas, green beans, asparagus or spinach
½ teaspoon flavor enhancer (optional)
¼ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Place blocks of frozen vegetables side by side in the middle of a 12-inch piece of heavy-duty aluminum foil or in small casserole with tight-fitting lid. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, flavor enhancer and water. Dot with butter. Bring together opposite ends of aluminum foil to seal vegetables in a packet and seal edges well, or cover casserole. Bake in a 325 degree oven for 65 to 70 minutes; in a 350 degree oven for 60 to 65 minutes, or in a 375 degree oven for 55 to 60 minutes. Vegetables in larger pieces will take longer to cook than those in small pieces. Mix lightly before serving. Serves 4 to 6.

BAKED PEARS

2/3 cup hot water
2 teaspoons lemon juice
4 Anjou pears or other firm cooking pears
4 whole cloves
4 strips orange peel

In medium bowl combine brown sugar, water, and lemon juice. Stir until sugar dissolves. Pare pears and stick one clove in each pear. Place pears in individual dishes. Add an orange strip to each dish and pour brown sugar syrup over pears. Bake in 375 degree oven 1 hour or until pears are tender. Serve either warm or cool with a dollop of sour cream, if desired. Serves 4.

'A working woman cooks'

by BARBARA LADD

If there's one thing Joyce Zeller wants understood now, it's that she isn't a good cook.

"I cope with the problem of cooking. Sometimes successfully, sometimes not so successfully," she said.

And that's the basis of her column, which begins in Sugar 'n' Spice April 8. Called "The Working Woman Cooks," it is a dialogue between Joyce and her readers on the trials and tribulations of busy women who have families to feed.

"The idea of this column has been fermenting for a long time," said Joyce, an Arlington Heights mother of four.

A social change has taken place, she said. More and more women are getting out of the home and into the work force. Joyce herself works in the paste-up department of Paddock Publications. Before that she was with Motorola Co.

"MY AGE GROUP is taking the brunt of this social change," she said. "They take on new lifestyles but have carry-overs from the traditional roles."

"Though both men and women have found they don't want to do what they have been doing, women give each other more support than men."

It's that kind of moral boost Joyce hopes to give her readers.

"It's to be a sharing of ideas. After all, we have to cook some thousand meals a year," she said.

Those thousand meals weren't always as easy for Joyce as they are now. "I didn't know how to cook very well when I was married. My dad had taught me how to cook only certain things."

"THE FIRST TIME I cooked for company was a disaster. We were in the service and had invited a couple of our service friends. Of course, when you're in the service and you know you'll be eating out at night, you don't eat anything else through the day. So our friends were really hungry," she said.

"Well, one of the things my father taught me to make was roast chicken. That seemed a safe thing to fix, but no one taught me the difference between stewing chicken and roasting chicken. So when I saw these two birds in the store and one was so much cheaper than the other, I was only thinking about the good buy I was getting," she laughed.

As it turned out, the chicken never got done and was so tough no one could eat it.

"I'VE HAD INTERNAL scars from that ever since," she said, laughing. "For 10 years after that terrible dinner, I spent the hour before company arrived in the john with a stomach ache."

Since Joyce works full-time and is busy with civic activities like the Arlington Heights Youth Council and the Zero Vandalism Committee, she prefers to spend no more than an hour fixing evening meals.

This streamlined approach has elicited such creations as Mon's-it's-good-for-you Casseroles, which her husband, Robert, and their children eye with humor, if not a bit of caution.

Though three of her four offspring are grown and away from home, Joyce said she still remembers the way it was. And she said she hopes her experiences and solutions will be helpful to her new readers.

A WORKING mother, Joyce Zeller, Arlington Heights, does not like to spend much time in the kitchen. She will soon be writing about her successes and failures with food in her weekly column.

Utility bills may drop with careful planning

Practicing the art of fuel-saving cookery nn make a difference with utility and fuel bills. All it takes is a little planning and some basic principles.

For example, cut down on fuel expenditures by reducing the burners used. This means more one-dish meals instead of three or four separate foods.

Also, smaller pieces of food cook faster than larger pieces. Therefore cut up potatoes and meats used in stews and shred vegetables to create interesting, quick-cooking dishes.

Planning oven time helps make the most of fuel, too. If one part of a meal is to be cooked in the oven, plan to make the rest of the meal for the oven, too.

A meal of Chicken and Dried Beef Pilaf, broccoli and baked fresh pears is an example of the practical kind of oven cookery.

CHICKEN AND DRIED BEEF PILAF

¾ cup uncooked regular rice
½ cup diagonally sliced celery
2 tablespoons chopped celery leaves
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 jar (2½ ounces) dried beef
¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
1 can (13¾ ounces) chicken broth, plus water to make 2 cups
1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving pieces
1 teaspoon flavor enhancer (optional)
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

In a Dutch oven or 3-quart casserole, mix rice, celery, celery leaves, onion, parsley, chipped beef, thyme and chicken broth plus water. Sprinkle chicken with flavor enhancer, salt and pepper; place on rice mixture. Cover and bake in a 375 degree oven 1 hour, or until chicken is tender when pierced with a fork. Serves 4.

OVEN VEGETABLES

2 packages (9 or 10 ounces each) frozen vegetables such as broccoli, coli, peas, green beans, asparagus or spinach
½ teaspoon flavor enhancer (optional)
¼ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Place blocks of frozen vegetables side by side in the middle of a 12-inch piece of heavy-duty aluminum foil or in small casserole with tight-fitting lid. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, flavor enhancer and water. Dot with butter. Bring together opposite ends of aluminum foil to seal vegetables in a packet and seal edges well, or cover casserole. Bake in a 325 degree oven for 65 to 70 minutes; in a 350 degree oven for 60 to 65 minutes, or in a 375 degree oven for 55 to 60 minutes. Vegetables in larger pieces will take longer to cook than those in small pieces. Mix lightly before serving. Serves 4 to 6.

BAKED PEARS

½ cup packed dark brown sugar
2/3 cup hot water
2 teaspoons lemon juice
4 Anjou pears or other firm cooking pears
4 whole cloves
4 strips orange peel

In medium bowl combine brown sugar, water, and lemon juice. Stir until sugar dissolves. Pare pears and stick one clove in each pear. Place pears in individual dishes. Add an orange strip to each dish and pour brown sugar syrup over pears. Bake in 375 degree oven 1 hour or until pears are tender. Serve either warm or cool with a dollop of sour cream, if desired. Serves 4.

Weekend cooking impresses guests

by LOIS SEILER

The smiling faces of friends savoring a meal which he has prepared with care is ample gratification for Bud Stepek of Schaumburg. He enjoys cooking gourmet-type dinners that are a little different so that his guests will look forward to a return visit.

When Bud was married, he cooked on special occasions only, but since his divorce over three years ago his culinary interests have increased. Not content with ordinary food, he began picking up recipes and cookbooks, taking basic ideas and expanding on them. His creativity has earned him the reputation as an exceptional cook among his friends.

Bud also likes to please his 10-year-old son, Billy, who comes to stay with him on weekends. "He's an inspiration because he appreciates my efforts," Bud said.

Busy with a full-time job as a sheet metal tradesman and a part-time job at a ski resort, Bud has little time for complicated cooking during the week. But on weekends he creates culinary delights. He never experiments on friends, but tries a recipe first for himself.

PATS OF BUTTER are wrapped into deboned and skinned chicken by Bud Stepek, Schaumburg. He then coats the chicken with bread crumbs and deep fries the pieces until golden-colored.

TWO OF HIS tried and true recipes are always a success. Veal Cordon Bleu consists of thin veal cutlets rolled up with ham and Emmenthaler cheese and coated with egg and well-seasoned bread crumbs. After browning, they are baked to a tender goodness. As accompaniments he suggests wild rice, a green vegetable and hot rolls.

Also popular with guests, Chicken Kiev is made by wrapping skinned and deboned chicken breasts around pats of butter. After three coatings of egg and well-seasoned bread crumbs, the chicken is deep fried until golden. Wild rice or noodles and both a green and a yellow vegetable make the plate look especially appetizing.

Because both Bud and Billy are outdoorsmen, they like a quick and hearty meal after a full day of skiing, trap shooting or swimming. On such occasions Bud prepares Chili Mac, which is tasty and very filling. Bud says sherry is the "corker" in his chili recipe, adding special flavor. He serves this well-seasoned mixture over cooked macaroni.

VEAL CORDON BLEU

7 slices boiled ham
7 slices Emmenthaler cheese
2 eggs, beaten
1½ cups bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon celery powder or salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Pound cutlet with a mallet to a ¼-inch thickness. Place a slice of ham and cheese on each cutlet. Fold over envelope fashion and secure with toothpicks.

Combine bread crumbs and seasonings. Dip filled cutlets into eggs and then into crumb mixture. Press mixture in with fingers. Brown quickly in cooking oil until golden. Transfer to a baking dish and bake at 375 degrees, covered, for 30 minutes to one hour. Figuring one cutlet per person, this serves four, with a few extras for those who want seconds.

CHICKEN KIEV

4 pats butter, cut in 1-inch squares ¼-inch thick
2 to 3 cups fine bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon Rosemary
¼ teaspoon onion powder
2 large eggs, beaten

Mix bread crumbs and all spices. Skin and debone chicken breasts and

Weekend cooking impresses guests

by LOIS SEILER

The smiling faces of friends savoring a meal which he has prepared with care is ample gratification for Bud Stepek of Schaumburg. He enjoys cooking gourmet-type dinners that are a little different so that his guests will look forward to a return visit.

When Bud was married, he cooked on special occasions only, but since his divorce over three years ago his culinary interests have increased. Not content with ordinary food, he began picking up recipes and cookbooks, taking basic ideas and expanding on them. His creativity has earned him the reputation as an exceptional cook among his friends.

Bud also likes to please his 10-year-old son, Billy, who comes to stay with him on weekends. "He's an inspiration because he appreciates my efforts," Bud said.

Busy with a full-time job as a sheet metal tradesman and a part-time job at a ski resort, Bud has little time for complicated cooking during the week. But on weekends he creates culinary delights. He never experiments on friends, but tries a recipe first for himself.

TWO OF HIS tried and true recipes are always a success.. Veal Cordon Bleu consists of thin veal cutlets rolled up with ham and Emmenthaler cheese and coated with egg and well-seasoned bread crumbs. After browning, they are baked to a tender goodness. As accompaniments he suggests wild rice, a green vegetable and hot rolls.

Also popular with guests, Chicken Kiev is made by wrapping skinned and deboned chicken breasts around pats of butter. After three coatings of egg and well-seasoned bread crumbs, the chicken is deep fried until golden. Wild rice or noodles and both a green and a yellow vegetable make the plate look especially appetizing.

PATS OF BUTTER are wrapped into deboned and skinned chicken by Bud Stepek, Schaumburg. He then coats the chicken with bread crumbs and deep fries the pieces until golden-colored.

Because both Bud and Billy are outdoorsmen, they like a quick and hearty meal after a full day of skiing, trap shooting or swimming. On such occasions Bud prepares Chili Mac, which is tasty and very filling. Bud says sherry is the "corker" in his chili recipe, adding special flavor. He serves this well-seasoned mixture over cooked macaroni.

VEAL CORDON BLEU

7 veal cutlets
7 slices boiled ham
7 slices Emmenthaler cheese
2 eggs, beaten
1½ cups bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon celery powder or salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Pound cutlet with a mallet to a ¼-inch thickness. Place a slice of ham and cheese on each cutlet. Fold over envelope fashion and secure with toothpicks.

Combine bread crumbs and seasonings. Dip filled cutlets into eggs and then into crumb mixture. Press mixture in with fingers. Brown quickly in cooking oil until golden. Transfer to a baking dish and bake at 375 degrees, covered, for 30 minutes to one hour. Figuring one cutlet per person, this serves four, with a few extras for those who want seconds.

CHICKEN KIEV

4 large chicken breast halves
4 pats butter, cut in 1-inch squares ¼-inch thick
2 to 3 cups fine bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon Rosemary
¼ teaspoon onion powder
2 large eggs, beaten

Mix bread crumbs and all spices. Skin and debone chicken breasts and

Herald food price survey

Beef prices are lower as predicted by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture in its monthly Food Marketing Alert. In a Tuesday morning price survey, ground beef and round steak cuts showed about a 10-cent decrease from a month ago in most stores.

Vegetable oil is also a better buy now than a month ago, and considerably so compared to six months ago when it was 25 to 35 cents higher per 18 ounces.

Prices Tuesday are not necessarily the same today because of in-store sales and weekly price adjustments.

At Jewel round steak was down 10 cents a pound on Tuesday and pork center cut chops were down 70 cents a pound from last month's survey. Milk and eggs also showed slight decreases from the last reading, but the rest of the items surveyed remained relatively stable.

Ground beef at National was nearly 20 cents under the previous reading, with other meats and cuts remaining stable. Eggs were nine cents under February prices, but other prices in the store stayed relatively stable.

Meat prices were up somewhat at Butera for this survey but were still in line, and in some cases under, readings at other stores. Other prices surveyed remained relatively stable through the month.

At A&P ground beef was down 10 cents a pound from the February reading and whole chicken fryers were only 37 cents a pound, the lowest reading of the stores surveyed.

Round steak was 10 cents under the February reading at Treasure Island and was the lowest reading of the five stores surveyed at only 99 cents a pound. A gallon of milk was also the lowest quotation at $1.25, unchanged from February. Other prices were relatively stable.

High school students don't eat junk

High school students apparently are not substituting candy and soft drinks from in-school vending machines for a balanced lunch, says Richard Schreiber, president of the National Automatic Merchandising Association.

Schreiber said a 10-state study of vending installations in public high schools showed students averaging only 3.5 purchases a month or less. Candy and soft drinks were the most popular items, followed by ice cream, milk, pastry and juice.

Add Easter tradition with ease

With the rise of Christianity, the custom of serving these fragrant, spicy buns as part of a spring celebration easily transferred from these pagan beginnings to Easter.

The buns were first marked with a cross to ward off evil. Then the belief became widespread that buns baked on Good Friday had curative powers. Instead of eating these special Hot Cross Buns, people would wear pieces of them inside their clothes to ward off illness.

Hot cross Buns now are so much a part of the celebration of Easter that they are found in bakeries for only a few weeks every year. But you can serve this fragrant treat for Easter breakfast or any time you wish, when you make your own. You don't need to be an expert yeast baker either. This recipe starts with hot roll mix, so the dough is easy to handle and takes very little kneading.

HOT CROSS BUNS

1 14-ounce package hot roll mix
1 egg
½ cup currants or raisins
3 tablespoons chopped citron, if desired
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Soft butter or margarine
Frosting:
1 cup powdered sugar
4 to 5 teaspoons milk

Grease 8 or 9-inch square baking pan. Prepare hot roll mix with water and egg as directed on package, adding currants, citron and cinnamon with the flour mixture. Let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 45 to 60 minutes. One well-floured surface, toss dough lightly until no longer sticky. Divide dough into 12 equal portions and shape into round balls. Place in prepared pan. Let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 30 to 45 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 25 minutes until golden brown. Brush with soft butter; cool slightly. In small bowl, combine powdered sugar and enough milk until spreading consistency. Form cross on top of each bun with frosting.

Herald food price survey

Beef prices are lower as predicted by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture in its monthly Food Marketing Alert. In a Tuesday morning price survey, ground beef and round steak cuts showed about a 10-cent decrease from a month ago in most stores.

Vegetable oil is also a better buy now than a month ago, and considerably so compared to six months ago when it was 25 to 35 cents higher per 18 ounces.

Prices Tuesday are not necessarily the same today because of in-store sales and weekly price adjustments.

At Jewel round steak was down 10 cents a pound on Tuesday and pork center cut chops were down 70 cents a pound from last month's survey. Milk and eggs also showed slight decreases from the last reading, but the rest of the items surveyed remained relatively stable.

Ground beef at National was nearly 20 cents under the previous reading, with other meats and cuts remaining stable. Eggs were nine cents under February prices, but other prices in the store stayed relatively stable.

Meat prices were up somewhat at Butera for this survey but were still in line, and in some cases under, readings at other stores. Other prices surveyed remained relatively stable through the month.

At A&P ground beef was down 10 cents a pound from the February reading and whole chicken fryers were only 37 cents a pound, the lowest reading of the stores surveyed.

Round steak was 10 cents under the February reading at Treasure Island and was the lowest reading of the five stores surveyed at only 99 cents a pound. A gallon of milk was also the lowest quotation at $1.25, unchanged from February. Other prices were relatively stable.

High school students don't eat junk

High school students apparently are not substituting candy and soft drinks from in-school vending machines for a balanced lunch, says Richard Schreiber, president of the National Automatic Merchandising Association.

Schreiber said a 10-state study of vending installations in public high schools showed students averaging only 3.5 purchases a month or less. Candy and soft drinks were the most popular items, followed by ice cream, milk, pastry and juice.

Sweet Easter egg nest easy to create at home

The coloring of eggs for spring festivals is a very old custom and is believed to long predate Christianity. The Egyptians and the Persians, the Greeks and the Romans all colored eggs.

Many believe that warriors during the time of the Crusades brought back to Europe the custom of coloring and decorating eggs. Today, this custom continues and the entire Easter egg preparation is looked forward to by families, especially those with small children.

One of the most delicious and delightful Easter egg treats is a Chocolate Covered Easter Egg. This fondant-type confection filled with tender, moist coconut and covered with semi-sweet chocolate, will be an irresistible hit on Easter Day. Make it especially attractive with a confectioner's sugar glaze decoration and nestle it in a bed of softly tinted flaked coconut.

CHOCOLATE-COVERED EASTER EGG

2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon light corn syrup
1 tablespoon softened butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon almond extract
Dash of cream of tartar
1 1/3 cups (about) flaked coconut
4 drops yellow food coloring
1 drop red food coloring
Easy Chocolate Coating
Confectioners' Sugar Glaze

Combine confectioners' sugar, water, corn syrup, butter, vanilla, salt, almond extract and cream of tartar in a bowl and mix thoroughly. (Mixture will be crumbly.) Add coconut, mix until smooth, and shape into one large egg, about 7 inches long. Cut in half lengthwise; scoop out about 1½ tablespoons at round end of each half, and place in small bowl. Blend in yellow and red food coloring, return tinted mixture to egg halves. Press halves firmly together, pinching to seal edges. Cover entire egg with Easy Chocolate Coating, and let stand until chocolate is firm. Decorate egg with Confectioners' Sugar Glaze and place on a nest of tinted flaked coconut, if desired. Makes 1½ pounds.

Note: Candy may be shaped, wrapped, and stored a day before coating with chocolate.

Easy Chocolate Coating. Partially melt 4 squares semi-sweet chocolate over hot water. Remove from water; stir rapidly until entirely melted. Let stand until cool (83 degrees).

Confectioners' Sugar Glaze. Gradually add about 1 to 3 teaspoons hot milk or water to ½ cup sifted confectioners' sugar, blending well, until of desired consistency.

Tinted Coconut. Mix ½ teaspoon milk or water with a few drops green food coloring. Add to 1 1/3 cups (about) flaked coconut in a bowl; toss with a fork to tint evenly.

Chocolate-Covered Easter Egg

No diet link

A specialist in chidren's heart disease has told an American Heart Association meeting that recent findings show no significant link between what children eat and the cholesterol levels in their blood. Dr. William Wiedman said the three-year Mayo study involved more than 2,500 children 6 to 16 years old. It was financed by a $2.1 million grant from the National Institutes of Health.

Easy dessert just peachy for spring

A sunny salute to warm weather is this peachy dessert. It adapts to any occasion, but is especially welcome as a finale to a quick and easy family dinner.

PEACHY SOUR CREAM DESSERT

1 package (3 ounces) peach flavor gelatin
1 cup boiling water
¼ teaspoon almond extract
½ cup sour cream

Drain peaches, reserving syrup. Add water to syrup to make 1 cup. Dice the peaches. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add measured liquid and almond extract. Chill until slightly thickened; measure ¾ cup and set aside. Fold peaches into remaining gelatin mixture. Spoon into 6 sherbet glasses, and chill until set but not firm. Meanwhile, place bowl of measured gelatin in larger bowl of ice and water. Beat with hand beater or electric mixer until fluffy and thick and about double in volume. Blend in sour cream. Spoon over gelatin in glasses. Chill until firm, about 2 hours. Makes about 3 - ¼ cups or 6 servings.

Add Easter tradition with ease

Hot Cross Buns, one of our most traditional Easter recipes, actually originated in pre-Christian England, honoring the Anglo-Saxon goddess Eastre, whose name day fell in the spring.

With the rise of Christianity, the custom of serving these fragrant, spicy buns as part of a spring celebration easily transferred from these pagan beginnings to Easter.

The buns were first marked with a cross to ward off evil. Then the belief became widespread that buns baked on Good Friday had curative powers. Instead of eating these special Hot Cross Buns, people would wear pieces of them inside their clothes to ward off illness.

Hot cross Buns now are so much a part of the celebration of Easter that they are found in bakeries for only a few weeks every year. But you can serve this fragrant treat for Easter breakfast or any time you wish, when you make your own. You don't need to be an expert yeast baker either. This recipe starts with hot roll mix, so the dough is easy to handle and takes very little kneading.

HOT CROSS BUNS

1 14-ounce package hot roll mix
¾ cup warm water
1 egg
½ cup currants or raisins
3 tablespoons chopped citron, if desired
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Soft butter or margarine
Frosting:
1 cup powdered sugar
4 to 5 teaspoons milk

Grease 8 or 9-inch square baking pan. Prepare hot roll mix with water and egg as directed on package, adding currants, citron and cinnamon with the flour mixture. Let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 45 to 60 minutes. One well-floured surface, toss dough lightly until no longer sticky. Divide dough into 12 equal portions and shape into round balls. Place in prepared pan. Let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 30 to 45 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 25 minutes until golden brown. Brush with soft butter; cool slightly. In small bowl, combine powdered sugar and enough milk until spreading consistency. Form cross on top of each bun with frosting.

Place a pat of butter on each chicken piece and fold up envelope style. Secure with toothpicks. Dip in eggs and then in crumb mixture. Repeat process two more times, pressing in crumb mixture each time. Let set for a half hour.

Deep fry at 300 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes or until golden brown. Keep warm in a 225 degree oven until all pieces are ready. Serves 4.

CHILI MAC

1½ pounds ground beef
1 can (1 pound size) stewed tomatoes
1 can (1 pound size) kidney beans
1 green pepper, cleaned and sliced
¼ of a medium-size onion, sliced thin
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon seasoned pepper
1 teaspoon celery salt
½ teaspoon minced garlic
¼ cup cooking sherry

Sweet Easter egg nest easy to create at home

The coloring of eggs for spring festivals is a very old custom and is believed to long predate Christianity. The Egyptians and the Persians, the Greeks and the Romans all colored eggs.

Many believe that warriors during the time of the Crusades brought back to Europe the custom of coloring and decorating eggs. Today, this custom continues and the entire Easter egg preparation is looked forward to by families, especially those with small children.

One of the most delicious and delightful Easter egg treats is a Chocolate Covered Easter Egg. This fondant-type confection filled with tender, moist coconut and covered with semi-sweet chocolate, will be an irresistible hit on Easter Day. Make it especially attractive with a confectioner's sugar glaze decoration and nestle it in a bed of softly tinted flaked coconut.

CHOCOLATE-COVERED EASTER EGG

1 pound unsifted confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon light corn syrup
1 tablespoon softened butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon almond extract
Dash of cream of tartar
1 1/3 cups (about) flaked coconut
4 drops yellow food coloring
1 drop red food coloring
Easy Chocolate Coating
Confectioners' Sugar Glaze

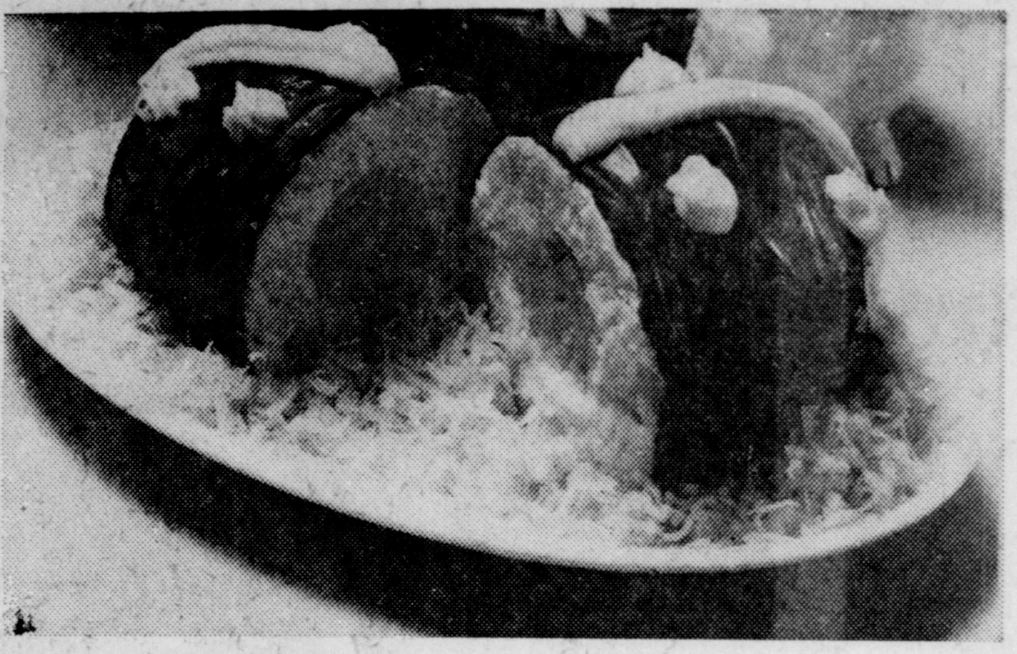
Combine confectioners' sugar, water, corn syrup, butter, vanilla, salt, almond extract and cream of tartar in a bowl and mix thoroughly. (Mixture will be crumbly.) Add coconut, mix until smooth, and shape into one large egg, about 7 inches long. Cut in half lengthwise; scoop out about 1½ tablespoons at round end of each half, and place in small bowl. Blend in yellow and red food coloring, return tinted mixture to egg halves. Press halves firmly together, pinching to seal edges. Cover entire egg with Easy Chocolate Coating, and let stand until chocolate is firm. Decorate egg with Confectioners' Sugar Glaze and place on a nest of tinted flaked coconut, if desired. Makes 1½ pounds.

Note: Candy may be shaped, wrapped, and stored a day before coating with chocolate.

Easy Chocolate Coating. Partially melt 4 squares semi-sweet chocolate over hot water. Remove from water; stir rapidly until entirely melted. Let stand until cool (83 degrees).

Confectioners' Sugar Glaze. Gradually add about 1 to 3 teaspoons hot milk or water to ½ cup sifted confectioners' sugar, blending well, until of desired consistency.

Tinted Coconut. Mix ½ teaspoon milk or water with a few drops green food coloring. Add to 1 1/3 cups (about) flaked coconut in a bowl; toss with a fork to tint evenly.



Chocolate-Covered Easter Egg

No diet link

A specialist in chidren's heart disease has told an American Heart Association meeting that recent findings show no significant link between what children eat and the cholesterol levels in their blood. Dr. William Wiedman said the three-year Mayo study involved more than 2,500 children 6 to 16 years old. It was financed by a $2.1 million grant from the National Institutes of Health.

Easy dessert just peachy for spring

A sunny salute to warm weather is this peachy dessert. It adapts to any occasion, but is especially welcome as a finale to a quick and easy family dinner.

PEACHY SOUR CREAM DESSERT

1 can (16 ounces) sliced peaches
1 package (3 ounces) peach flavor gelatin
1 cup boiling water
¼ teaspoon almond extract
½ cup sour cream

Drain peaches, reserving syrup. Add water to syrup to make 1 cup. Dice the peaches. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add measured liquid and almond extract. Chill until slightly thickened; measure ¾ cup and set aside. Fold peaches into remaining gelatin mixture. Spoon into 6 sherbet glasses, and chill until set but not firm. Meanwhile, place bowl of measured gelatin in larger bowl of ice and water. Beat with hand beater or electric mixer until fluffy and thick and about double in volume. Blend in sour cream. Spoon over gelatin in glasses. Chill until firm, about 2 hours. Makes about 3 - ¼ cups or 6 servings.

Unique dish fits into busy lifestyles

The word "casual" characterizes many a family's lifestyle in America today. But in no way does it mean that the basics of good health and nutrition are overlooked.

Country Casual Corn Bread is a thrifty, quick and nutritious dish approved for the easy-going lifestyles. The corn bread is easily and economically begun from scratch using corn meal enriched with B vitamins and iron. Halved pineapple slices and frankfurters bake in the corn bread for convenience. And a take-it-easy sauce is made with doctored-up pork and beans.

Country Casual Corn Bread

COUNTRY CASUAL CORN BREAD

- 1 cup enriched corn meal
- 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
- ¼ cup sugar
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 8-ounce can pineapple slices
- Milk
- 1 egg
- ¼ cup vegetable oil
- 6 frankfurters, scored

Sift together corn meal, flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Drain pineapple reserving juice. Add enough milk to reserved juice to equal 1 cup liquid. Add liquid, egg and oil to dry ingredients; mix well. Spread batter into greased 9-inch square baking pan. Cut 3 pineapple slices in half; reserve 1 pineapple slice for garnish. lightly place pineapple pieces and frankfurters on top of corn bread batter. Bake in preheated hot oven (425 degrees) about 30 minutes. Remove from oven; let stand 5 to 10 minutes before serving.

Bean Sauce:

- 1 16-ounce can pork and beans
- ¼ cup catsup
- 3 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon instant minced onions
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- ½ teaspoon celery salt

Combine all ingredients; mix well. Simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. To serve, cut corn bread into six servings. Spoon about 1/3 cup sauce over each serving. Garnish with reserved pineapple slice cut into six pieces.

Lemon Filets

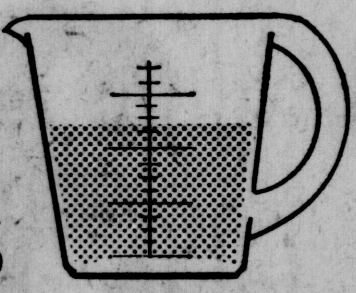
Marinade enhances taste of Atlantic fish

A pleasure instead of a penance this Lenten season is fish from the icy waters of the North Atlantic. For a special flavor touch, this fish is marinated in a lemony herb mixture, then coated and fried.

LEMON FILETS.

- 1 pound sole or flounder filets, thawed
- 125 milliliters or ½ cup lemon juice
- 60 milliliters or ¼ cup salad oil
- 60 milliliters or ¼ cup minced onion.
- 30 milliliters or 2 tablespoons dry white wine or apple juice
- 5 milliliters or 1 teaspoon chervil leaves or tarragon

Cooking with metrics



- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 7½ milliliters or 1½ teaspoons salt
- 125 milliliters (about 60 grams) or ½ cup flour
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 30 milliliters or 2 tablespoons milk
- 500 milliliters or 2 cups bread crumbs
- Butter or margarine or vegetable oil for browning

In 1½-liter (1½-quart) baking dish combine lemon juice, salad oil, onion, wine, chervil, garlic and salt. Place fish filets in marinade; cover and let stand for 1 hour. Combine eggs and milk in a bowl. Remove fish from marinade and dip in flour to coat, then in egg-milk mixture and then in bread crumbs. In a large skillet, fry breaded fish in half butter or margarine and half vegetable oil until browned. Makes 4 servings.

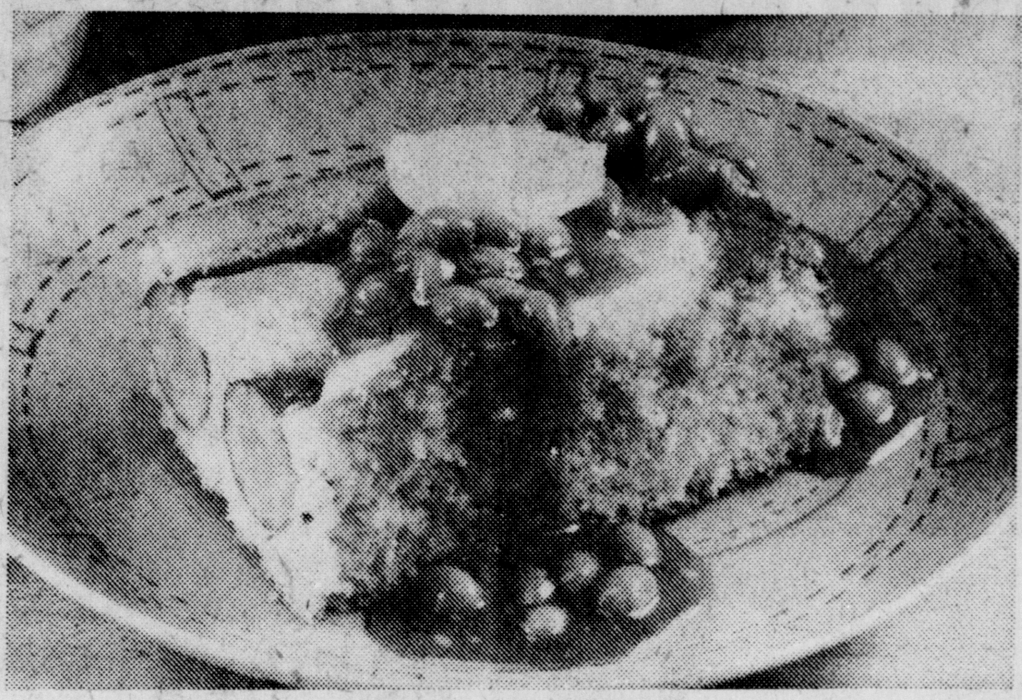
Unique dish fits into busy lifestyles



Country Casual Corn Bread

The word "casual" characterizes many a family's lifestyle in America today. But in no way does it mean that the basics of good health and nutrition are overlooked.

Country Casual Corn Bread is a thrifty, quick and nutritious dish approved for the easy-going lifestyles. The corn bread is easily and economically begun from scratch using corn meal enriched with B vitamins and iron. Halved pineapple slices and frankfurters bake in the corn bread for convenience. And a take-it-easy sauce is made with doctored-up pork and beans.

COUNTRY CASUAL CORN BREAD

1 cup enriched corn meal
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
¼ cup sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 8-ounce can pineapple slices
Milk
1 egg
¼ cup vegetable oil
6 frankfurters, scored

Sift together corn meal, flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Drain pineapple reserving juice. Add enough milk to reserved juice to equal 1 cup liquid. Add liquid, egg and oil to dry ingredients; mix well. Spread batter into greased 9-inch square baking pan. Cut 3 pineapple slices in half; reserve 1 pineapple slice for garnish. lightly place pineapple pieces and frankfurters on top of corn bread batter. Bake in preheated hot oven (425 degrees) about 30 minutes. Remove from oven; let stand 5 to 10 minutes before serving.

Bean Sauce:

1 16-ounce can pork and beans
¼ cup catsup
3 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon instant minced onions
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon celery salt

Combine all ingredients; mix well. Simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. To serve, cut corn bread into six servings. Spoon about 1/3 cup sauce over each serving. Garnish with reserved pineapple slice cut into six pieces.

Lemon Filets

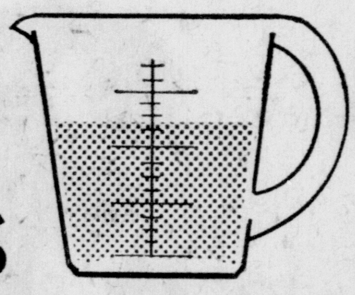
Marinade enhances taste of Atlantic fish

A pleasure instead of a penance this Lenten season is fish from the icy waters of the North Atlantic. For a special flavor touch, this fish is marinated in a lemony herb mixture, then coated and fried.

LEMON FILETS.

1 pound sole or flounder filets, thawed
125 milliliters or ½ cup lemon juice
60 milliliters or ¼ cup salad oil
60 milliliters or ¼ cup minced onion.
30 milliliters or 2 tablespoons dry white wine or apple juice
5 milliliters or 1 teaspoon chervil leaves or tarragon

Cooking with metrics



1 clove garlic, crushed
7½ milliliters or 1½ teaspoons salt
125 milliliters (about 60 grams) or ½ cup flour
2 eggs, beaten
30 milliliters or 2 tablespoons milk
500 milliliters or 2 cups bread crumbs
Butter or margarine or vegetable oil for browning

In 1½-liter (1½-quart) baking dish combine lemon juice, salad oil, onion, wine, chervil, garlic and salt. Place fish filets in marinade; cover and let stand for 1 hour. Combine eggs and milk in a bowl. Remove fish from marinade and dip in flour to coat, then in egg-milk mixture and then in bread crumbs. In a large skillet, fry breaded fish in half butter or margarine and half vegetable oil until browned. Makes 4 servings.

Content improves with kids' cookbooks

by BARBARA ELLEMAN

Ever since Jack put in his thumb and pulled out a plum and Alice stumbled upon the Madhatter's tea party, children have found references to food in their books.

Since most youngsters have a natural interest in food anyway, channeling this interest into learning how to prepare the food they eat can provide a constructive and fun outlet for their energy and creativity. Fortunately, cookbooks written specifically for children are widely available.

But within the last year, several titles have appeared which take the cookbook-for-children idea one step further by combining recipes with a popular and instructive theme.

THE DELIGHTFUL treat served up by P. L. Travers in her "Mary Poppins in the Kitchen: A Cookery Book with a Story" (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, $6.95) is a good example. It's Sunday and the Banks are about to leave for a week's vacation when Cook rushes in to say she has an emergency and must leave at once. Mrs. Banks is aghast: "Who will cook for the children?" Mary Poppins, of course. The children, who have never been allowed in the kitchen, eagerly plunge into the unexpected adventure.

During the course of the week, menus are planned, shopping trips undertaken and culinary delights concocted. Into this whirl come such familiar characters as Mr. and Mrs. Topsy Turvey, who, quite appropriately, combine their talents to bake an upside-down cake.

The recipes presented in the second half of the book have been kitchen-tested by Maurice Moore-Betty in his New York City cooking school. Mr. Moore-Betty has a well-deserved reputation for teaching children the fine points of cooking. They will find his directions clear, the ingredients readily available, and the results tasty.

Children are a logical target of the Bicentennial publishing blitz, but fortunately, two recently-published bicentennial cookbooks for kids should be as good in 1986 as they are in '76. Those who enjoy a slice of history with their apple pandowdy should like "The Heritage Sampler" by Cheryl Hoople (Dial Press, $6.95) particularly because the author stresses the part children played in the various activities of the Early American home and community.

IN THE CHAPTER "Husking Bee," readers not only learn about the importance of corn to early settlers, but also discover a tempting recipe for old-fashioned popcorn made with peanuts and coconut, a recipe for the standard variety of popcorn and instructions for making cornhusk dolls.

More Bicentennial fare is "Slumps, Grunts and Snickerdoodles: What Colonial America Ate and Why" by Lila Perl (Seabury Press, Inc., $7.95). Dividing her discussion by geographical areas, Perl tells the fascinating story of what foods people ate, why they ate them, and how they were prepared.

"Slump," for those who wonder about this cookbook's intriguing title, is a New England dish made of apples and berries, topped with dough, and steamed in a deep pot over an open fire. When served, the topping often collapsed; hence the name. "Snickerdoodle" is a cakelike drop cookie of Dutch origin, and "grunt," obviously, describes the satisfied sounds made by happy eaters.

WHILE MIDDLE graders and junior high schoolers should have no trouble following Perl's recipes, most younger children will need adult supervision.

Although the cookie jar may seem an unlikely place to promote internationalism, Anita Borghese does just that in her "International Cookie Jar Cookbook" (Charles Scribner's Sons, $7.95). This book contains a collection of delicious cookie recipes and notes on the history and culture of the people from 65 countries who make them. The author, who owns and runs a gourmet health food shop in New York, includes a section on what you should know before the baking begins — methods, utensils and ingredient tips.

The names are exotic — Evening Fairies from Hungary, Sighs from Panama, St. Joseph's Wood Shavings from Spain, Azuki Squares from Japan and Half Moons from Iceland — but a glance at the ingredients reveals that most are available on the shelves of your local grocery.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A SCENE from "Slumps, Grunts and Snickerdoodles" illustrates some of the foods used for children's Bicentennial recipes.

Content improves with kids' cookbooks

by BARBARA ELLEMAN

Ever since Jack put in his thumb and pulled out a plum and Alice stumbled upon the Madhatter's tea party, children have found references to food in their books.

Since most youngsters have a natural interest in food anyway, channeling this interest into learning how to prepare the food they eat can provide a constructive and fun outlet for their energy and creativity. Fortunately, cookbooks written specifically for children are widely available.

But within the last year, several titles have appeared which take the cookbook-for-children idea one step further by combining recipes with a popular and instructive theme.

THE DELIGHTFUL treat served up by P. L. Travers in her "Mary Poppins in the Kitchen: A Cookery Book with a Story" (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, $6.95) is a good example. It's Sunday and the Banks are about to leave for a week's vacation when Cook rushes in to say she has an emergency and must leave at once. Mrs. Banks is aghast: "Who will cook for the children?" Mary Poppins, of course. The children, who have never been allowed in the kitchen, eagerly plunge into the unexpected adventure.

During the course of the week, menus are planned, shopping trips undertaken and culinary delights concocted. Into this whirl come such familiar characters as Mr. and Mrs. Topsy Turvey, who, quite appropriately, combine their talents to bake an upside-down cake.

The recipes presented in the second half of the book have been kitchen-tested by Maurice Moore-Betty in his New York City cooking school. Mr. Moore-Betty has a well-deserved reputation for teaching children the fine points of cooking. They will find his directions clear, the ingredients readily available, and the results tasty.

Children are a logical target of the Bicentennial publishing blitz, but fortunately, two recently-published bicentennial cookbooks for kids should be as good in 1986 as they are in '76. Those who enjoy a slice of history with their apple pandowdy should like "The Heritage Sampler" by Cheryl Hoople (Dial Press, $6.95) particularly because the author stresses the part children played in the various activities of the Early American home and community.

IN THE CHAPTER "Husking Bee," readers not only learn about the importance of corn to early settlers, but also discover a tempting recipe for old-fashioned popcorn made with peanuts and coconut, a recipe for the standard variety of popcorn and instructions for making cornhusk dolls.

More Bicentennial fare is "Slumps, Grunts and Snickerdoodles: What Colonial America Ate and Why" by Lila Perl (Seabury Press, Inc., $7.95). Dividing her discussion by geographical areas, Perl tells the fascinating story of what foods people ate, why they ate them, and how they were prepared.

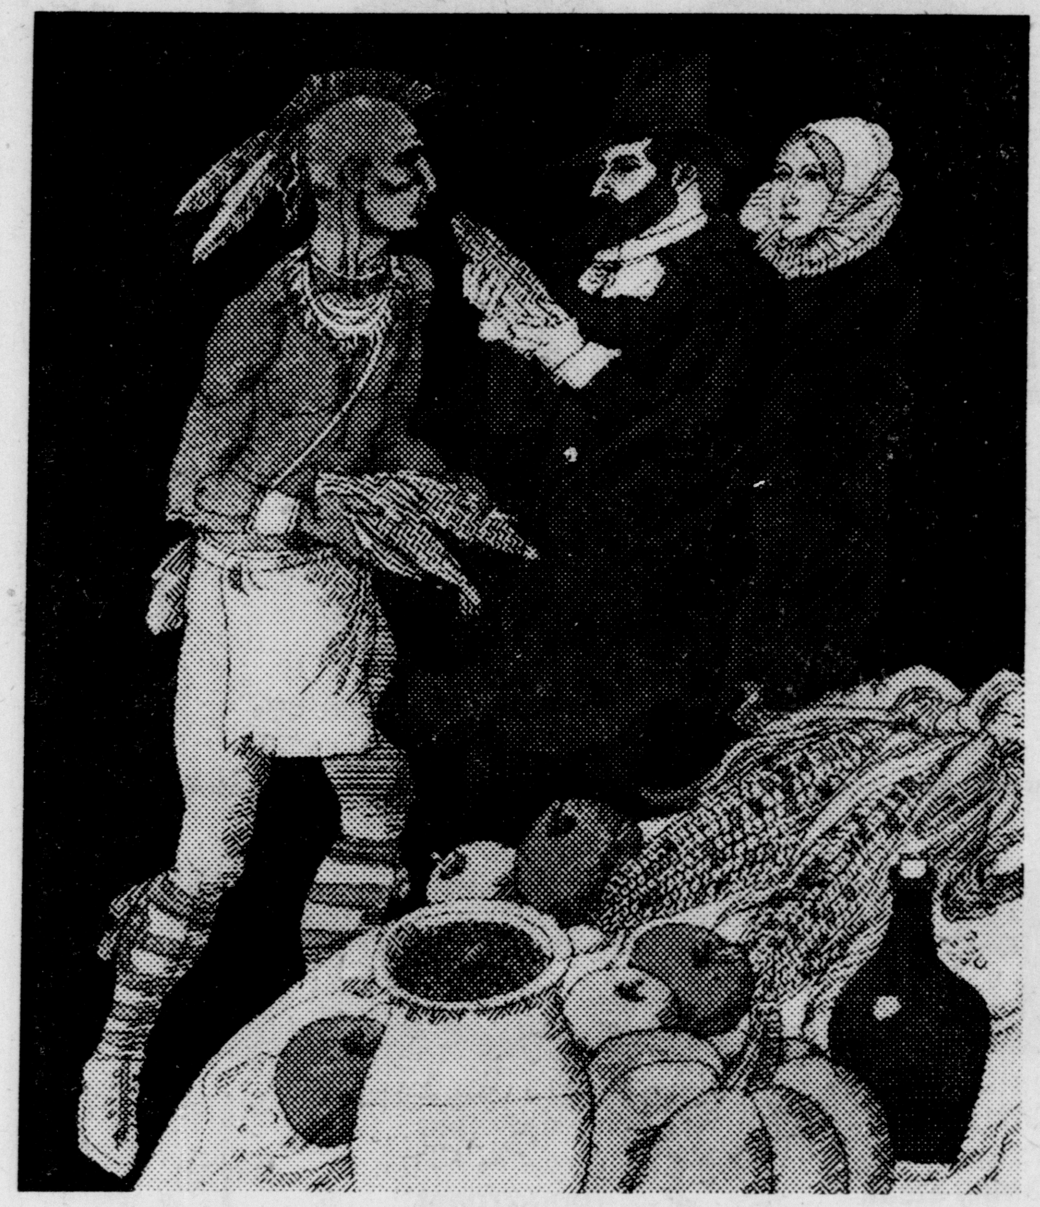
"Slump," for those who wonder about this cookbook's intriguing title, is a New England dish made of apples and berries, topped with dough, and steamed in a deep pot over an open fire. When served, the topping often collapsed; hence the name. "Snickerdoodle" is a cakelike drop cookie of Dutch origin, and "grunt," obviously, describes the satisfied sounds made by happy eaters.

WHILE MIDDLE graders and junior high schoolers should have no trouble following Perl's recipes, most younger children will need adult supervision.

Although the cookie jar may seem an unlikely place to promote internationalism, Anita Borghese does just that in her "International Cookie Jar Cookbook" (Charles Scribner's Sons, $7.95). This book contains a collection of delicious cookie recipes and notes on the history and culture of the people from 65 countries who make them. The author, who owns and runs a gourmet health food shop in New York, includes a section on what you should know before the baking begins — methods, utensils and ingredient tips.

The names are exotic — Evening Fairies from Hungary, Sighs from Panama, St. Joseph's Wood Shavings from Spain, Azuki Squares from Japan and Half Moons from Iceland — but a glance at the ingredients reveals that most are available on the shelves of your local grocery.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.



A SCENE from "Slumps, Grunts and Snickerdoodles" illustrates some of the foods used for children's Bicentennial recipes.
